Governors Hear Secretary Say Country Stands At 'Turning Point'

(Marshall's Text, Page 2)

By Edward T. Folliard
Post Reporter

Salt Lake City, Utah, July 14.—Secretary of State George C. Marshall said here tonight that the United States was at a "turning point," and that it must help its friends in Europe get on their feet or prepare to see them abandon traditional democracy.

He meant, apparently, that the alternative to American support of the "Marshall plan" would be a Russian-dominated Europe.

If this Nation's friends in Europe turn away from democracy, he said, the United States would be faced with a "radical alteration" of its own position in the world—one that would affect both its prosperity and security.

Tries to Rally Governors

Secretary Marshall, who flew here from Washington with Charles E. (Chip) Bohlen, the State Department's Russian expert, spoke before the Thirty-ninth Annual Governor's Conference in the flag-garlanded Utah Hotel. The took the occasion to try to rally the Governors and thus the whole country behind the American Government's efforts to preserve "European civilization."

"There is no blinking the fact that this country now stands at a turning point in its relations to its traditional friends among the nations of the world," Secretary Marshall said.

"Either it must finish the task of assisting these countries to adjust themselves to the changed demands of a new age or it must reconcile itself to seeing them move in directions which are consistent neither with their own traditions nor with those of this country.

Does Not Mention Russia

"In this latter case, the United States would be faced with a radical alteration of its own position in the world. I ask you to consider most carefully the implication of such a development for the future prosperity and security of our country."

Secretary Marshall did not mention Russia in his speech, and neither did he elaborate on his remark about a "radical alteration" of this country's position in the world. He explained to the Governors that, as Secretary of State, his pronouncements had to be "couched in diplomatic, at least dignified phraseology."

But the remark was interpreted to mean that if Russia gained control of Europe, and also of Europe's possessions in Africa, the United States would itself in a frightening dilemma, both from the standpoint of having allies and access to vital materials.

Rides Sacred Cow

Secretary Marshall last addressed a Governors' Conference at MacKinac Island in the war year of 1945, when he was chief of staff of the Army and the Allies' No. 1 strategist in the global struggle.

He told the Governors tonight that his responsibilities now were in some respects more difficult

Soviet to Ignore U. S.-Austria Pact

Vienna, Austria, July 14 (U.P.).—Col. Gen. K. K. Kourasov, Russian occupation commander in chief, has warned the Austrian government that Russia would not be bound by the terms of the 100 million dollar United States-Austrian loan agreement, it was announced tonight.

A government statement said Kourasov had advised that the agreement could not be considered "either legal or binding" on the Russian command.

Chancellor Leopold Figl said the government would reply soon to Kourasov.

Battle Seems Imminent

New Invasion Force Enters Greece, Athens Announces

Athens, July 14 (AP).—The government announced tonight that "a new invasion of Greece took place this morning," and a cabinet minister said a 2500-man guerilla force was advancing on the important city of Ioannina, 25 miles from the Albanian frontier.

Earlier the government said Greek troops, reinforced by airborne combat veterans, had repelled a 1000-man guerilla force from beseiged Konitsa, 25 miles north of Ioannina and only six miles from the frontier. This announcement said the attackers had been driven back to the border.

The cabinet minister said Greek troops were moving to intercept the new guerilla force, and that a battle might take place tonight north of Ioannina.

He asserted that the guerillas had been reinforced from Albania, and that the Greek army was speeding fresh troops to Ioannina. He added that the clash may occur at a point known as Kalpaki.

The minister described the situation as serious, but quoted Greek military leaders as saying "all is going well for us."

Ioannina (Yanina), largest city in the Epirus, has a population of approximately 20,000. Kalpaki, also known as Elaia, is approximately 10 miles east of Corfu Channel.

The new force apparently is independent of the guerilla band which the government said invaded Greece from Albania yesterday and attacked Konitsa.

There was some indication that the new unit was composed of Chamourans, Moslems living along the Greek-Albanian border who previously had been reported ready to attack Greece from Albania.

GOP Governor Backs Truman Lobby Charge

Vermont's Gibson Also Wants Probe Of Realty Influence

By a Post Reporter

Salt Lake City, Utah, July 14.—A Republican Governor, noting "the bitterness abroad in this country over housing," today backed up President Truman's demand for an investigation of the real estate lobby in Washington.

Gov. Ernest W. Gibson, 45-year-old chief executive of Vermont, told the thirty-ninth annual Governors conference that the real estate lobby "has had an extremely detrimental effect" on the construction of new housing, and he expressed the hope it will be "carefully and thoroughly investigated."

He said he had experienced some "personal contact" with the lobby, apparently referring to the days he spent in Washington when his father was a member of Congress.

President Truman, in signing the new rent control bill recently, accused the real estate lobby of displaying "a ruthless disregard of the public welfare." He urged Congress to make "a full investigation of the activities of this selfish and short-sighted group."

Governor Gibson, facing 43 other State governors in the ballroom of the Utah Hotel, said the heart of the housing problem was "cost."

"We must turn the spotlight of public opinion on this question of cost," he said. "There are too many people making unconscionable profits. There are excessive costs that go into housing, and proper inquiry can smoke out and embar-

Implied Criticism Held His First Challenge To Dewey's '48 Bid

Harold E. Stassen last night turned the spotlight on Communist activity in the City of New York and in effect asked what Governor Thomas E. Dewey was going to do about it.

In a speech construed here as his first direct challenge to Dewey's unannounced bid for the Republican Presidential nomination, Stassen called for prompt action to halt Communist infiltration.

He named New York as the No. 1 United States center of Communist activity and urged a vigorous bipartisan program to clear it up.

He asked the Governor and Attorney General of New York, in cooperation with the President and Attorney General of the United States and the Mayor and the Prosecutor of the City of New York "clear up this center of Communist activity."

Stassen, the only announced G. O. P. candidate in the field, proposed a 12-point program to do it. In fact, he said it was the same progra mhe himself had used successfully, in cooperation with Federal and local Governments, to reduce Communist activity in Minnesota in 1937-38.

Stassen never once mentioned Dewey by name. But his implication was plain. It was this! That no virorous action has been taken by Dewey to check Communist infiltration in his own State. He

House Unit to Study Foreign Needs, U. S. Capacity for Help

By The Associated Press

House Republican leaders decided yesterday to set up a special committee to make a study of foreign needs this summer and the ability of the United States to meet them.

Speaker Martin (R., Mass.) announced the decision following a meeting of the House GOP steering committee and members of the Foreign Affairs Committee.

He said the special group probably will include Representation from all House committees dealing with foreign matters and related affairs, such as military, agriculture, financing and appropriations.

The committee will be in the nature of a study group and will report at the next session of Congress. It will not have legislative authority.

Among things it will undertake to find out, Martin said, is how much foreign countries need from the United States and how far the United States can go toward meeting their needs.

Martin said the committee "undoubtedly will go abroad" to make its studies.

"We have other views besides those of the executive branch," he commented.

The decision to set up the special committee resulted from complaints of some members of the Foreign Affairs Committee that other House groups were seeking to invade their jurisdiction. Martin said the decision to create a special group apparently was satisfactory to all concerned.

Senate Again Passes Bill To Trim Tax

Sustained Veto Virtually Assured By 60-32 Vote; GOP Still Hopeful

(Roll Call on Page 6)

By Robert C. Albright
Post Reporter

The Senate yesterday repassed the four billion dollar Knutson tax reduction bill but virtually sustained in advance the President's pledged veto.

A 60 to 32 majority for the bill fell two votes short of the number needed to over-ride.

Republicans clung to what they said was a fighting chance" of overriding but Minority Leader Alben Barkley (Ky.) said flatly:

"This means the veto will stick."

Prompt Veto Expected

Despite White House assurances of a prompt "No," the final round on the bill may not be fought until tomorrow or Thursday in the House and next Monday in the Senate. The bill will reach the President today and will probably be returned overnight.

The House, which sustained the President's veto of the almost identical original bill, apparently has an overriding majority this time.

Barring unexpected switches, the Senate lacks a two-thirds majority even if yesterday's three absentees are on hand. Two of the latter are expected to be here, bringing the majority to 61 to 33—still 2 votes shy. The sustaining majority might be even larger. At least one Democrat who voted for the bill hinted he might vote to sustain.

In the final Senate tally, 12 Democrats joined 48 Republicans for the bill. Two Republicans (Morse of Oregon and Langer of North Dakota) voted with 30 Democrats against passage.

As repassed by the House last Tuesday and the Senate yesterday, the bill provides the original 10½ to 30 per cent income tax reductions, but postpones the effective date from July 1, 1947, to January 1, 1948.

Here's how the bill would scale tax cuts:

Taxable incomes under $1000, 30 per cent cut.

Between $1000 and $1395, cuts graduated downward from 30 to 20 per cent.

Between $1395 and $137,000 20 per cent cut.

Between $137,000 and $302,000 15 per cent cut. This group would receive a 20 per cent cut on that portion of their income under $137,000.

Over $302,000, 10½ per cent. This group would receive the benefit of 15 and 20 per cent tax cuts on their income under $302,000.

All Amendments Beaten

All proposed amendments were voted down, but proponents of the unchanged Knutson rates had two comparatively close calls.

A move by Senator John L. McClellan (D., Ark.) to increase personal income tax exemptions to $600 for single people and $1200 for married couples was barely defeated, 47 to 43.

Another amendment by McClellan, enabling married couples in all States to divide their income equally for tax purposes, had tied up the Senate for nearly two days.

This amendment, designed to give married couples in the 35 non-community property States the benefits permitted by 13 commu-

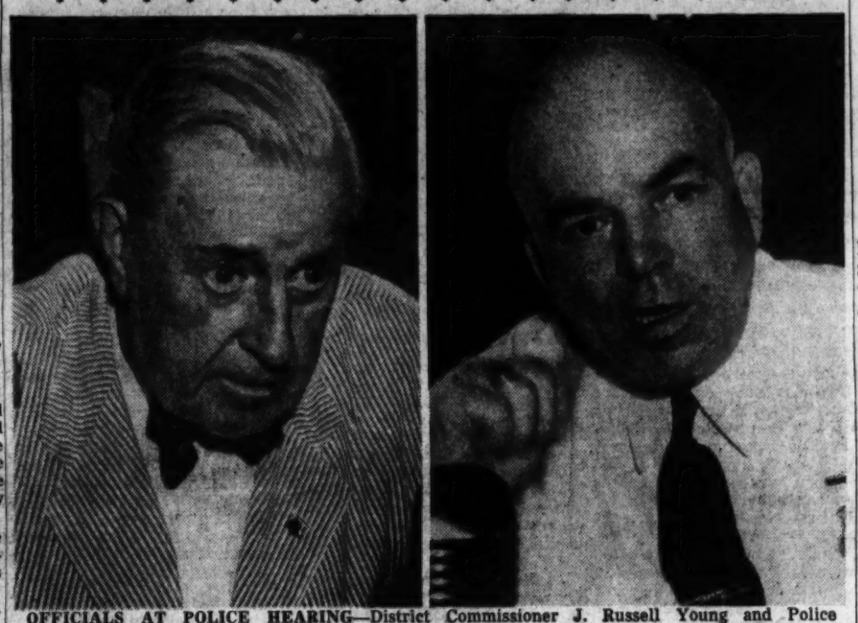
Police Conceal Crime Reports, Barrett Admits to Senate Unit; Young Is Criticized by Ball



OFFICIALS AT POLICE HEARING—District Commissioner J. Russell Young and Police Superintendent Robert J. Barrett as they testified yesterday at a special Senate District Subcommittee preliminary hearing into administration of the Police Department

D. C. Commissioners Have Done Little About Post Expose, He Acknowledges

By N. S. Haseltine
Post Reporter

(Text of Report, Page B-1)

Police Superintendent Robert J. Barrett yesterday admitted to a Senate District subcommittee that "many" robber, sex and "possibly other" crime complaints have been left out of official police records.

He also acknowledged the omissions were in violation of police regulations.

Barrett's admissions followed earlier ones by District Commissioner J. Russell Young that the District Commissioners had done virtually nothing about The Post expose of widespread pocketing of police complaints in the District.

The two were principal witnesses at a three-hour preliminary investigation conducted by the special subcommittee to collect information on which to base a full-scale probe of police administration in Washington. The information is needed for authorization of $25,000 to finance the study.

Inquiry Would Be Welcome

Both Superintendent Barrett and Commissioner Young said they'd welcome "expert advice" of investigators called into service if the Senate study is authorized.

"I would welcome such investigation," said Commissioner Young. "It wouldn't hurt and it might help."

"We all need advice and I welcome it," declared Superintendent Barrett. "But I don't think it's needed here."

Commissioner Young Criticized

Commissioner Young drew sharp criticism from Senator Joseph H. Ball (R., Minn.) a subcommittee member, when he admitted he investigated The Post expose only to the extent of asking Barrett to investigate the charges.

"Is that good investigative procedure, to ask a man responsible for abuses to investigate his own abuses?" asked Ball, sharply.

Commissioner Young made no reply.

Yesterday's hearing was opened by Senator J. Howard McGrath (D., R. I.) who first asked Committee Clerk George Stewart to read into the record preliminary documents.

The documents consisted of a letter sent by the subcommittee to four Washington newspapers and replies received. The letter, itself, asked the newspapers for any information they could supply pertinent to the hearing purpose.

Times-Herald Asks Delay

Stewart noted that no replies had been received from either The Washington Star or the Daily News.

The Times-Herald, Stewart said, answered. He read the reply, which stated that the newspaper "does not have any information in its files which would warrant an investigation of the Police Department at this time" and asked delay of such investigation "for six months, at least" because of Major Barrett's recent appointment as police superintendent.

Stewart then read into the record a reply from The Washington Post, which outlined its findings of the investigation of "pocketing" of crime complaints here.

The Post reported it discovered over 1350 robbery complaints had been made to the police depart-

Kem to Carry Fight To Floor for Inquiry Into Axtell Victory

By The Associated Press

By a one-vote margin the Senate Judiciary Committee decided yesterday against holding a full-dress investigation of allegations by Senator Kem (R., Mo.) that Attorney General Tom C. Clark soft-pedalled a Federal search for fraud in a 1946 Kansas City Democratic primary.

Kem immediately moved to counter the Judiciary Committee's adverse 7-to-6 vote against the proposed Justice Department inquiry. He filed a new resolution asking the Senate to discharge the committee from the matter and vote for the investigation anyway.

The primary involved was that in which President Truman, taking a direct hand, successfully opposed Representative Roger Slaughter for the Democratic nomination to Congress. Slaughter's reelection attempt was lost when Enos Axtell, supported by Mr. Truman, won the nomination only to lose the general election to a Republican, Representative Albert Reeves, jr.

A State grand jury returned 81 indictments against 71 individuals on May 27 in connection with the Slaughter-Axtell Democratic primary. Just last week a Federal grand jury indicted five persons.

"I'm going to fight this to a finish," Kem said in telling newsmen he hoped to get his discharge move to the Senate floor today.

Truman Sees Little Hope of DP Legislation

By the United Press

Congress got White House relief yesterday from much of the pressure for speed on international legislation.

Senator Vandenberg (R., Mich.) told reporters after a meeting of congressional leaders with President Truman that the Chief Executive had agreed:

1. That no special session of Congress need be held this fall unless some unexpected emergency arises.

2. That the legislative situation makes it "all but impossible" to get a measure through at this session in line with the President's proposal to admit 400,000 of Europe's war homeless to the United States.

There had been discussion of the possibility that the lawmakers might be called back for action on any plan for European reconstruction that may emerge from the present Paris conference on the Marshall plan.

Hopes to Adjourn July 26

Vandenberg said that if such a plan is developed the Senate Foreign Relations Committee which he heads "may be called back late in the year."

He reported, however, that the conferees took the view that no special session is "contemplated." He added that "of course the President would have to reserve the right to meet an unexpected necessity."

The Foreign Relations Committee, Vandenberg explained, would be expected to get legislation in shape for early action after Congress comes back in January for its regular meeting.

Congress now hopes to quit on July 26.

Vandenberg said Mr. Truman "brought up the urgency" of the displaced persons problem, on which the President has repeatedly urged action, but he added:

Further Discussion Planned

"It was mutually agreed that this is a situation which requires constant attention by Congress, but it was mutually recognized that there are extreme legislative difficulties making conclusive action at this session all but imposible.

"This matter will be further discussed between us to see what

Prices of Coal Soar Despite Truman's Plea

President Fears Inflation; More Boosts Expected

By Dillard Stokes
Post Reporter

Coal prices were rising yesterday in the face of a hold-the-line plea from President Truman.

More boosts are likely this week.

Mr. Truman said in a statement that it was widely feared that higher coal prices would push up the cost of goods and renew the spiral of inflation.

"This would be a serious blow to our enonomy and to the continuance of the present high level of production and employment," the President said, "but such a blow need not fall upon us."

$1.20 a Day Raise

To head off the blow, Mr. Truman asked both steel and coal producers not to raise their prices at all until they knew the effect of the new contract with the United Mine Workers.

The President said the contract gave the miners a raise of $1.20 a day—the same raise given by other big industries—but he recalled the statements of coal operators that the contract would offset some of the higher cost by boosting output. Mr. Truman said, too, that both coal and steel have been getting their full share of the high profits of the present era, so that they had little to lose by waiting to see what—if any price boost—they really needed because of the new wage contract.

Coal interests, however, already had made up their minds that they needed, or could get, more for their product.

Mines Determine Price

Coal prices in Washington depend on the mines that supply local dealers, most of whom expect an increase soon.

L. R. Potts, chairman of the coal division, Merchants and Manufacturers Association, said yesterday that prices here would be stable until the operators acted.

Toledo—Soft coal up $1.50 to $1.75 a ton.

Pittsburgh—Coal up $1 to $2,

Tydings Says Senate Group Tries to Discredit Perlman

By Mary Spargo
Post Reporter

Senator Millard Tydings (D., Md.) last night charged that the Senate Judiciary Subcommittee considering the nomination of Philip Perlman, Baltimore attorney, to be Solicitor General has gone as far afield as possible in an attempt to discredit the nominee.

Earlier, Tydings introduced a resolution in the Senate calling for discharge of the committee but said he would not press for action then in view of the possibility of hearings yesterday.

Chairman Homer Ferguson (R., Mich.) announced last night, however, that another hearing would be called today.

The committee opened yesterday's hearing at 5:30 p. m., recessed at 8 p. m. and resumed again at 9:15 p. m.

As the committee returned for the night session, Tydings commented, "with all due respect to my colleagues and to this committee, I really think we have gone as far afield in this matter as it is possible to go.

"I will tell you further," Tydings said, "and name times, places and persons that someone was sent to see lawyers in Baltimore to find out if they would testify against Perlman. In other words, to ask persons who had not been interested in opposing Mr. Perlman if they could not come here with some complaint against him."

As yesterday's hearing began, there were 216,000 words in the record. There were some 1176 pages in open session, and approximately 50 in closed sesion on the nomination made last January.

A large part of yesterday's session revolved around an alteration in the tax collector's book of Baltimore on the 1922 valuation of property owned by Joseph Kennedy. Kennedy was a client of Perlman. The Baltimore tax collector, John G. Barrett, and the Baltimore tax assessor, Frank Fitzgerald, were subpoened with the original records showing evaluation of the property reduced from $55,905 to $35,905, and subsequently corrected.

Perlman had previously testified that he had informed his client of the correct evaluation and his client had paid the tax on the $55,905.

Tydings interjected there had been no claim or charge that Perlman had anything to do with changing the record. He asked what relation this line of questioning had to do with Perlman's qualifications for the office of Solicitor General.

Perlman said the committee had been "antagonistic and hostile" from the very beginning.

The committee also delved into Montgomery County contracts with the Automatic Voting Machine Co., for which Perlman was counsel.

Because Perlman received one fee of $1579.50, which was just 5 per cent of one contract of $31,590, the committee apparently tried to show he was paid on a commission rather than a retainer basis.

However, on another Montgom-

Father, Son Burned When Boat Explodes at D. C. Yacht Club

A 65-year-old attorney and his 34-year-old son were critically burned yesterday in an explosion aboard their cabin cruiser at the Corinthian Yacht Club.

Both men, H. Winship Wheatley of 6215 43d st., Riverdale, and his son, Albert of 4303 Hamilton st., Hyattsville, were admitted to Emergency Hospital after treatment for third degree burns.

Witnesses said the two had been aboard only two or three minutes when the explosion occurred.

Police learned that the cruiser, a 41-foot craft called The Sequoia, had been "gassed up" Sunday or yesterday. Gas fumes had apparently collected in the bilge.

The explosion was believed to have occurred when an electric bilge pump was switched on, causing a spark to set off the fumes.

One of the witnesses, Francis Fragale, whose 45-foot cruiser, The Westwind, was moored on the opposite side of the dock at the yacht club, 3d and V sts, sw., said he heard an explosion, saw a blinding flash, and then the Wheatleys' cruiser was lifted three feet above the water.

Fragale said that he dragged the younger Wheatley onto the dock and tore off his flaming shirt.

Another boat-owner, D. T. Gardner, pulled the elder Wheatley from The Sequoia.

U. S. Weighing Plan To Assist Britain

Concession in Year-Old Loan Agreement Would Slow Drain on Dwindling Dollars

By Ferdinand Kuhn, Jr.
Post Reporter

A year after the Anglo-American loan agreement came into effect, American officials here are considering one concession which would slow up the drain on Britain's dollar resources.

This concession would enable the hard-pressed British to buy food and raw materials from their non-self, governing colonies without having to buy equivalent supplies in dollars from the United States. It would also enable the colonies to buy machinery, textiles and other British manufactured goods without having to pay dollars for similar American goods.

Article 9 of the loan agreement, which the two governments not to discriminate against imports of any product from the other country.

When Undersecretary of State Will Clayton was in London recently he told British leaders, according to informed sources, that this clause did not necessarily apply to trade between the United Kingdom and the colonies.

He did not commit the United States, but agreed to the start of negotiations which have now gone as far as the inter-departmental National Advisory Council, the highest Government body determining American foreign trade and lending policies.

If it is decided to treat the colonies and the United Kingdom as one under the loan agreement, it should help the British to conserve their fast-dwindling dollars.

Still Another Objection

A concession to the British on colonial trade will not, however, meet one of the chief British objections to the anti-discrimination clause in the American loan agreement. If the British want to save dollars by cutting their imports of fruit for example, from the United States and buying Australian or South African fruit instead, they cannot do it under the terms of the agreement.

If they stop all dollar purchases of fruit, to save dollars, they have to stop all imports of fruit no matter how much may be available to them in sterling countries. Anything else would be "discrimination" under the terms of the agreement.

The British have not yet made any official approach for revision of the nondiscrimination clause, but American officials expect such an approach by the end of the year. The British dollar position is becoming desperate, yet the British consumer is soa tightly rantioed now that a further general cut in imports would work serious and perhaps disastrous hardship.

Today it is just a year since the loan became effective, yet the British have already used $2,200,000,000 of the $3,750,000,000 approved by Congress.

By far the greatest proportion of these withdrawals have been used for food and raw materials simply to keep the British people fed and clothed. Of the total used in the last six months of last year, 32 per cent went for tobacco, 17 per cent for films and only 5 per cent for machinery to rehabilitate Britain's run-down industries.

Herbert Morrison, lord president of the council complained to the House of Commons last week that the British had asked for five million dollars from the United States in 1945, and had received only three quarters of this sum; also, he said, American price rises had reduced the purchasing power of the loan by 40 per cent.

Another Loan Unlikely

However, both Undersecretary Clayton and Commerce Secretary Harriman are reported to have warned the British in recent weeks that they cannot expect another American loan. Like other Europeans, the British will be eligible for help under the Marshall program if they first show that they can help themselves.

Today is the deadline beyond which the British must let sterling be freely convertible into dollars in current transactions. This means that a foreign supplier who is paid in sterling can get dollars instead if he wants them.

The agreement provides that the British can ask for postponement of the July 15 deadline, but, as reported in The Post on June 12, they have decided not to do so.

It will cost the British additional dollars, but it will also be taken abroad as a sign of their confidence in themselves.

Cripps Forsees Decision

Geneva, July 14 (AP).—Sir Stafford Cripps, president of the British Board of Trade, said today that "decision can and will be reached" on difference between the United States and the United Kingdom on the empire trade preferential system.

He told a news conference that he had conferred here with William L. Clayton, United States Undersecretary of State for Economic Affairs.

Loan Provision Met

London, July 14 (AP).—Britain will start tomorrow to pay for all the goods she orders from overseas in any currency her ceditors demand unde the "free convertibility" provision of the 1945 U. S. loan.

rass a lot of people who are contributing to high housing costs.

"I am not just talking about labor; I am also thinking about the engineers and surveyors, the architects, the building supply people, the lawyers, the public utility companies, and everybody else that has to do with this vexing problem."

Governor Gibson urged his fellow Governors to advocate a decentralization of home building in the future.

"Every State," he said, "should foster plans which will envisage the building of homes, not in urban areas, but out in the country where the home owner or renter can have a small piece of land on which he can raise some food, where he can keep a cow or two, where the green grass can tickle the bottom of his children's feet."

He said also that the Federal and State governments, if necessary, should subsidize the building of low-cost homes for deserving citizens, and do it promptly.

Huge Increase in Federal Aid

Gov. Thomas J. Herbert of Ohio told the conference that Federal grants to the States had been multiplied more than 180 times in the last 32 years—from about 5½ million dollars in 1915 to one billion dollars in 1947. He said this involved Federal controls over the exercise of State and local authority.

"I do not wish to be understood as opposing all Federal aid programs," Governor Herbert said. "But I do say the time has come when we must take careful inventory of the trend toward centralization of governmental functions in the Federal Government with accompanying subsidies to the States.

"Some of the State and local governments are able to do more than they are now doing to help themselves, especially in the fields of education, health and public welfare. They should be required to do so rather than join the procession which is always headed toward Washington for handouts."

Highway Safety Threatened

Gov. Beauford H. Jester of Texas, striking the same note in connection with highway safety, said that if the Federa. Government is forced to take control of highway traffic because of the paralysis or inertia of State and local government, "then democracy will have suffered its greatest reverse in the history of our land."

Steel Output Hits 91.5% of Capacity

New York, July 14 (AP).—The steel industry, scheduling operations this week at 91.5 per cent of capacity, equivalent to 1,601,200 net tons of production, has returned nearly to the levels prevailing before the coal shutdown, the American Iron and Steel Institute said today.

Operating rate this week compared with 78.9 per cent a week ago, equivalent to 1,380,700 tons. A month ago the rate was 98.5 per cent and output 1,676,400 tons, while a year ago operations at 87.9 per cent produced 1,549,100 tons.

Text of Marshall's Address to Governors

Salt Lake City, July 14 (AP).—The text of Secretary of State Marshall's address at the Governors' Conference here tonight follows:

I HAVE welcomed the opportunity to meet with you gentlemen again, but not the obligation to make a formal public statement. During the war years it was possible for me to talk off the record and also to discuss matters in a rather definite manner. I always felt that you not only gave me your confidence, but that the Army derived a very definite benefit from the more intimate knowledge of its problems that I felt free to communicate to you. I express again my appreciation of the support you gave me in those difficult days and the meticulous manner in which you respected by confidence.

I little thought in my last meeting with some of you, I believe at Mackinac Island, that I would return again in a totally different capacity and with problems and responsibilities that are in some respects much more difficult than those that were mine during the war. It is unnecessary to tell you gentlement that reestablishing the peace has its difficulties, or that it is necessary that I be very careful in what I say and when I say it.

If it had been practicable for me to talk to you off the record and in great confidence, there is much that I would like to discuss with you. However, I must confine myself to the necessities of the time and the occasion.

In accepting my new responsibilities, it is probably fortunate, though it did not seem so at the time, that I had little opportunity to go into all of the details concerned with the critical negotiations, discussions and actions in which I was soon to participate. Probably if I had had a full realization of the enormity of the task and its requirements, I would have suffered considerably in morale. As it is, I have reason to be really very grateful for the generous support which has been given me and the sympathetic understanding with which my various eorts have been regarded.

I WILL say right now that the greatest problem I feel we have to deal with is in bringing the American public to a general understanding of the conditions involved at home and abroad which influence all negotiations and therefore all efforts to reestablish the peace and prosperity of the world.

Prejudiced points of view are of course objectionable in all such matters, but it is very hard to avoid a degree of prejudice under real provocation, and particularly when one is remote from the scene of the difficulties. Also it is very difficult to reduce the problems to a simplicity of statement that is understandable to our citizens generally.

I can judge this, I think, rather accurately by my own difficulties when I first took up the burdens of preparation for the meetings in Moscow. That experience, incidentally, has guided my language to a considerable extent in the various public statements I have had to make. State papers and state pronouncements must be couched in diplomatic, at least dignified phraseology, and unless one is a master of the English language, such as Mr. Churchill, for example, it is very difficult to combine these requirements with the urgent necessity of making impressively clear to the ordinary citizen the matters under discussion.

These gatherings of the executive heads of the States on which our Government is founded are emphatic reminders of the functions of the States in our political life. That function has a special significance today when one considers the present world problems.

Thinking back on the developments of our Federal Union, on the doubts and difficulties which preceded the final union of the colonies, on the remarkable productive effort which followed on the solution of the early difficulties, and on the high degree to which the States have continued to maintain their own individual personality and Institutions, Americans should have a keen and sympathetic understanding for the efforts now under way in Europe to overcome the limitations of national barriers in the approach to a solution for common econmic problems. And his understanding will strongly influence, in fact will determine, the decisions which this country will be called upon to take with relation to the outcome of those discussions.

THERE is no blinking the fact that this country now stands at a turning point in its relations to its traditional friends among the nations of the old world. Either it must finish the task of assisting these countries to adjust themselves to the changed demands of a new age, or it must reconcile itself to seeing them move in directions which are consistent neither with their own traditions nor with those of this country.

In this latter case, the United States would be faced with a radical alteration of its own position in the world. I ask you to consider most carefully the implication of such a development for the future prosperity and security of our country.

There are many who are in doubt as to the course which this Nation should now pursue. They feel that the aid granted thus far to the countries of Europe has been piecemeal, and certainly not fully effective. And they wonder whether we are pursuing the right course.

These reactions are understandable. It is true that the efforts to put European countries back on their feet have thus far been largely to meet a series of crises and therefore of a somewhat disjointed character. It is also true that they have not accomplished all of the task which it was hoped they would accomplish. Though I think they have been far more beneficial than is generally realized.

The uncertainties of the immediate post-hostilities period were such that no one could have predicted accurately the course of developments or devised adequate, coordinated approaches to Europe's problems. An immense amount has been accomplished by what this country and others have already done to help Europe overcome the effects of this war. However, a great part of the problem of post-war adjustment in Europe still awaits solution.

No one clearly foresaw, and no one could have foreseen, the outlines and the magnitude of the problem while the smoke of battle still hung over the scene.

IT IS now possible to calculate more exactly the needs which must be met, and the sources from which they must be met, if this adjustment is to be completed. Furthermore, the urgent need for a carefully coordinated European effort is now widely recognized.

The meeting in Paris called at the initiative of the Foreign Ministers of France and Great Britain constitutes an auspicious beginning to the accomplishment of this task. The representatives of European countries there assembled deserve to feel that their work will be followed in this country with genuine sympathy and goodwill. For we are intimately concerned with the solution.

In Washington we are studying with the greatest of care the implications of the various possible solutions from the standpoint of the interests of the United States. But whatever course is adopted will affect the lives and fortunes of people in every State of the Union.

It is imperative that the attitude taken by our Government toward this problem, as in all great questions of foreign affairs, be in intimate accord with the feeling of the Nation at large. To make up its mind, this country will need facts. One result of the meeting being held in Paris and of the studies now being made by the governors will be to bring out all the facts. With the facts before them, I am confident of the response of the American people.

With your help I feel it will be possible for our Government to find a course of action fully consistent with our own national interests and yet equally considerate of the incalculable stake which this country has in the preservation of European civilization.

U. S. Court Orders Cotton Belt Return To Private Control

St. Louis, July 14 (AP).—United States District Judge George H. Moore ordered the St. Louis-Southwestern (Cotton Belt) Railroad restored to private control July 24.

The court's order terminating the railroad's 12-year-old reorganization proceeding followed preliminary approval of the dismissal plan by the Interstate Commerce Commission. The ICC order is expected to be made final this week.

The only objection to termination of the bankruptcy was made by counsel in behalf of Walter E. Meyer of New York, minority stockholder and bondholders' representative.

The 1575-mile railroad's main line runs between St. Louis and Waco and Dallas, Tex. Its main branch line operates over Rock Island tracks betwen Memphis and Brinkley, Ark. Freight traffic accounts for about 90 per cent of the railroad's revenue.

Asset Value Declines

Combined net asset value as of June 30, 1947, of United States Foreign Securities Corporation and its affiliate, United States and International Securities Corporation, amounted to approximately $68,630,270, according to the semi-annual reports of the companies issued today. This compares with a combined net asset valuation of $70,676,107 as of December 31, 1946.

Celebrating Centennial

He found Salt Lake City gay with flags and bunting and celebrating the centennial of the Mormons' great trek across the plains and mountains, which ended when old Brigham Young looked down on this valley in the Rockies and said, "This is the place." In the throngs that watched for Marshall's arrival were young men wearing centennial whiskers—chin shrubbery such as their Mormon great-grandfathers had as they came through Immigration Canyon.

Secretary Marshall was cheered as he walked through the lobby of the Utah Hotel and cheered again when Gov. Herbert B. Maw of Utah took him into the ballroom and introduced him to the assembled Governors.

The speech tonight was Marshall's first opportunity to try lining up the Nation behind the Government's plan to rescue Europe from economic paralysis.

Says Americans Understand

After recalling this country's own efforts to solve its early difficulties and preserve its institutions, he said:

"Americans should have a keen and sympathetic understanding for the efforts now under way in Europe to overcome the limitations of national barriers in the approach to a solution for common economic barriers.

"And their understanding will strongly influence, in fact will determine, the decisions which this country will be called upon to take with relation to the outcome of these discussions."

He said that whatever plan is adopted for Europe's salvation will "effect the lives and fortunes of people in every State of the Union."

Secretary Marshall said that this country had "an incalculable stake in the preservation of European civilization," and he expressed confidence that the American people, once they know the facts, will back the Government's plan.

Australia Not to Seek Dollar Loan Before '52

Canberra, July 14 (AP).—Prime Minister J. B. Chifley announced today that Australia would not operate further in the New York loan market before 1952.

The Prime Minister said in a statement that although conversion operations in August and December, 1946, and February, 1947, were "highly successful," the offering of 38 million dollars launched in July, 1947, was not sold promptly mainly because of the disturbed international situation.

Underwriters were left with two million dollars of short-term and $6,500,000 of long-term bonds when the loan closed July 8, he added.

Stock Exchange Seat Advances to $66,000

New York, July 14 (AP).—Arrangements have been made for sale of a New York Stock Exchange membership at $66,000, up $2000 from the last previous sale on July 11.

The price in today's transfer was the highest reported since sale of an exchange seat for $68,000 last March 11.

Poles Fear Rebuilding Of Germany

London, July 14 (AP).—An official Polish spokesman charged today that one of the chief aims of the Paris conference on United States aid to Europe was reconstruction of Germany, which might restore her prewar dominance over her neighbors.

Explaining Poland's refusal to participate at Paris, the spokesman also charged that the conference:

1. Was "an attempt o break the decisions laid down at Potsdam and the unity of the Big Four powers."

2. Threatened existing bilateral economic pacts. Poland, he said, might have been required to cancel agreements with Czechoslovakia and Yugoslavia if she had agreed to come in under the Marshall Plan.

3. Was "set up in advance and would be more or less a rubber stamp."

The spokesman made public the text of Poland's note rejecting the conference invitation. It said the conference "shows a tendency to return to the prewar economic structure of Europe, with emphasis being placed on the dominating role and specific weight of Germany, which would unavoidably lead to strengthening the sources of German imperialism."

The statement aroused stormy protests from British and French correspondents, who demanded that the spokesman "give evidence" to support the charge.

Greece Reports New Invasion

after an emergency meeting of Premier Demetrois Maximos and heads of his three defense ministries—war, air and navy. Deputy Chief of Staff General Tsakalotos also attended.

'International Brigade' Discounted

Existence of an "International Brigade" was discounted as a "rumor," but the announcement said "there are foreign elements among the invaders."

The information concerning the newest action was received in a telephone call to Minister of War George Stratos from Gen. Napoleon Zervas, minister of public order, who flew to Ioannina.

It was learned that the bulk of army reinforcements had been routed through Ioannina, and that strong concentrations of forces were there now.

There were no reports that light tanks or armored vehicles had been used in the Konitsa fighting.

Use of air power near the Albanian frontier has been restricted by bath weather. However, light and heavy artillery pieces have been utilized.

A usually well informed source said the cabinet discussed whether help could be expected from abroad in case of an extreme emergency.

[The United Press said the cabinet was considering a plan to outlaw the Communist party.]

Widespread Arrests in Athens

Here in Athens, police and troops arrested 1200 to 1500 persons during the night. This brought the total arrests to more than 4000 since an alleged plot to seize control of Greece's largest cities announced last week.

(In London, government informants said Britain was "concerned" over the wholesale arrests. The informants said the Greek government appeared to have been motivated by bitterness rather than restraint.)

(An Associated Press dispatch from Belgrade, Yugoslavia, quoted Premier Enver Hoxha of Albania as saying that Greek-Albania border incidents were part of a plan by British-American "reactionaries whose aim is to bring about a new war, recommended by Truman's doctrine."

(The accusation was made by Hoxha at the opening of the National Assembly in the Albanian capital.

(Hoxha also said the government possessed documents proving that certain British and American representatives had plotted to overthrow his Communists-dominated regime.

Hoxha Reported in Moscow

(The Moscow radio reported that Hoxha had arrived in the Russian capital for conferences and was met at the airport by Foreign Minister V. M. Molotov.)

Meanwhile, a subcommittee team of the United Nations Balkans' Investigating Commission left Salonika by plane for Ioannina, 25 miles south of Konitsa, to conduct an on-the-spot investigation.

The team was composed of representatives of the United States, Russia, Brazil, Australia and Syria.

The subcommittee decided to make the investigation after receiving a Greek note charging that an "international brigade" had invaded Greece and that the act was a "flagrant violation of Greek territory, which constitutes unprovoked aggression on the part of Albania."

U. N. Action Urged

Lake Success, July 14 (AP).—Vassili Dendramis, Greek Ambassador to the United States, requested today that the United Nations Security Council "do everything possible to hasten action" on recommendations of its Balkans investigation commission in view of "drastically more serious" conditions of the Greek-Albanian border.

In an urgent letter to the president of the Security Council, Dendramis said his government had instructed him to report that "strong and well-armed hostile forces invaded Greek territory from Albania yesterday morning, July 13," and beseiged the town of Konitsa.

"Furthermore," he wrote, "it is known that to the northwest of Konitsa, in the vicinity of the border on Albanian soil, supplies and medical services are concentrated as well as substantial forces including units of an international brigade of irregulars and Communists."

Act to Implement Marshall Plan For European Aid

By Joseph E. Dynan

Paris, July 14 (AP).—The Economic Conference's rules committee, swiftly and unanimously approving a final draft to implement the Marshall program, today named Britain, France, Italy, Norway and Holland to the key executive committee for European reconstruction.

The committee also agreed on the membership of four technical subcommittees which will supervise continental cooperation. Britain and France will be represented on all of the sub-groups.

The committees will be presented tomorrow, for formal indorsement at the third plenary session of the conference. French sources said tomorrow's meeting would be the last plenary session until late August, when the committee work is completed.

The target date for reporting to the United States on the amount of Europe's resources and the needs for American assistance is September 1.

Under the approved setup, the five-nation executive committee would stand at the apex of the new international economic organization, representing the 16 western and southern European nations attending the conference. Russia and eight of her satellites are not present.

The membership of the four technical subcommittees:

Food and agriculture—France, Britain, Denmark, Greece, Eire, Iceland, Italy and Holland.

Steel and iron industries—France, Britain, Luxembourg, Norway and Turkey.

Transport—France, Britain, Belgium, Norway, Portugal, Switzerland and Turkey.

16 Nations Represented

All 16 nations are represented on the economic organization's steering committee, approved yesterday at the second plenary session. The steering group will have general supervisory authority over the executive committee's decisions.

The rules committee voted to establish an international general secretariat for economic cooperation under Claude Bouchinet-Serreulles of France. The secretariat will begin its work Wednesday in the Grand Palais, large exposition hall in the center of Paris.

The absence of Sweden from the executive committee and from all but one of the technical committees aroused speculation over whether this was an indication of Swedish reserve toward the new economic organization.

Sweden was not on the steel and iron industries committee although steel is one of Sweden's main industries. She was on the fuel and power group.

Dutch sources, meanwhile, indicated that the Lowlands would press for inclusion of western Germany in the recovery program.

Continued Russian interest in the proceedings was evident both in Paris and Moscow.

Wheat, Coal Basic Needs

Rome, July 14 (AP).—U. S. Secretary of Commerce W. Averell Harriman told a news conference today his survey of European economic problems indicated "they all boil down to wheat and coal."

Harriman, who said his trip to Europe was planned before the Marshall proposal was made, flew to Rome yesterday from London at the invitation of Ambassador James C. Dunn.

"America is most anxious to help Italy," Harriman said.

He said information he took home with him would naturally be used in assessing "any proposals" made to the United States as a result of the Paris Economic Conference.

Rakosi Warns Freedom Party Hungary Has 'Iron Fist' Ready

Budapest, Hungary, July 14 (U.P.) Communist Vice Premier Matyas Rakosi warned in a speech yesterday that the government "will beat down with an iron fist" any attempts of Dezso Sulyok's Freedom Party to sabotage "democratic Hungarian laws."

Rakosi charged that reactionaries were using arson as a weapon to "prevent the development of Hungarian democracy," but he did not connect the Freedom Party with a reported large number of recent fires.

"Another organized group is attacking our reconstruction by setting fire to most important agricultural factories, tramway yards and shipyards," he said.

[A Budapest source reported to the Associated Press that Russian occupation authorities in Hungary had ordered the Hungarian government to produce immediately 120 railway trains—enough to carry 40,000 infantry troops—for the transportation of Russian soldiers from east to west inside Hungary. There was no elaboration on why such a movement was being undertaken.]

Italian Navy Units Make Summer Cruise

Taranto, Italy, July 14 (U.P.)—Big units of the Italian Navy steamed out of Taranto Naval Basin today for their first summer cruise since the September 1943 armistice. They will train in the waters where United States Mediterranean fleet units are operating.

Led by the 23,000-ton battleship Builio, the training fleet included two cruisers, four destroyers, three torpedo boats and four corvettes.

Stassen Demands U. S. Put End to Communist Infiltration

noted that 40 per cent of the known enrolled Communist members were now in New York.

Background for Stassen's first thrust at Dewey was a major radio speech appealing for prompt action on the domestic subversive front but urging that we "not abandon" Europe's eight Satellite states.

Stassen went on record foursquarely against proposals within his own party to bar all future American aid to the European Nations declining to participate in Paris conferences on the Marshall plan.

Indorsing the Marshall plan as "good news," he said it would be "a major world tragedy" if we turned our backs on the eight nations Russia influenced not to take part in the talks.

Instead, he said we should immediately make plain that they won't be abandoned—that under proper conditions we shall still extend them desperately needed economic assistance.

He said none of the eight countries was entirely collectivized as yet, and the people in them "do not wish to move toward a complete, socialized, regimented economy." He said the probability of future help should be held out to them. He suggested these conditions: Free press and radio reporting, assurance our aid reach those for whom intended, and that none of it be used "to clamp down additional socialism upon them."

Puts Paris Parley First

Stassen stressed, however, that the successof the Paris conference should be our "first priority."

He proposed that the President immediately confer with leaders of both parties in Congress on a half-billion dollar advance authorization, to enable the appropriate agency to place advance orders for critically needed goods.

He said this would permit American manufacturers to expand their production of such needed items as coal-mining machinery and equipment, farm implements, hydro-electric installations, and transportation facilities.

Leading up to his spot focus on Communist activity in New York, Stassen said Russia's all-powerful Politburo, including Generalissimo Stalin with whom he talked this spring, need to be convinced of two things before relations with Russia will improve:

1. That our own economic system can continue to function with high production and living standards without a major economic crash and depression.

2. That the Communist Party "cannot successfully infiltrate and dominate or sabotage this country or any other one of the major powers of the world."

"If they become convinced of these two things," said Stassen, "both of which I am confident are true; and if at the time they reach that decision America is strong and resolute in its military position; then I believe there is grounds for hope of a major favorable change in Russian policies . . ."

Putting his finger on New York, he said Communist Party headquarters were there, their chief publication was located there, a high percentage of its paid membership was there and "most of the serious inroads in organized labor by the Communist Party stems from New York."

"What is needed and needed badly," he said, "is a vigorous, coordinated and comprehensive bipartisan program developed and put into effect through the cooperation" of the Federal and New York administrations.

Recalls Minnesota Success

Recalling that Minnesota was "one of the centers of Communist activity" before his first gubernatorial term, he said:

"Our Republican Party took a direct position in that first campaign of November, 1938, that we would clear them out, would not permit them on public payrolls, and constructively would seek the cooperation of the working people to decrease their influence.

"With the cooperation of Federal and local governments we were able to make a sharp change in their whole disruptive practices in labor and in political and social events. The third political party was defeated and eliminated.

"Within a few years, with the active assistance of the loyal organized labor men of the State and an alert citizenry, the situation was greatly improved and now for years Minnesota has had less than her share of the national Communist difficulties."

He proposed these steps to combat Communist infiltration:

1. "Expose thoroughly the identity of all known Communists and fellow travelers, and give the exact evidence of their connection." He said that some newspapers have made an excellent start.

Insist Reds Stand Up

2. "Insist that they stand up and be counted. . . that they do not hide behind false fronts, false issues.

3. "Prosecute them vigorously for their violations of law, making certain that the people understand the nature of the violation so they are not made martyrs.

4. "Meet the issues raised by the Communists squarely, through frank discussion on the merits. Move continually to correct evils which they point out in our American social, economic or political rights.

5. "Do not lightly use the charge of 'Communist' against anyone unless we are certain of the evidence. Then present the evidence with the charge.

6. "None of them should be permitted on public payrolls.

7. "Urge private citizens to refuse to associate with Communists in organizations." Stassen said private citizens should insist that Communists either be expelled to form organizations of their own, or else the citizens themselves should withdraw and label the organization a Communist front.

8. "See to it that labor union members can vote by secret ballot for their officers.

9. "Take all action with complete respect for civil liberties and for legal rights."

Even while Stassen urged the United States not to turn its back on European Satellite states, a GOP drive started in Congress to quarantine them from future American help.

1. Representative Everett M. Dirksen (R., Ill.) announced he would introduce legislation to deny aid to foreign countries which failed to cooperate in the Marshall plan. He said he would offer his plan as an amendment to an appropriation bill providing funds for foreign aid projects.

2. Representative John W. Byrnes (R., Wis.) released a letter he had written the President urging an executive order ban relief assistance to countries which boycott the Paris conference.

3. Senate Appropriations Chairman Styles Bridges (R., N. H.) declared: "I am unalterably against granting any money whatever to Russia and her puppets unless the puppets escape the Iron Curtain and go along with the Marshall plan."

Builders See New Plastics At Luncheon

FRANK STEINER of 3403 Tilton st., Brentwood, Md., a waiter at the Hotel Mayflower, is shown squeezing dry a plastic bottle, one of the many plastic products exhibited at the luncheon of the Washington Building Congress. The bottle will not break, if dropped. Kingsley W. Given of the plastics plant of the General Electric at Pittsfield, Mass., presented the demonstration

What these chemists won't think of next!

That's what members of the Washington Building Congress, were muttering to themselves after their luncheon meetng at the Hotel Mayflower yesterday. They had seen a brief demonstration of modern plastics by Kingsley W. Given, General Electric Co. showman from Pittsfield, Mass.

The industrial magician showed the builders some "putty" the likes of whch they never used in building a house—we hope. When he stretched it, it was just like taffy. When he snapped a piece of it, it broke in two like peanut brittle. When he squeezed it together again and made it round, it bounced from the floor like a tennis ball. And when he spread it out to cover an ashtray, it sank limply and draped itself like a watch in a Dali painting.

The putty is used in some veterans hospitals to rebuild paralyzed hands and wrists through "kneading" exercises.

For those who have some favorite beverage that's good to the last drop, Given had a plastic bottle which they could literally "squeeze dry." It was so flexible that you could push the sides in till they touched, yet it regained its round shape by itself in a few seconds. Dropped, it would bounce almost as high as the GE "putty." That's polyethylene for you.

But, cautioned the plastics booster after showing the builders dozens of other magic wares, don't go overboard on all new products. The public's imagination, he pointed out, has been stretched by many "absurd and distorted stories." Plastics should be used if they will do the same job as another material for less money, he said, if they'll do a better job for the same money, or when no other material will do it right.

Russo-Iranian Oil Company Plan Facing Defeat

Teheran, July 14 (AP).—A spokesman for the Iranian foreign office said today defeat was "certain" for the proposed Russo-Iranian oil company when it comes before the parliament, which will convene Thursday.

Instead of the oil pact, the chief issue before the parliament was expected to be foreign credit for public improvements. "We are asking a 250-million-dollar loan from the International Bank, of which we are a member," said a cabinet member. "We propose to liquidate that debt in 35 years from oil royalties."

President Sees Little Hope Of Legislation Now on DPs

can be done about it in the future."

Vandenberg said the only discussion of the proposal by Secretary of State Marshall for American aid in European cooperative self-help was in connection with Congress' adjournment plans.

Mr. Truman, Vandenberg said, did not bring up the question of appropriations now pending for other foreign programs, including 400 million dollars to help Greece and Turkey fend off Communist encroachment and 350 million dollars for general foreign aid.

Vandenberg said the President told the legislative leaders of his appreciation of the usefulness of his frequent meetings with them. He quoted Mr. Truman as pointing out that 20 of 26 legislative priority requests he has made of the lawmakers "have been fully met, with at least one more on the way."

Minimum Wage Bill Pushed

The Senator said the measure described as "on the way" may be the one to boost the national minimum wage from 40 to 60 cents an hour. The Republican leadership recently has been pushing that bill.

Vandenberg's report that the President had nothing to say about foreign appropriations came as something of a surprise. Advance speculation had been that he might plead against any heavy cuts.

There have been rumblings against the size of the bills, and discontent over the fact that some of the relief money is earmarked for nations which have boycotted the European relief conference along with Russia.

There also had been discussion of a possibility that new White House pressure might be put behind the displaced persons plan. Mr. Truman asked for action in a special message only last Monday.

Stamp Racket Charged Against Several Nations

Cleveland, July 14 (AP).—Donald F. Lybarger, president of the Aemrican Philatelic Society, declared today that several nations had sold virtually all of their President Roosevelt commemorative stamps to one or two wholesalers, causing stamp collectors to be overcharged hundreds of thousands of dollars.

He named Nicaragua, San Marino, Liberia, Ethiopia and Hungary as countries and asked collectors to boycott them and the wholesalers.

Lybarger said two air mail stamps issued by Nicaragua ostensibly in memory of the late President had a face value of 60 cents and $1 in American money, but were offered to collectors at $20.

"It is unconscionable," he added, "for any government to issue commemorative stamps in such small quantities as to make it impossible for all interested stamp collectors to obtain copies of same, and to include in the set, stamps of high denominations not demanded for actual postal use."

2 Sergeants Freed on Bond In Atom Case

Chicago, July 14 (AP).—The GI's love of souvenirs was raised as a defense today when two former Army sergeants pleaded innocent in preliminary hearings at Chicago and Pittsburgh to Federal charges of removing top secret records from the Los Alamos, N. Mex., atom bomb plant.

Neither Earnest D. Wallis, 24, of Chicago, nor Alexander von der Luft, 23, of Mount Lebanon, Pa., testified. However, their attorneys contended they meant "no harm" and were motivated only by the "soldier's love for souvenirs in taking the records."

In Chicago, U. S. Attorney Otto Kerner, jr., said there was "no indication from information we have" that any of the atom bomb negatives or photographs Wallis is accused of taking from Los Alamos more than a year ago had found their way into foreign hands.

Wallis' wife, Sylvia, 28, disclosed, meanwhile, that one of her husband's photographs of an atom bomb explosion had been on public display for more than a month at the Chicago Women's Club. A spokesman at the club, who declined to permit use of her name, said the photograph was one of 20 in a Wallis exhibit and that it showed the size of an atom bomb explosion as compared with the height of the Empire State Building. She said the exhibit was accepted at the request of a friend of Wallis.

Later, Wallis said the photograph was one of a group officially released by the Government.

Wallis was released on $10,000 bond posted by his immediate family and a friend of the family, Fred Adams, an investment counselor, who signed the bond. His case was continued to July 28 by United States Commissioner Edwin K. Walker.

Cooperated With FBI in May

The former G. I. told newsmen through his attorney, Julius Schwartz, that "I am not guilty and I will prove it when the occasion arises." He added:

"I will submit willingly to a lie detector or any other type of test to prove my innocence. I am as confused over these charges as anyone else. My sudden arrest by the FBI was a complete surprise. When the FBI came to me last May I cooperated fully, giving up records, photographs and negatives."

Adams, who signed Wallis' bond, told newsmen he thought Wallis was "being persecuted and imposed upon unduly." There is something going on in Washington, Adams added, "and the Attorney General couldn't get action against anyone there, so he took action against somebody here."

"What's become of the Bill of Rights?" Adams asked.

At Pittsburgh, Von der Luft was freed on $10,000 bond by U. S. Commissioner Roger Knox.

Red Proposal To Junk Bomb Hits U. N. Snag

Lake Success, July 14 (AP).—The United Nations Atomic Energy Commission today postponed a vote on Russia's proposal for destruction of all atomic weapons after bogging down over the issue of when.

Soviet Deputy Foreign Minister Andrei A. Gromyko fought unsuccessfully for a ballot on the principle of destroying the bombs and even agreed to leave open the question of time.

Meets Again Thursday

Other delegates insisted that any such formal resolution should provide that the bombs would be dismantled only when a stage had been reached when atomic control and safeguards machinery was considered effective (the original American (Baruch) plan.)

The committee will meet again Thursday and Gromyko said he would insist the delegates go on record.

These Really Are Poor Fish

APPARENTLY STRANGLED—Hundreds of dead fish have been washed up on the shore of the Virginia side of the Potomac River 5 miles south of Alexandria. Authorities say that lack of oxygen is strangling the fish

Thousands of Menhaden Die In Polluted Potomac Waters

Salt water fish, which didn't know when they were well off in the cool, clean briny, are smothering to death in the Potomac.

Suffering from first stages of the same ailment are picnic parties who get to windward of the dead fish washed up along the shores along Mt. Vernon Highway.

Described as menhaden, a four-inch cousin of the shad, the fish are dying from lack of oxygen, reduction in salinity of the water due to heavy rains and Potomac pollution. The menhaden are not a food fish, but comprise a great East-coast industry for oil, meal and fertilizer.

The fishery biology section of the Fish and Wildlife Service knows no reason for vast schools of them being this far inland, although they did describe it as "not unusual."

No investigation by the Fish and Wildlife Service has been authorized, but the Maryland Department of Tidewater Fisheries had a probe under way yesterday. Some dead perch were seen among the thousands washed ashore.

Harold A. Kemp, director of the District's sanitary engineering and a member of the Potomac River Commission, named pollution as one of the primary causes and added:

"Nothing can be done about it until we get the money to get additional sewage facilities for Washington." He reiterated that the plant was built for a top capacity of 650,000 residents; now handles waste from a million.

Civil Workers In France Vote No Strike Now

Paris, July 14.—The threat of an immediate general strike of French civil service workers ended tonight as union leaders voted to submit their wage demands directly to the National Assembly in the face of Premier Paul Ramadier's refusal to back down from his final compromise offer.

Twelve hours before the walkout of 1,200,000 state employes was scheduled to begin, the unionists voted 28 to 24 against an immediate strike, with eight abstentions.

It was leaned that the Postal Federation, heavy with Communist leadership, supported the anti-strike policy.

Elks Crowd Portland For 83d Convention

Portland, Oreg., July 14 (AP).—This city overflowed today with drill teams, uniformed song groups, and purple-capped visitors here for the eighty-third annual convention of the Benevolent and Protective Order of Elks.

Twenty-five thousand visitors were expected here. Among the key arrivals today was James Farley, former Postmaster General, who predicted that President Truman would be renominated by the Democrats and then added that he was here—not for politics—but just "to see the fun."

The Elks will elect officers tomorrow morning, and climax the convention with a formal parade Thursday.

House Vacancy Rate in Capital Area Only .4%

Although 100,000 new dwelling units have been added to the Washington metropolitan area since 1940, the housing shortage is still so acute that the average rate of vacancies is only four tenths of 1 per cent.

These figures were revealed yesterday in a housing report issued by the Department of Commerce, based on a survey conducted in April by the Bureau of the Census.

The report covers a metropolitan area bounded generally by Rockville, Laurel, Bowie, and Oxon Hill in Maryland, and by Alexandria and Fairfax in Virginia.

In addition to the total habitable vacancy figure of four tenths of 1 per cent, however, the total units awaiting occupancy, held off the market for "various" reasons, and unhabitable, brought the gross number now vacant up to 1.3 per cent.

Also indicative of the housing pinch is the fact that of the 353,000 dwelling units now available, 1700 were "other dwelling places," such as trailers, tourist cabins, and shacks. And as of last April, about 6 per cent of the ordinary dwelling units were in need of major repairs, as compared with only 4 per cent in 1940.

The increase in rents is also indicated. The median monthly rent of tenant-occupied dwelling units went up from $41 in 1940 to about $50 seven years later. Over the same period, the number of units renting for less than $20 dropped from 15,000 to 8000. In 1940, fewer than 47,000 units rented for more than $50; in 1947 the figure had gone up to about 104,000 units.

Handless Star To Help Show Disabled Aids

Harold Russell, handless former GI star of "The Best Years of Our Lives," will assist Veterans' Administration officials in explaining devices for the disabled at an exhibit which opens tomorrow.

The collection of almost 1000 artificial arms, legs, hearing aids and aids for the blind which will be exhibited was completed after more than a year's work. Ninty-five per cent of the items were contributed by the prosthetic device industry, at no cost to the Government.

With the collection, VA specialists will be able to analyze different devices and guide disabled veterans in selecting those best suited to their needs. In addition, it should prevent duplication in research by providing a central display of past developments.

The permanent exhibit may be seen in room 890, VA building, Vermont and H nw., from 9 to 5 tomorrow and from 10 to 4 Mondays through Fridays after that.

Senate Passes Tax Cut Again

nity property State laws, was finally rejected, 52 to 40.

Senate Finance Chairman Eugene D. Millikin (R., Colo.), however, assured the Senate the McClellan proposal will be considered in an over-all tax revision bill next year. The House Ways and Means Committee recently voted unanimously to include the community property tax split in the next over-all bill.

Millikin argued the community property proposal would add 750 million dollars to the four billion cost of the bill and greatly increase the "already generous cuts" granted middle bracket taxpayers.

Kilgore Offers Substitute

Senator Harley M. Kilgore (D., W. Va.) later offered the amendment as a complete substitute for the Knutson bill, but was defeated by a voice vote.

Other amendments rejected:

By Senator McClellan, legalizing family partnerships for tax purposes. Defeated 61 to 25.

By Senator Glen H. Taylor (D., Idaho), removing the tax on trailer homes. Defeated, voice vote.

Rome Typhoid Cases Traced to Ice Cream

Rome, July 14 (AP).—Prof. Giuseppi Caramarossa, head of Rome Public Hygiene Office, said today that a "few" cases of para-typhoid B had been reported in Rome and had been traced to ice cream.

The cases all are limited to the San Ciovanni quarter and are of a "benign" type, Caramarossa said. He declared there had been no deaths.

U. S. Won't Need Oil Imports, Says Interior Official

By The Associated Press

Max Ball, Interior Department official, said yesterday he does not foresee any time when this country will have to depend upon oil imports.

Ball, who is director of the oil and gas division, told a Senate Public Lands subcommittee that synthetic fuels can be made which will take care of any deficiency if petroleum reserves are used up. He said:

"Including all sources of synthetic fuels, we can beyond question fill oil our needs in the foreseeable future over a very, very long period of time and I am speaking now of hundrers of years."

He told the committee ,however, that he does not expect new petroleum reserves to be discovered at a rate fast enough to keep up with an increasing demand. The deficiency, Ball said, will have to be made up with synthetics made from oil, shale, coal, and natural gas.

He testified that it may be more economical to import petroleum than to use synthetics.

S. C. Hamilton of New Mexico, veteran agent for the voting machine company, was one of the witnesses on the contracts. When Ferguson asked Hamilton how old he was, Hamilton replied, "I'm 76, and Senator, you can take 5 per cent of that and make something out of that, I guess."

Gael Sullivan Gets $100 Fine; Driving Charge Reduced

South Kingston, R. I., July 14 (AP).—Gael Sullivan, 42, vice chairman and executive director of the Democratic National Committee, today was fined $100 and costs on a charge of dangerous driving the night of July 3.

After he pleaded innocent to a charge of driving under the influence of liquor. The charge was reduced to dangerous driving. He did not contest this lesser charge.

Town solicitor S. T. Hinman said the charge was reduced because the rookie policeman who arrested Sullivan after his car crashed with another machine, failed to inform Sullivan of his legal right to be examined for sobriety by a physician of his own choosing.

Ga. Warden Sober, Investigator Says

Atlanta, July 14 (AP).—A State investigator said today he did not believe Warden W. G. Worthy was drunk or had "been drinking" when he opened fire with a pistol in last Friday's mass convict escape attempt at Brunswick, Ga., in which seven prisoners were shot to death.

J. B. Hatchett, assistant director of the State department of corrections, said his investigation at the scene indicated Warden Worthy's actions were those of "a sober man trying to deal with a difficult situation."

Largest Plane Runway Nearing Completion

Dayton, Ohio, July 14 (AP).—The world's largest concrete runway and taxiway, designed especially for XB-36 and XB-35 superbombers, is nearing completion at nearby Patterson Field, officers reported today.

The 10,000-foot-long runway is expected to be completed by early fall. The runway is 150 feet wide and 21 inches thick. The taxiway is 150 feet wide. A total of 462,901 barrels of cement will be used.

Filth Fly Held Carrier of Polio Germ at Pediatric Parley

New York, July 14 (U.P.).—New evidence pointing a finger at the filth fly as a carrier of infantile paralysis was presented today at the opening of the fifth International Congress of Pediatrics.

Dr. Robert Ward, of New York University, disclosed that incriminating evidence against the fly had come from at least nine communities. The new reports indicate that the filth fly—the large sized variety found around filth or stables—carries the poliomyelitis virus.

Evidence Not Convincing

Dr. Ward emphasized that evidence is not convincing that flies carry the virus.

In these new studies the flies were permitted to feed on human waste. Their bodies, ground into a powder, were used in the inoculation of monkeys. The monkeys soon came down with polio.

The filth fly also fed on waste and then on a sliced banana. Two normal chimpanzees fed the contaminated fruit, did not contract polio but a solution made from their waste was injected into monkeys, who caught polio.

Premature Babies Aided

The congress also saw an exhibit on use of the male sex hormone to save premature babies. It is just as good for girls as boys. It worked wonders on the weight of these underdeveloped and undersized infants.

The sex hormone work was shown by doctors E. Kost Shelton, Arthur E. Vorden and Jerome S. Mark, of the Los Angeles General Hospital.

The hormone, testosterone, a synthetic substance, was previously known to increase the muscular strength of men. It was found to do the same thing for premature babies. Furthermore, said the report, it caused the babies to grow, just as if it were a growth hormone.

3 Pineapple Strike Pickets Are Wounded

Honolulu, July 14 (AP).—Three pickets were wounded slightly by shotgun fire at the plantation village of Wahiawa, 20 miles from here today as the four-day-old CIO strike against pineapple producers threatened to spread to other major industries.

The strikers, members of the International Longshoremen's and Warehousemen's Union, called a meeting of leaders of other ILWU units, notably sugar workers and stevedores, to request "full and immediate support." Robert McElrath, ILWU territorial representative, said, "No group of silk-draped hussies is going to put over an employers' lockout." The union demands an increase from 80 to 90 cents an hour, retroactive to February 1.

He referred to the fact that executives, their wives and many women office employes of the Hawaiian Pineapple Co., one of eight struck canneries, picked 527 tons of pineapple Sunday.

When these volunteers appeared at the plantations in buses under police escort, 96 pickets were arrested in the Wahiawa area on charges of obstructing the highways. Bonds of $15 were set. The companies estimate a 40-million-dollar crop is in danger of spoiling in the fields.

The wounding of three pickets occurred this morning in the same locality. The Employers Council said the California Packing Corp. plantation manager reported a field supervisor fired from a window after pickets began stoning his home.

Violence in Remington Strike

Ilion, N. Y., July 14 (AP).—Brief flurries of violence marked an unsuccessful back-to-work attempt today at one of Ilion's three strike-bound Remington Rand plants.

At least three men were injured and two others were arrested.

A crowd of approximately 5000, equal to half the village population, gathered around the plant. Officials of the CIO United Electrical Workers estimated as many as 2000 pickets were on duty during the clash.

John O'Connor, leader of the back-to-work movement, said 500 of his followers were there, but for the most part he stood alone. The 39-year-old leader, his shirt torn, conceded defeat and added, "I don't know what further action can be taken."

Arrested on charges of third degree assault were Samuel Rizzo, 35, of Frankfort, and William Ross, 21, of Richfield Springs. Both pleaded innocent and were released for appearance July 22.

The UE-CIO is seeking a 15-cent hourly wage increase of 10 cents and six paid holidays.

the average raise being about $1.20.

Birmingham—Coal and coke all over Alabama went up $1.50 to $1.75.

Springfield, Ill. — Nearly all dealers raised prices $1 a ton last week.

Some of these raises were posted by operators—the companies that dig the coal—but it was plain that others came from local dealers, who seemed sure of a general price increase in a week or so.

At Akron, Ohio, about a third of the local dealers had put their stock up from 75 cents to $1.20 a ton, and the rest were expected to do so this week. Cleveland dealers expected to post raises of 75 cents to $1.75 a ton this week.

Pittsburgh Consolidation Coal Co.—the world's biggest commercial producer—said its prices would go up, but did not give the figures.

May Lift Freight Rates

Higher coal prices would mean higher costs for coal-burning railroads, which might lead to higher freight rates, thus pushing up the cost of all goods. The railroads already have asked for a 16 per cent boost in freight rates.

Irving S. Olds, chairman of the board of United States Corp., wrote the New York Times that the new coal wage contract "undoubtedly" would push up the cost of steel. The magazine Iron Age said there was an increase of $5 a ton in sight, but only partly because of the higher cost of coal. Senator Taft (R., Ohio) forecast a rise of $1.10 a ton.

A Scuffle in the Picket Line

A LITTLE JOSTLING—John O'Connor (main figure standing), leader of the back-to-work movement at Remington Rand Plant No. 1 at Ilion, N. Y., is shown being jostled yesterday in the picket line. Man back of O'Connor who has fallen to the ground is not identified

Labor Law Repeal Sought

Fifteen Senators—13 Democrats and 2 Republicans—introduced legislation yesterday to repeal the Taft-Hartley Labor Law "lock, stock and barrel."

The move was identical to one made in the House recently by Representative John Lesinski (D., Mich.). Since it must be considered by the Senate Labor Committee, strongly dominated by supporters of the new statute, it stands little chance of consideration in the remaining days of this session.

Senator Claude Pepper (D., Fla.) introduced the repealer, saying it would throw out the controversial law "lock, stock and barrel."

Meantime, Senator Carl A. Hatch (D., N. Mex.) told the Senate he had "grave doubts" whether the law's restrictions on political spending by labor unions were "wise or fair" under the Constitution.

Police Investigation

By any test that may be applied, Commissioner John Russell Young and Police Superintendent Robert J. Barrett made a pathetic response when a Senate subcommittee called upon them yesterday to explain the mystery of the hidden crime reports. It was all too evident that Commissioner Young had not given any serious thought to the gross distortion of police records and the violation of police regulations recently exposed by The Post. The withholding of crime complaints, with the results of impairing police efficiency and misleading the public, was only "a routine matter" to him. He had done nothing more about it than to ask Major Barrett to investigate what had taken place in a segment of the Police Department that has been under the major's direct control. Senator Ball gave proper emphasis to this feeble whitewashing.

The Commissioner also tried to excuse his own apathy by asserting that the public and the press, other than The Post, shared it. But this sally met with a sharp retort from Senator McGrath to the effect that the disclosures of lax police reporting had shocked him and he believed it had shocked the conscience of the community. No one who attended the hearing, we think, can doubt the genuine concern of the Senators present as to the disclosures themselves and as to the ineptitude of the local officials in meeting the problem now that it has been brought out into the open.

Major Barrett's admission that many complaints of robbery and sex crimes and "possibly others" have been left out of police records comes at a moment when more alert officials are demanding wider publicity of such offenses for the public protection. "The most rapidly increasing type of crime," says J. Edgar Hoover, director of the FBI, in a current magazine article, "is that perpetrated by degenerate sex offenders." One big factor in this increase is the hushing up of sex crimes by the victims in order to avoid publicity. "I feel that the time has now come," says the FBI chief, "for wide publicity of facts which, though stark and revolting, may lead to a cure." But in Washington the police themselves are keeping the public from knowing how grave the menace from sex fiends is.

Yesterday's preliminary inquiry has greatly stimulated concern over this weakness in our police system. At the same time it has demonstrated that only a full-scale investigation can determine the extent of crime concealment here and shape up a proper remedy. Before the questioning was completed even Commissioner Young agreed that a searching inquiry by experts "might help." We do not see how the Senate can avoid approval of the request for $25,000 to finance such an investigation without taking upon itself part of the responsibility for perpetuation of the self-crippling practice to which the Police Department is clinging.

Columnar Collusion

In attacking the Messrs. Lowell Mellett, Marquis Childs and Tom Stokes as the dupes of a Government propagandist—because they happened to write on the same subject on the same day—Representative Miller of Connecticut was guilty, we think, of injustice not so much to the columnists as to some of their colleagues whom he ignored. Also on the same day there appeared in the pages of our contemporary, the Washington Daily News, a devastatingly lucid analysis of the Miller bills under the by-line of Miss Ruth Finney. And in the same paper, same edition, same day, there appeared an editorial titled "Don't Let Utilities Backslide" which, by clear implication at least, referred to the Miller bills when it warned: "The utilities are backing half a dozen bills in Congress designed to put them back where they were in the 20's."

Such unanimity may well be deserved. We are glad to join, though belatedly, in condemnation of measures which would remove most of the utility companies, now subject to Federal regulation, from the jurisdiction of the Federal Power Commission and subject them merely to the inadequate supervision of State regulatory bodies; which would drastically limit the FPC's licensing power by posing an absurd definition of navigable streams. These proposals of Representative Miller seem part and parcel of a concerted attack, in which his Republican colleagues, Representatives Rockwell and Dondero, have joined with companion measures, designed to subvert and reverse the established power policy of this country.

Whether this attack was inspired by some utility company propagandist we are not prepared to state. If so, we presume that members of Congress have a right to listen to the lobbyist of their choice and even simultaneously to reflect his views if they choose to do so. On the whole, however, it seems to us rather more remarkable that a sheaf of bills, all designed to advance the interests of the utilities, should be brought forward in a single session of Congress than that several alert and public-spirited commentators should simultaneously expose the iniquities of those bills.

Wedemeyer In China

The desire to find out what is going on in a turbulent situation where facts are hard to discover is always to be welcomed in the men responsible for our foreign policy. This desire is manifested in the dispatch to China and Korea of a mission headed by Lieut. Gen. A. C. Wedemeyer. Evidently the decision was sudden, and though the announcement says that the mission will be restricted to fact finding, the impression has been encouraged that a change of policy is imminent. It started on June 28 when we decided to send to China a consignment of munitions which had long been on order.

What upset the Administration is, undoubtedly, the weakening of the government in Nanking under Chiang Kai-shek. This we recognize as the national government of China, although, when civil war with the Communists broke out seven or eight months ago, we decided to withdraw the Marshall mission. Charged with mediating differences between the government and the opposition, the Marshall mission was unsuccessful, and it was then decided that we should stay on the sidelines, at least until the civil war had been resolved. The Chiang government is likewise recognized by Soviet Russia which, furthermore, is pledged under the Sino-Soviet pact of 1945 to give it moral and material support. The Russians, far from living up to their pledge, have consistently ignored it. They are hanging on to Port Arthur and Dairen, as if sovereignty over these Manchurian ports had been transferred to them, whereas they have only special port and base rights under Chinese sovereignty. They also are encouraging Communist resistance in Nanking, although the evidence comes only from Chiang and his government, who, in search of an alibi, naturally want to put down their failures to foreign interference.

Doubtless the Wedemeyer mission will investigate the charges of Russian intervention on the side of the Chinese Communists. The Russians are accused of arming Koreans for service with the Communist armies. We haven't the slightest doubt that the presence of Koreans in the Communist armies can be verified. But whether they are Koreans from Korea and whether these Koreans have been personally armed by the Russians—these questions might prove much more difficult of verification. Manchuria used to contain millions of Koreans who settled there years ago rather than live under Japanese domination in Korea. To all intents and purposes they are Manchurians. The central fact of the Manchurian situation today is that the Manchurians are just about as anti-Chiang as the Communists. And they fell heir, along with the Communists, to Japanese arms that the Russians left behind them when their forces evacuated Manchuria. Chiang Kai-shek, with an egregious lack of statesmanship, alienated the Manchurians by sending carpetbaggers to take over jurisdiction after the Allied victory over Japan.

This was Chiang Kai-shek's prime blunder, but not the only one. He has been equally lacking in statecraft in respect of the January 7 recommendations of General Marshall. He still has around him the same noisome gang which General Marshall excoriated. It may be that General Wedemeyer will make an effort to persuade him to purge his government. In our opinion, the undertaking will be quite useless, since the men of Nanking all hang together for self-protection. In any event, any attempt on our part to intervene is bound to be a boomerang. China is not Greece, from the standpoint of manageability or of American security. At present, undoubtedly, there is no leadership to work with or through in China. Moreover, China is going through one of her historical travails which do not yield to quick, and certainly not to foreign, solutions.

Either what Emerson called "our hunger for sudden performance" or a fearful anxiety to shore up Chiang Kai-shek seems to be seizing our China diplomacy. In the circumstances either impulse should be resisted. China's salvation has been impeded by one or both policies since the 60's, when the foreign powers, with a vested interest in the status quo, helped the effete Manchu Dynasty to crush the rebellious Taipings.

What Strange Reform!

The constructive provisions of the District appropriations bill, as passed by the House, stand out so sharply that some of its serious defects have been almost passed over. Conspicuous among these is the slash in relief funds and a fantastic recommendation for juggling of the responsibility for the spending of those funds. We hope that the Senate will scrutinize these items, in spite of the District Commissioners' failure to ask for their reconsideration, for the well-being of nearly 10,000 local residents is very pointedly at issue.

Aware of the sharp increase in living costs, the Board of Public Welfare has been eager to adjust its public assistance grants to an up-to-date budget guide. That hope grew dim when the Commissioners allowed in the 1948 budget only enough funds to continue in effect the budget guide based on 1942 costs. Now the House has slashed $65,000 from that meager estimate at a time when the relief load is increasing. If the Senate approves this cut, it will probably mean a flat 10 per cent reduction in the already inadequate public assistance grants in addition to eliminating several types of public aid, such as helping families entitled to unemployment compensation before the benefits actually begin to be paid.

The House Subcommittee on District Appropriations was much concerned over what it declared to be abuses in the administration of public assistance grants. We have no doubt that some abuses exist, as in virtually all relief systems. But there is no reason to hope for their correction by the method which the House Subcommittee proposed. It would eliminate all the present supervision and set up an office of comptroller of public assistance under the District auditor, and give that office temporary control over the spending of relief funds, "working in cooperation with the director of public welfare." Authority for day-to-day administration of public assistance would thus be split between the auditor, responsible to the Commissioners, and the welfare director, responsible to the Board of Public Welfare.

We can scarcely imagine a more chaotic arrangement. What is worse, it would be a direct violation of the law creating the Board of Public Welfare and would fly into the face of the Social Security Act, which requires social security funds to which the Federal Government contributes to be administered by a single local agency. We have in effect, then, an appropriations subcommittee advising District officials to violate the law. Of course, that advice will have to be disregarded, and therefore it amounts to little. But it is important that the Senate grant to the Welfare Board the funds and personnel it needs to carry on its work in a manner befitting the Nation's Capital. Public aid to those in distress cannot be postponed until Congress gets around to reorganizing the makeshift District government in a proper manner.

Flood Control

It is estimated that in the course of the current year alone, floods have swept away close to a quarter billion dollars' worth of property in the Middle West. These same floods have washed out irreplaceable topsoil valued at no less than half a billion dollars. The bill presented by the Midwest's rampaging rivers in a single season comes, then, to almost the same amount as the total cost that has been involved in the entire Tennessee Valley Authority undertaking—$782,000,000. And the TVA, it should be remembered, has been paying dividends to the Federal Treasury from its sale of power amounting to about 10 million dollars annually as well as rendering incalculable benefits to the people of its region in the form of soil conservation, increased farm prosperity and industrial enterprise, improved navigation and recreational advantages.

These benefits have grown out of TVA because it was a carefully planned undertaking, designed to develop the entire resources of a region in addition to providing primary protection from disastrous recurrent floods. TVA was an experiment—an experiment which has proved of immense value in itself and which can have immeasurably greater value for the Nation if we give heed to the lesson it has taught. That lesson is that the water and soil and forests and power potentialities of a great river system ought to be treated, to use Mr. Lilienthal's apt term, as a unity.

We have not done this in the past with the Mississippi and Missouri Rivers. We have applied patchwork remedies to particular spots—often with the result of confining the river at one point only to enhance its rampaging at another. We have built dikes and levees only to have them overrun. It is time to look at the river problem of the Midwest in its totality. This is what we hope the President will do in the special message he is expected to send to Congress this week. This country needs to harness its river systems, not merely for the sake of keeping them under control but also for the sake of utilizing them for the general welfare. No doubt such an undertaking would entail a great financial investment. It would also afford the promise of great economic gains.

Food And Wages

Matthew Woll of the AFL warns the joint House-Senate Economic Committee that if food prices continue upward, rank and file worker pressure for increased wages will be inevitable. He thinks, however, that the attempts to raise wages to keep pace with rising food prices is an unsound wage policy. That, of course, is true, since rising wages enter into production costs, increase prices of goods, food included, bought by labor and bring demand for still higher wages.

Mr. Woll concludes that the remedy lies in bringing down food prices. The goal, we admit, is desirable. However, Mr. Woll himself has listed a good many factors that are currently putting pressure on food prices, such as adverse weather, foreign commitments, and high domestic demand. In the absence of price controls, this is a price-raising combination that is difficult to beat. Nevertheless, if the pressure to raise wages can be successfully resisted for a time, downward price adjustments will soon follow because consumers will be forced to limit their demands as the buying power of their income shrinks.

Of course, that entails a certain amount of hardship. But in a free economy painless price adjustments are not to be expected.

CHILD AND LEAF

The leaf torn from the tree is April-green
And you are April, too . . .
Nothing of summer yet,
Nor of late summer's mild regret.
The shape of green is suited to your hand,
Whose palm still curves a little
Like the leaf that holds
The memory of bud as it unfolds.

Just for this moment here you are intent,
Your eyes bent down, upon your brow
A contemplative frown.
The eyes grow clear . . . the leaf is tossed away
And later when you play, your foot in passing
Tramples under the lost shade,
The green wonder.

"Chiang and China"

As a patriotic Chinese I want to express my congratulations to you for your editorial of July 8. Chiang's statement serves only one purpose: to appeal for help for his corrupted regime against his own countrymen. I hope he will not succeed.

As we all know, Chiang has engaged in a civil war with the Chinese Communists for the past 10 years and he has been unable to eliminate them.

How can he dream of destroying them when they are stronger than they were before the war? Chiang has less support now from the people than he did previous to and during the hostilities. During the past year of fighting, the American-equipped Nationalist army has been defeated on many fronts by the Chinese Communists, who have captured a tremendously large part of the American-supplied munitions.

Chiang Kai-shek has ruled China for more than 20 years. During this 20 years he has given the Chinese people nothing but promises, and he never has fulfilled a single promise. To support the corrupted and moribund regime of Chiang will waste the American taxpayers' money and prolong the suffering of the Chinese people, and cannot improve the situation at all.

Each time China has asked to borrow money from you, you have generously lent it. The money which China has borrowed was not for the benefit of the Chinese people, but only for the few, i.e., the Chiang, Sung, Kung, and Chen families. And yet the Chinese people will have to pay it back.

The only solution is to stop the civil war immediately. If it cannot be stopped now, then let the Chinese people battle to the end.

However, it seems to be that in this struggle neither side can win. Within a year or two, Chiang will realize that without the U. S. help he cannot destroy the Chinese Communists; and the Chinese Communists, too, will realize that continuation of the civil war will only bring China chaos, and suffering. Then they will come to an agreement. China needs neither Communism nor Chiang Kai-shek's quasi-fascistic dictatorship. China needs a democratic constitutional government.

I sincerely hope that the American people will urge their Government not to lend a single penny to the corrupted government, because it will only feed the few and starve the many. The Chinese people will welcome your help only after the government has been reformed and democratized. China wants your help to reconstruct her devastated country and bring about democracy.

Women in Service

The move to legislate the WAVES and WAC into permanent military status is one which should be given full public scrutiny now that the hysteria of war is over and most censorship restrictions relaxed.

In spite of the barrage of paid advertising and propaganda during the war the GIs remained unswerving in their opposition to the militarization of American women. The enormous extra expense and unpleasant social consequences of detailing thousands of young girls to "duty" on otherwise womenless Army posts, and in sending other thousands out of the country in the wake of our fighting armies, is only partly known. The War Department will not release vital statistics on the WAC for sociological study. The information is still "restricted" and, I am told, will remain so indefinitely.

Perhaps even the GIs could have condoned the emergency wartime action of the Congress that permitted militarization of American women if there had been a true need for their services, such as existed in England. The greater tragedy, not immediately apparent, is that while we were fighting to preserve the American way of life the professional feminists were proceeding to demand "equal status and rank" in the armed services for women, obvious to the sociological fact that in so doing they were actively undermining the fundamental basis of American life—the family unit.

And so if the present economy-minded Congress, which has dangerously weakened military aviation by cutting appropriations, now turns around and votes to expend millions to permanently militarize American girls, I can only report that along with several armies of GIs, I will be anxiously awaiting for the next ballot day.

Coal Contract

Representative Fred Hartley's intemperate remarks regarding the coal contract prove, I fear, beyond a shadow of a doubt that the worst fears of labor regarding the true intent of both Mr. Hartley and Mr. Taft in writing the Labor Management Act of 1947 are true.

Certainly Mr. Hartley must concede that the coal contract was reached freely and fairly through collective bargaining. That labor happened to hold the upper hand in the bargaining is an unfair reason for opposition to the contract. A fight is won by the party having the greater strength.

I certainly will agree with labor that Mr. Hartley is not justified in yelling "inflation" at the contract in view of his stand on OPA and later on the 15 per cent "voluntary increase" in rents. If anything, Fred Hartley speaks as an extremely reactionary "back to Coolidgeite" rather than as a progressive.

Mr. Hartley's proposal that collective bargaining be taken out of the industrywide sphere would help the cause of John L. Lewis, and only his recently acquired shortsightedness keeps Mr. Hartley from realizing this. It was certainly more humiliating for the Southern operators who had to come in one at a time to sign with the Mine Workers' chieftain than it was for the industry as a whole when the Northern capitve and Western signers came in.

National Health Insurance

The candid dissent to my views on national health insurance by Dr. Paul B. Cornely of the Howard University faculty published July 7 proves that the old ideological schism within medicine still is unhealed. Ironically enough, the basic issues under debate have remained unchanged in 15 years. They concern the scope and method of a future program of national health security insurance. All socially minded groups sincerely subscribe to the urgent need of a dependable, low-cost, prepayable method of indemnifying the catastrophes of poor health. Yet, despite the crying need, it seems impossible to get together.

Before attempting to answer Dr. Cornely it would be wise to restate the implications of national health insurance in terms of practical politics and medical economics. When and if negotiated national health insurance must be solvent, low-cost, mutually satisfactory collective bargaining agreement between 140 millions of contributing citizens, employing approximately 160,000 qualified doctors, 130,000 of whom belong to the allegedly reactionary AMA.

Certain realistic inferences in respect to majority will and preference of this dominant 130,000 are inescapable. They are the only means of making the plan a success. To determine these realistic inferences liberal Senators like Senators Murray, Wagner and Pepper merely have to concede the same collective bargaining rights for doctors that they have so valiantly championed for other manpower groupings. If such equal justice before the law is conceded doctors, then S. 1320 contains its own rebuttal of Dr. Cornely's able and loyal defense.

Dr. Cornely succinctly cites the provisions of S. 1320 (national health insurance program sponsored by Senators Murray, Wagner, Pepper et al.) to prove his points. This seems a bit naive for a responsible member of the distinguished faculty of Howard University. To a mediocre family doctor it appears a risky substitution of the glowing claims of a manufacturer of an untried product for clinical proof of efficacy by those exclusively responsible for results.

First, Dr. Cornely disputes my claim that S. 1320 is a too all-inclusive medical service program for a successful beginning. By definition the bill provides complete medical, dental, home-nursing, hospital and auxiliary services. General medical service alone includes preventive, diagnostic, therapeutic care and periodic medical examinations. If this is not all-inclusive, then what has been left out? Why not sensibly start with the practical and essential rather than prejudice the whole precious future of national health insurance with a bankrupting, bungling start?

Second, Dr. Cornely sees no validity in my charge that S. 1320 requires doctors to forfeit basic wage-bargaining rights. True, the bill provides optional methods of payment for professional services on a fee, per capita or salary basis or combination thereof. Likewise choice of method locally is elective. But the joker is in section 219 (a), which provides that rates or amounts of payment for particular services shall be adapted to take account of relevant regional, State or local conditions and practices. Is this equal social justice for all doctors performing identical professional services, Dr. Cornely?

This joker means that a Negro doctor delivering an underprivileged mother in the squalor of a share-cropper's hovel in Georgia can be reimbursed $25. For the same professional service performed in a modern hospital in New York his colleague may receive $75. Until there is equal social justice for all without any discrimination whatsoever it is pure hypocrisy to mock such legislation with the title of national health insurance.

Finally Dr. Cornely contends that S. 1320 does not deny free choice of doctor. What he means to say is that there is free choice among those participating and voluntarily qualifying under part B. The opposition within organized medicine is so impressive and determined that huge numbers of our present inadequate supply of qualified doctors in all probability will not cooperate. Would you really have a satisfactory free choice if the pool doctors did not include all who truly are qualified and available in the community? Or should we seek to find a less controversial method of attaining that unity of purpose which will give us real national health security insurance?

Washington Calling

By Marquis Childs

Atomic Theft

ONE DAY last week, a three-bank banner headline in the New York Sun said: "Atom Bomb Secrets Stolen From Plant at Oak Ridge by Agents Not Yet Identified." It was as big a headline as was carried at the time of the atom bombing of Hiroshima.

The story was promptly denied by the Federal Bureau of Investigation, by Senator Hickenlooper, chairman of the Joint Senate and House Atomic Energy Committee, and by the Atomic Energy Commission. They said the story was untrue in the particular charge and in detail.

Examining the origin of the story and its consequences, I have talked with members of the Senate-House Committee, members of the Atomic Energy Commission and officials charged with security and investigation. The facts are summarized in this and a following column.

The documents in question were removed from the atomic laboratory at Los Alamos, N. M., by two Army sergeants in March, 1946. That was while the Army was responsible for secrecy and security. It was not until January 1, 1947, that the new civilian commission assumed control and began to be responsible for security.

UNDER THE LAW, responsibility for investigation of security and secrecy was delegated to J. Edgar Hoover, head of the FBI. The commission asked Hoover to tighten security regulations.

His job was made more difficult by the fact that Maj. Gen. Leslie R. Groves, who was head of the project for the Army, was not helpful in the transition stage. Until almost the end of Army control, FBI agents were not permitted to visit areas in Oak Ridge unless accompanied by military guard.

In the course of tightening security regulations, Hoover's men discovered the thefts that had occurred under Army control. The Atomic Energy Commission requested a thorough investigation by the FBI.

The theft was traced to the two former sergeants. They were questioned at great length. The documents were recovered and restored to secret files. The FBI was convinced that the two men wanted the documents to be able to boast years later of the vital part they had played in the atomic project. There was no evidence that they had been in contact with agents seeking secret information about the bomb.

The investigation was completed on June 9 and the file sent to Attorney General Tom C. Clark, with a recommendation that the former sergeants be prosecuted. After consulting with Hoover about the progress of the investigation, Chairman David Lilienthal of the Atomic Commission informed the Joint Congressional Committee on Atomic Energy in closed session of what had been learned.

WHILE THEY will not say it publicly, certain members of the congressional committee trace the lead to the Sun to Representative James E. Van Zandt of Pennsylvania. Van Zandt denies that he disclosed what he had learned at the secret session to anyone. He says he agrees with Chairman Hickenlooper's denial of the Sun story.

In an interview shortly after the Sun story was published, Van Zandt did disclose that among the documents taken from Los Alamos were photographic negatives. This greatly disturbed the FBI, because it would immediately stimulate foreign agents to search for such negatives.

One of the curious things about the Sun story is that parts of it closely paralleled an article sold to Liberty magazine by Representative J. Parnell Thomas, head of the House Un-American Activities Committee. Some members of Congress link Thomas to the sensational Sun story.

No top official connected with atomic energy was asked about the accuracy of the Sun story prior to its publication. Less than half an hour before it was to appear, the information office of the Atomic Energy Commission was asked if the commission had any comment. Before any reply could be given, another New York newspaper had telephoned to ask about the Sun story, which was then on the street.

No warrant had at that time been issued for the arrest of the two sergeants, who were still at liberty pending a final decision by the Attorney General. Although they have since been taken into custody, the disclosure's effect at the time was to make the FBI's problem doubly difficult. But that is not the only consequence to come out of this strange development in the brief but troubled history of the attempt to control the power that is greater than any other power man has known.

Daylight Saving Time

I note in your issue of July 10, the headlines, "Daylight Saving Is Recommended for D. C. Annually," by a Senate committee.

It would be a great tribute if we could say we had the cream of intelligence in our halls of legislature, but what could be more contrary to such an idea than the confusion and bewilderment the daylight saving time has caused? The dairymen of America have been inconvenienced to no end. Beginning the first of May we were requested to deliver our milk an hour earlier than usual. This means instead of getting up at 4:30 a. m. it is 3:30 in order to get milk to truck on time. It simply makes our day an hour longer.

Why not leave the clocks in the same old standard or sun time? Whoever desired to could, in groups or multitudes, get up an hour earlier and follow this schedule throughout the day and the remainder of our nation would not be confused and bewildered.

Hemispheric Unity

By Sumner Welles

Need For Economic Solidarity

THE INTER-American conference to negotiate a hemispheric defense treaty will meet in Rio de Janeiro on August 15.

This conference, planned at Mexico City in 1945, should have been held two years ago. It was postponed against the will of a majority of the American republics, because of the State Department's charge that Argentina had not complied with her inter-American commitments. There is no more sterile page in the history of American foreign policy. The attempt of the United States to coerce the Argentine government caused profound rifts within the American family of nations, and, at a moment of increasingly dangerous world tension, delayed the conclusion of a treaty of regional defense vitally needed to insure the safety of the Americas and to reinforce the United Nations.

Secretary Marshall has reversed the policy of his predecessor. He has appraised the situation with vision and realism. In his effort to restore that inter-American solidarity which our recent policies so nearly shattered, the assistance of Assistant Secretary Norman Armour will be invaluable. As Minister to Haiti and Canada and as Ambassador to Chile and Argentina, Mr. Armour obtained an intimate understanding of hemispheric affairs.

Latin America knows that he believes in the good neighbor policy. It knows that he is convinced that the regional system of the Americas can only prosper if it is founded upon true cooperation, and so long as the United States scrupulously respects the sovereign rights of its neighbors. His present participation in the direction of our hemispheric relations is an outstanding asset to the American people.

IF A TREATY for hemispheric defense is signed at Rio a charter of the Americas should be simultaneously adopted. Such a charter should contain in codified form all of the existing inter-American commitments that safeguard the peace of the Americas and afford methods for the pacific solution of hemispheric controversies. It should also set forth the standards of conduct which the American republics must observe in their relations with each other, as well as those which guarantee the individual liberties of their nationals.

There is also a growing demand that economic questions be considered at the conference.

The economics of many of the American republics are in bad shape. Inflation is increasing. The dollar reserves accumulated during the war are rapidly shrinking. Most of these reserves will be exhausted within a few months. Even if the Marshall plan meets with partial success, European markets for Latin-American products will be restricted for a long time to come. Living standards in a number of the American nations will be sharply reduced unless some means can be found to lessen the impending crisis. As President Gonsalez Videla of Chile emphasized during his recent visit to Brazil, "The Americas must put their economic house in order."

IT HAS BECOME the fashion to call the policy of economic and financial collaboration which this Government offered the other American republics during the decade after 1933 a "Santa Claus" policy. Nothing could be further from the truth. Our cooperation not only helped our neighbors at a time of economic depression. It also represented a policy of enlightened selfishness on the part of the United States.

The credits which Washington extended to Latin America for the development of natural resources and for the construction of public utilities and new industries increased the productive capacity of the countries where these credits were put to work. There has not been one default. The results have meant higher living standards, and higher living standards mean expanding markets for United States exports. The inter-American regional system will be ineffective unless it is based on economic as well as political and military interdependence.

The American republics are receiving no credits from the World Bank, notwithstanding the contributions they have made to it. The Export-Import Bank, unless its capital is increased, can undertake little further activity in the Western Hemisphere. The project for the Inter-American Bank has been pigeonholed. It should be given renewed consideration. Such an institution could be of great value in these crucial years.

BECAUSE OF the short time remaining before the Rio conference, it is unlikely that any agreement can be reached to include economic subjects in the agenda for the conference. These problems may go over until the regular Pan-American conference at Bogota next January. If the United States delegation at Rio were to state categorically that this Government will return to the kind of economic cooperation successfully undertaken during the earlier years of the good neighbor policy, such an assurance would be profoundly salutary.

Unless there is confidence that such cooperation will be forthcoming, serious upheavals may well take place before the end of the year. Employment and economic security are the best defense against communism.

This Government has urged a policy of economic interdependence upon Europe. Is it not equally important that we lead the way toward economic interdependence in the Americas?

The economic unity of the hemisphere is essential if the forces seeking to undermine democracy in the Americas are to be successfully combated. This is a time for a preventive, rather than a remedial, inter-American policy on the part of the United States.

Harriman Clarifies Marshall Plan

IN AN INTERVIEW in London, Secretary of Commerce Harriman has emphasized three points about the Marshall proposal which cannot be overstressed.

Lindley

The first is that the United States is not closing the door to participation at a later date by European nations which do not take part in the current Paris conference.

The second is that the United States is attaching no political conditions to economic aid to Europe.

Both points may seem to contradict the unnamed American spokesman in Paris who said that the current Paris conference was the "last chance" for European nations desiring aid and that the United States would of course attach conditions to further assistance.

The spokesman in Paris was interviewed before Czechoslovakia backed out of the conference, on orders from Moscow, and Finland declined. He may have spoken in the hope of tilting the decisions of these two countries and perhaps others toward participation in the Paris conference in spite of Moscow. His emphasis, however, seemed to be on the "last chance" for Europe, in the sense that similar phrases have been used by British Foreign Secretary Bevin. "Last chance" may be an exaggeration, but certainly there is little hope for that unhappy continent unless the western portions, under the leadership of Britain and France, can now agree on a more or less coordinated economic plan and unless the United States supports that plan.

THE SECRETARY of Commerce was undoubtedly correct, however, in emphasizing that so far as the United States is concerned the door will remain unlocked for eastern European cooperation in a plan for the economic restoration of Europe.

If a western European economic plan can be made even partially successful, it will have a gravitational pull on the Soviet satellites. None of them can be happy about serving as feeders to the Soviet postwar five-year plan. The economic level of the poorest of them prior to the war was higher than that of the Soviet Union.

The responsibility for denying them the potential benefits of the Marshall proposal rests with the Soviet Union. It should be kept there. In all probability it can be, despite frantic and persistent Soviet propaganda, so long as the United States keeps on insisting that the door is open to eastern European participation at a later date.

In saying that naturally the United States would attach conditions to aid to Europe, the unnamed Paris spokesman did not specify that these conditions would be political. What Secretary Harriman had to say on this point must be regarded as a clarification rather than a repudiation. He said that "there has been no discussion within the Government of any political conditions" but added that "the general belief in the United States is that peoples should decide for themselves as to what the form of their government should be." This is, of course, a political condition—one which Congress would not easily be dissuaded from imposing, since it is based squarely on the Atlantic Charter, the Yalta agreements and the other basic compacts for the peace. It is a condition, moreover, which the Soviet government could not challenge directly in words, even though it violates it in practice at every opportunity.

THE SOVIET-Communist attack on the Marshall proposal has played heavily on the theme that the American purpose is to undermine national sovereignty and the free choices of independent peoples. This is as brazen an inversion of the facts as if Hitler had accused Britain, France and the United States of operating the gas chambers and ovens in which the Nazis put to death so many who resisted them. We have seen in the last few days how much national sovereignty, how much freedom of choice, is permitted to the Soviet bond and slave states of eastern Europe.

In a third point, Secretary Harriman replied to the charge that the American interest in the Marshall proposal springs from a desire to maintain a high level of exports in order to prevent or check the American depression which has been widely advertised as imminent. The Kremlin may believe this. Some of the Socialists of western Europe, including Britain, also seem to think that this is a factor in American planning. Mr. Harriman put this problem in perspective. It is true that we have some exportable surpluses. In the future the margin available for export may increase. But since the war we have been exporting more than we could comfortably spare of a number of commodities, including grain and steel. Moreover, "it is not our policy to give away products indefinitely."

American policy looks toward thriving two-way trade. Over the years we may continue to export somewhat more than we import and invest the difference abroad. We have economic, as well as other interests, in the rehabilitation of Europe. But the Marshall plan is not an emergency scheme to save the United States from a depression. The more that the nations of western Europe can do for themselves, the happier we will be.

Senate Approves U. S. Trusteeship For Pacific Isles

By The Associated Press

The Senate yesterday approved an international agreement setting up an American trusteeship over former Japanese mandate islands in the Pacific captured during the war.

The islands—known during the war as "stepping stones to Tokyo"—include the Marshalls, Carolines and Marianas. Once owned by Germany, they were given to Japan under a League of Nations mandate after World War I.

Under United States administration, they will be called "The Territory of the Pacific."

The legislation, previously approved by the House, now goes to President Truman for signature. It gives Mr. Truman authority to put into effect a trusteeship agreement unanimously approved last April by the United Nations Security Council.

The Counterattack

By Barnet Nover

Russia And The Paris Plan

RUSSIA IS UNLIMBERING her heaviest artillery and is about to begin an assault on the Marshall plan for European recovery which promises to be unexampled in its ferocity.

NOVER

Before adjourning, the 16 nations that took part in the recent Paris conference made a friendly gesture in the direction of the Soviet Union, whose absence from the meeting everybody deplored. They voted unanimously to leave the door open to Russia and her satellites to participate in the recovery effort.

This gesture will not appease the men in the Kremlin. Undoubtedly they regard it as a sign of weakness and timidity.

Everything that has happened since France and Great Britain invited the nations of Europe to join with them in carrying out the Marshall plan makes it clear that Russia will remain aloof. Indeed, signs are multiplying that she is determined to prevent the plan from even getting to first base.

THERE WAS, first of all, the Russian crackdown on her satellites who, from the viewpoint of Moscow, had shown a most unhealthy interest in the Marshall plan.

There followed Stalin's ultimatum to Premier Gottwald and Foreign Minister Masaryk of Czechoslovakia which forced that country to abandon its original plan to participate in the Paris parley.

Now the Russian heat is about to be turned on the Scandinavian countries so as to frighten them into a retreat from the Marshall plan. Russia believes them to be more vulnerable to Soviet pressure than any of the other nations participating in the European recovery move.

THE FIRST TARGET is Sweden. An oblique warning to that country to go slow in cooperating with the western powers in general and the United States in particular was contained in a recent article in Izvestia. The article assailed "American economic penetration" of Sweden and expressed concern over the "attack of the American dollar on Sweden."

Some days earlier, Sweden was, by implication, accused of welcoming and permitting an ideological campaign being waged against Russia by Americans.

During the war, said a Swedish-language broadcast over the Moscow radio, "Stockholm was flooded with agents for the German Information Agency and journalists who . . . tried to sway Swedish public opinion in favor of Dr. Goebbels' propaganda . . . After the war the activities of these anti-Soviet creatures were taken over by the reactionary American press."

Aware of Soviet resentment over their participation in the Paris conference, the Scandinavian delegates have emphasized their determination to keep the discussions on an economic level and not to permit them to take on any political form. This will certainly not disarm Moscow. The Russians are as opposed to the economic unification of Europe, except under Russian control, as they are to political unification.

We can be sure, also, that the Russian counterattack on the Marshall plan will include sabotaging efforts by the Communist parties in the 16 participating nations, especially in France and Italy, where the Communists are particularly strong.

TO KEEP Russia's satellites in line, Moscow has been rushing to conclude trade agreements with the nations of the Soviet bloc and to get them to conclude trade pacts among themselves. The Kremlin realizes that more is needed than negative pressure to counteract the strong pull of the Marshall plan on such countries as Czechoslovakia, Poland, Romania and Hungary.

Hungary let the cat out of the bag by making it known that she "would not reject any offer of aid to be negotiated without demands for economic control of sovereign states, without political conditions but with the approval of the official legislative bodies of the United States."

The last clause is significant. The Russian satellites are finding a measure of negative comfort in the thought that, anyway, no matter what Europe does Congress will not approve the funds to carry out the Marshall plan. Fear of such a possibility is very widespread.

The Russians are not playing for marbles. They know that the stakes are tremendous. If they succeed in making the Paris program meaningless, they will have dealt American prestige a staggering blow. They will stop at nothing to achieve that aim.

With equal realism, the American people and Congress cannot ignore the fact that, no matter what it costs, the carrying out of the Marshall plan will be the cheapest kind of economic and political insurance for the United States.

Drive Begun To Push Bill On Training

A drive to report a compulsory military training bill before Congress adjourns began yesterday in the House Armed Services Committee.

Some members balked, accusing Chairman Andrews (R., N. Y.) of trying to shove the bill down their throats. Complaining most vigorously was Representative James E. Van Zandt (R., Pa.), who is in favor of the training principle.

Meanwhile, Senator Taft (R., Ohio) said again yesterday that he was against compulsory peacetime training, but he denied that he obstructed the legislation, as was charged Sunday by former Supreme Court Justice Owen J. Roberts.

Representative Harry L. Towe (R., N. J.) last week offered an 80-page compulsory training bill. The subcommittee voted 9 to 3 yesterday morning to hold hearings on Towe's bill this week and to try to report it one way or the other to the full Armed Services Committee by next Monday.

Hearings Begin Tomorrow

Hearings were called for tomorrow, Thursday and Friday. Tomorrow the subcommittee plans to hear Representatives Overton Brooks (D., La.), E. H. Hedrick (D., W. Va.) and Towe, and Dr. Allen Bates, of the Chicago Committee to Oppose Peacetime Conscription.

Spokesmen for the Army, Navy and Marines have been asked to appear Thursday. Hanson Baldwin, military expert of the New York Times, who is understood to be against the compulsory training principle, has been invited to testify either tomorrow or Thursday.

The hearings are set for 10 a.m. both days. So have the sessions of the House. Committees must have leave from the House to hold hearings while the House itself is sitting.

Predicts No Hearings

Van Zandt said last night the situation meant there would be no actual hearings on the Towe bill because so much important business is before the House, the committee members will not be able to stay off the floor.

"They threw the Towe bill at us," Van Zandt said. "We never got it until this morning and we did not have time to read it . . . I asked for the record of our hearings on military training, but it turns out they will not be ready until the last of the week. We're being asked to act in the dark and I won't stand for it."

Representative Dewey Short (R., Mo.) said he did not think the hearings set for this week would be of much use, and that he felt more time ought to be allowed for study of the bill. Unlike Van Zandt, Short is unfriendly to the principle of compulsory training.

H. C. Peterson Quits; Further Changes Seen

By the United Press

Assistant Secretary of War Howard C. Peterson resigned yesterday in what informed service sources saw as the forerunner of further changes in high Army and Navy commands when Congress passes the armed forces unification bill.

"My reason for resigning is an all too familiar one to you," Peterson wrote President Truman. "In fairness to my family, I have reluctantly come to the conclusion that I cannot afford to stay in Government service any longer."

Friends said Peterson probably would return to private law practice in New York City.

Passage of the unification bill is expected to bring additional changes in Army and Navy high commands. The bill would create separate departments of Army, Navy and Air—all under a Cabinet Secretary of National Security. Secretaries of the individual departments will not be Cabinet members.

Secretary of the Navy James Forrestal has been touted as the top candidate for the new post of top secretary. Undersecretary of the Navy John L. Sullivan reportedly is being groomed to succeed Forrestal.

Secretary of War Robert P. Patterson is expected to resign and reportedly may be appointed to the first vacancy in the United States Supreme Court.

Best guess is that an outsider will fall heir to Patterson's job if it does not go to Undersecretary of War Kenneth C. Royall, who is said to be interested in the governorship of North Carolina.

Senate Committee Orders GSI-PBA Contract Delay

Government Services, Inc., and Public Buildings Administration yesterday were ordered to defer contract talks pending Senate Civil Service Committee action on the corporation's future.

The stop order was issued by George D. Riley, staff director for the CSC, to ensure that the committee's "deliberations" will not be "preempted."

A Civil Service subcommittee which probed GSI's multifarious ventures for six months is scheduled to report to the full committee within 10 days.

GSI, a non-profit firm operating 53 Federal cafeterias and numerous other projects, has been talking a new contract with PBA since 1940, according to GSI General Manager F. W. Hoover. The current contract, which provides for a 50-50 division of profits with the Government, was drawn in 1927.

Mrs. McLean's Estate Admitted to Probate

The estate of the late Mrs. Evelyn Walsh McLean, who died here April 26, was admitted to probate yesterday in District Court. Justice Henry A. Schweinhaut signed the order to probate the will and issued Arnold, executor of the estate. Acletters testamentary to Thurman cording to the petition, Mrs. McLean left an estate valued at $919,550, and debts of $174,000.

"A Post Ad Retrieved My Lost Watch in Less Than 24 Hours!" ...Miss Nagler reports

Ever start to consult your wristwatch—only to find it had slipped off your wrist without your noticing? That happened the other day to Miss Kathleen Nagler, 4324 N. Fairfax Drive, Arlington. But Miss Nagler knew what to do—she immediately placed a "Lost" ad in The Washington Post, and had her watch back the next day. That Post ad took her search into the homes of thousands of readers . . . reached the eyes of the finder right away. No wonder Miss Nagler says she's "very pleased" with Post want ad results.

For finding lost valuables, as for over a hundred other purposes, Post classified ads are lowest in cost, highest in effectiveness. Use them often.

Check Forging Aimed at Boss

An Alexandria woman who said she forged and cashed two $50 checks to get her boss in trouble, yesterday received a 2-year prison sentence, suspended for three years, in Alexandria Corporation Court.

Mabel V. Rose, 220 Del Ray ave., former cashier in a Safeway market, told police she had signed a customer's name to the checks and cashed them to herself because the store manager had been making passes at her. The idea was to get the boss in a jam, she said.

In the only other case disposed of yesterday, Frank C. Brooke, 1919 19th st. nw., was given a one-year sentence, also suspended for three years, for forging and cashing a $17.50 check.

The cases of 20 persons indicted Friday by a grand jury were set for trial the first week of August.

Suspect in Plank Slaying Tells Conflicting Stories to Police

A seven-hour grilling yesterday of Alvah B. Martin, suspect in the slaying of Norman LeRoy Plank, produced only a "welter of conflicting statements," Fairfax County Detective Lieut. Henry Magarity said last night.

Magarity said Martin seemed perfectly clear in his mind as to the events up to Saturday, July 5. The, he claims, he left Plank at the Chesterbrook Woods home of his sister, Mrs. Nellie Burrer, at about 7 p. m.

From that point on, however, Martin could give only a jumble of confused statements, according to the detective chief. The suspect has retracted several earlier statements, Magarity said, and according to his latest story, he did not remain in Washington over the July 4th weekend.

On the night of July 6, Sunday, Plank was found shot to death in the basement of the Chesterbrook Woods home. He was found at 11:30, and is believed to have been killed a half hour to two hours earlier.

Margarity said Martin "thinks" he spent Saturday night with an unidentified woman at an unknown District hotel. He maintains, however, that on Sunday he drove north to a point somewhere near Philadelphia.

Earlier, Martin had said he remained in Washington until Tuesday morning, when he read accounts of Plank's murder. Now, however, he contends that he knew nothing of the man's death until he was arrested in Kingston, N. Y., on Friday, police said.

Magarity said he will continue to question Martin in the hope of filling in some of the gaps in his "confused" mind. The suspect was slated for more questioning last night.

Today, police may confront Martin with a Vienna, Va., carnival ticket taker, who says he can identify a man believed to be Plank's companion at the Vienna carnival Saturday night. If police complete their questioning in time, the two men probably will be brought together at Fairfax some time today.

Capt. Carl McIntosh, chief of the Fairfax County police force, said detectives are making every effort to straighten out Martin's story in his own interest, as well as that of the police.

"We are anxious to break the case, but if the man actually is innocent, we want to do everything we can to help him. So far, he has been unable to give us any names, dates, street addresses or any other facts which we might use to substantiate his story," McIntosh said.

HER NAME IS A household word and she's friendly as a farmhouse kitchen—ZaSu Pitts.

Olney called us late Sunday night and asked if we'd like to have breakfast with ZaSu Monday morning. Get that "breakfast." And we're hardly propped up in time for lunch.

But when you get the chance to meet someone who's more of a myth to you than an actuality, curiosity holds the whip hand over physical collapse.

So we went to see ZaSu. She'd just gotten in from Ogunquit, Me., where she'd been playing in "The Late Christopher Bean," in which she opens tonight at Olney's Country Theater. Quite a jump from Maine to Maryland in 12 hours, but there she was. "Been up since 7," said ZaSu's companion and fellow player, Nancy Davis, a sleek, healthy chick who's just finished a film role in "Portrait of Jenny."

ZaSu waved one of her famous hands to a chair. She wore no makeup and looked rather the way Cousin Cora would after a night on the sleeper. "I don't mind having my picture taken," she said, "it's just the result . . ." And her hand crept up to her throat.

Then she turned to the Olney's Redge Allen. "I brought the props," she said. "They're really very nice. The boy at Ogunquit did some of the paintings and we liked them so much he gave them to us. Wrapped up well, too. I hope when we leave they'll be as well wrapped."

The combination of her familiar screen gesture and her practical request about the all-important paintings of "The Late Christopher Bean" sum up the lady. The numberless times she's gone through her fluttery routine have insinuated themselves into her private person, but don't completely eclipse the fact that she's a shrewd manager.

Inevitably, we got around to the movies. "So many people seem to think," she mused, "that in the movies too many cooks spoil the broth. But that isn't necessarily true. When some writers don't produce the kind of script a producer wants, he turns other writers loose on it. Eventually enough people give it their best effort and the result is a winner.

"That's what happened to 'Ruggles of Red Gap,' for instance. Leo McCarey, who was directing, added a lot to the script while we were shooting. So did Laughton, Charlie Ruggles and the others. Sam Goldwyn always works on that method and look at the fine pictures he turns out.

ZaSu's Spilling!

"I've been trying for years to get Frances Marion, who's written more screen plays than almost anyone you can think of, to write a play for me. Not long ago she decided she would . . . if, Frances said, 'someone who know about playwriting will collaborate.' So that's how Anita Loos and she are working on a new play for Marjorie Rambeau and me.

"I do want to do a play and make a hit in one. That's what I've been trying in all these plays I've done lately, 'Ramshackle Inn,' 'Her First Murder' and 'Cordelia.'

The first did pretty well, but the others needed more work. Or"—and the hands fluttered, "something."

Now for the inevitable 64-buck question: "Why the name ZaSu, with its trick capital lettering and all?" you ask.

It's a combination of those of her mother's sisters, Liza and Susan. Got it?

Actually her name is Mrs. Edward Woodall. He's a trim, good-looking former tennis star whose picture goes along with ZaSu on her travels, as well as those of her daughter by her first marriage, Ann Gallery, and her adopted son, Don, whose mother was the beautiful Barbara LaMarr.

Now ZaSu is settled out in the cow country of Olney, but she's got a practical idea: going to rent a car so she can look up a few people she knows in town. And we never dreamed she had enough sense to pass a driver's test. Hazy-looking, practical-minded ZaSu.

GUILD SUBSCRIBERS: Beginning today and on each Tuesday, Thursday and Saturday thereafter, the local office of the Theater Guild-American Theater Society in the National's mezzanine will be open from noon till 5:30 to receive new membership applicants. While the renewal backlog is too heavy to assign seats to new members for another two weeks, assignments will be filled in order of request. The series opens Monday, September 15, with Cornelia Otis Skinner in "Lady Windermere's Fan."

RAIN ON THE ROOF held up but didn't stop Friday night's performance out at the Cross Roads, where "The Hasty Heart" resumes its run tonight . . . John Patrick's play is a resourceful one, a comedy-drama about Allied soldiers in a Burma hospital . . . Particularly good, we thought, was Henry Oliver's Tommy, a fat, affable Cockney type that was played with bemused ease.

TOMORROW'S FILM Council luncheon, resuming, will hear a talk by Al Sherman, former film reviewer and now in the comparatively untried field of "Screen Public Relations" . . . He'll talk on "Have Informational Films a Place in Our Theaters?" . . . The place is American University's Sloan Room, 1901 F st., 12:30 Wednesday.

It Seemed Uncle Joe Preferred Consistency

New York—This is the story told in Budapest about Natyas Rakosi, the Soviet-appointed Deputy Prime Minister of Hungary: In 1919, when admiral Horthy came into power and the Reds went underground, Stalin had to appoint someone to lead the Hungarian Reds. The final choice rested between Rakosi and Bela Khun. Stalin inquired about the two men and was advised: "Send Bela Khun, because he's a Communist by personal conviction. Don't send Rakosi; he's an opportunist . . ." "In that case, I'm selecting Rakosi, the opportunist." Stalin decided, "and not Bela Khun, the Communist by conviction—because a conviction can change."

Princess Margaret Rose

Beryl Davis, the British entertainer who was making her American debut at the Strand, tells of the night she was starred at a benefit show at the Hippodrome in London during the war. The Royal Family attended the show and visited backstage . . . Princess Margaret Rose disappeared backstage, and a lady-in-waiting finally discovered her standing with a stage-hand who was giving sideline instructions while the Princess raised and lowered the theater curtain.

The candle-lit intimacy of El Morocco's Champagne Room has been shattered these past few nights by the weird tenor singing of Charles Lederer, the screen writer. His is a racking, penetrating tenor distinguished for its off-key trills. Lederer has permitted it to be used as a medium of revenge and practical joke. Once, when Ziegfeld was having trouble in "Smiles," Fred Astaire and Marilyn Miller told him they'd discovered a thrush who'd save his show. "A thrush, eh?" said Zeigfeld, and agreed to audition him. Lederer appeared onstage, and started. Zeigfeld moved forward, in the empty theater. "It can't be my hearing. It must be my English," Zeigfeld decided. "Thrush, Thrush," he repeated, then turned to an aide and said, "Get me a dictionary—and turn to the Ts."

The Washington Merry-Go-Round

Spies Slip, Reds Miss Marshall Plan Play

By Drew Pearson

Soviet Russia is supposed to have the best spy service in the world. However, it can't be particularly good, otherwise the Politburo would not have played so completely into the hands of the USA on the Marshall Plan.

Molotov

As it is, State Department insiders admit privately that Foreign Minister Molotov has turned out to be the best friend of the United States.

Two things worried them, one of which the Russians obviously didn't know about. They were:

1. The possibility that Russia and its satellite states might come into the Marshall Plan, thus making it necessary for the United States to lend money to Russian areas—a policy previously vetoed by the State Department.

2. The fact that the State Department neglected to clear the Marshall Plan with Senator Vandenberg. This was what the Russians didn't know about.

Had the Russians known that Secretary of State Marshall had failed to get a congressional OK for his plan to put about 20 billions of United States cash into Europe—over a period of four years—they might have put us on the spot by letting all the Russian satellite countries participate.

For nothing would have raised more howls from tight-fisted Congressman Taber of New York and many other penny-pinching congressional leaders than to advance money to Yugoslavia, a nation to which we had previously stopped aid when it shot down United States fliers; or to Bulgaria, where members of the American Legation staff are kept almost as prisoners; or to Hungary, which has just kicked out a democratically elected premier in favor of communism.

In fact, the State Department recently withdrew a 15-million-dollar balance on a 30-million dollar credit given Hungary because of the Communist coup. Yet, if Hungary had been permitted by Moscow to participate in the Marshall Plan, the State Department would have been in the embarrassing position of going to Congress and asking for money to advance to Hungary.

The chances are Congress would have refused.

That was why Molotov proved to be such a good friend of the U. S. A. As a result, every satellite country in Europe will be watching its western neighbors get American aid and wishing it could pry itself loose from the Soviet to enjoy those benefits.

Note—United States diplomats who have worked with Molotov believe he is not primarily responsible for decisions of this kind, but has to follow orders from the 14 Soviet politicians and generals who rule Russia—the Politburo.

Tax Bill Caucus

Onetime Democratic tax-czar Senator George of Georgia put up some strong arguments for the Republican tax bill when Democratic senators met in secret caucus last week. But he was vigorously opposed by Senators Alben Barkley of Kentucky, Joe O'Mahoney of Wyoming and John Overton of Louisiana.

Barkley, who probably lost the Vice Presidency of the United States and the chance to sit where Harry Truman now sits by demanding that the Senate override a Roosevelt tax veto, this time urged Democratic colleagues to support a Truman veto.

"We've got to follow the President on this," declared Barkley. "If we pussyfoot, we're sunk. I sincerely hope that we can stick together and beat Republican efforts to override a veto, because this is a crucial issue from a party standpoint and vital to the whole country."

"There's no other course I can follow and be honest with myself and the people I represent," agreed Wyoming's conscientious O'Mahoney. "We cannot reduce taxes now with the budget still unbalanced. If we do we will cripple ourselves and take a long step toward the liquidation of the capitalistic system and private enterprise.

"What's happening in the rest of the world can happen here," continued O'Mahoney. "That's why I say this tax bill is a blow at our capitalistic system, which has worked out for the great benefit of all classes. Unless we save the equilibrium, then we will go the way of other countries overrun by totalitarianism."

Tax Relief for Rich

The Barkley-O'Mahoney reasoning, however, didn't move Senator George, who has always championed the upper-bracket taxpayer. He bluntly announced he would vote to override a veto, though in almost the same breath he admitted the tax bill might cause some inflation.

"I can't face the people of Georgia," intoned Senator George, "and refuse them tax relief while we are dishing out millions of dollars to other countries."

Moderate Senator John Overton of Louisiana declared it is silly to try to vote tax reduction before having accurate knowledge of what the foreign program will cost. "And I'm not thinking only of relief," he added.

Appeal to Bar U. S. Workers From Eisler Jury Is Denied

Exclusion of all Government workers from the Gerhart Eisler passport fraud case jury was unsuccessfully sought yesterday because of the Goverment's loyalty investigations.

Attorneys for the stocky, 50-year-old, German-born Communist leader asked District Court Justice James W. Morris to disqualify all such employes without further cause.

The justice, in whose court Eisler is being tried on a charge of lying in September 1945 to get an exit permit to Mexico, denied the request.

He permitted, however, the defendant's lawyers to question Federally employed prospective jurors at length as to how the Government's threatened loyalty purge might influence their decision.

William Hitz, assistant United States attorney, announced in court yesterday a list of 21 witnesses he may call against Eisler, Inc., including Earl Browder, deposed leader of the Communist Party in the United States; Louis Budenz, former editor of the Communist paper, the Daily Worker; William O. Nowell, another former Communist Party leader, and Ruth Fischer, Eisler's sister, who testified against him last February before the House Un-American Activities Committee.

As jury selection was resumed, after the case had been continued from last Wednesday, attorneys questioned veniremen closely as to pro- and anti-Communist organizations they might be affiliated with and as to publications and radio commentators they might read or listen to.

One of Eisler's attorneys asked the veniremen if they listened regularly to Commentators Henry J. Taylor, Fulton Lewis, jr., H. V. Kaltenborn, Lowell Thomas or Upton Close.

He also asked them if they had read and their judgment had bee influenced by The Washington Times-Herald.

Conviction on the passport charges may carry up to five years' imprisonment and a maximum $5000 fine. Eisler was convicted last month on a contempt of Congress charge and drew a $1000 fine and a year's jail sentence.

McIntyre to Head Unit for Handicapped

Vice Admiral Ross T. McIntire, former Surgeon General of the Navy, has been named president of National Association for Employment of the Handicapped, it was announced yesterday. McIntire succeeds Maj. Gen. Graves B. Erskine, USMC, who has returned to active duty with the Marine Corps.

Dr. Merle E. Frampton, principal of the New York Institute for the Education of the Blind, succeeds Admiral McIntire as vice president of the association. Both Admiral McIntire and Dr. Frampton have been associated with the association since it was organized late in 1946.

290 Boy Scouts Leave For Camp Roosevelt

Severe Penalty Asked For 23 Nazi Scientists

Nuernberg, Germany, July 14 (U.P.).—The United States prosecutor today demanded "stern retribution" for 23 Nazi doctors and scientists who allegedly directed medical experiments on concentration camp inmates.

James M. McHaney, Little Rock, Ark., made the final statement as the prosecution wound up its case after eight months of testimony.

Mother Burns Four to Death

Salem, Mo., July 14 (U.P.).—Mrs. Geraldine Dunlap, 40, an expectant mother, fatally burned her husband and three of her four children last night by soaking them with gasoline as they slept and applying lighted matches.

Sheriff Floyd Nash said Mrs. Dunlap still was incoherent today. He said she had been under treatment for nervous disorders for several months and still had no realization of the tragedy.

The dead were: Lawrence, Dunlap, 44, the husband, who died today in the hospital; Marylin Ruth Dunlap, 6; Betty Lou Dunlap, 4; and Barabara Dunlap, 2.

Donald Gale Dunlap, 7, was in serious condition. The mother was burned slightly in the fire, which destroyed their farm home.

Nash said that Dunlap told him he awakened about 9 o'clock last night to find his wife pouring gasoline on his face. He said that she lit a match and touched it to the bed where he and Donald Gale were sleeping.

He found himself, with Donald Gale, in the yard outside.

"Inside, we could hear the other children screaming," he sobbed.

Realizing he could not reach them, the father went for help.

Mitchell Legion Post To Choose Delegates

General Billy Mitchell Post 85, American Legion, will meet tonight at 7 o'clock in the Cherrydale Fire Department Hall, 3900 Lee Highway, Arlington. Delegates for the department convention, to be held in Richmond August 10-13, will be chosen. Chairmen to head a program of community activities will also be chosen.

Maid Given Credit for 'Heart of Gold' in Slavery Case

San Diego, July 14 (U.P.).—Mrs. Elizabeth Ingalls testified at her slavery trial today that Dora Jones, her Negro housemaid, never wanted anything for herself "except once in a while some gumdrops or bananas."

Mrs. Ingalls said Dora had a "heart of gold" and "always wanted to do everything."

Mrs. Ingalls and her husband are being tried on charges of keeping the maid as a slave.

The gray-haired defendant disputed Government claims that she never allowed Dora to have candy or sweets and said she bought Dora "a pound of gumdrops almost every time I went down town."

Thomas E. Garland, Coronado mail carrier, said he saw Miss Jones "two or three times a week and she seemed cheerful and happy." He said Alfred Ingalls told him Dora was "a member of the family."

Huersey Stops Kapilow With 1 Punch

This Morning

—With Shirley Povich

ST. LOUIS, July 14.—It required a pretty involved chain of circumstances capped by a nice piece of luck for Buck Newsom before he landed with the league-leading Yankees last weekend.

Newsom always did want to pitch for the Yankees, but for more than 10 years he always found Manager Joe McCarthy a barrier in his attempts to talk himself into the New York club.

POVICH

As long as McCarthy was managing the Yankees, Newsom was frustrated. For years it was open warfare between McCarthy and Newsom, apparent to all. Newsom is one of the few guys to whom McCarthy ever directed a nasty crack.

That was the day in Yankee Stadium when the Yanks knocked Newsom out of the box in the first inning. Leaving the field via the Yankee dugout, Buck glared at McCarthy who said:

"Ah there, Buck. You weren't in there long enough to work up a thirst, huh?"

IT WAS A pretty brutal reference to Newsom's thirst which always has been exaggerated. A glass of beer, or two or three, always has been the extent of Newsom's indulgence. Whiskey was out with him, always. In contrast, Newsom, is temperate.

But I started to point out that Newsom would still be pitching for the second-division Nats were it not for a series of developments that occurred in rapid succession.

First off, Clark Griffith didn't want to get rid of Newsom this season. The big fellow had pitched good ball last year, and Griffith always did go for his showboating. But even Griffith could sour on a fellow who lasted only once in nine starts for the club, as Bobo did this year.

Paradoxically, his lack of success with the Nats worked in Newsom's favor. Finally, Manager Ossie Bluege was fed up with him after Newsom created a scene on the Nats' bench in Boston after being taken out of a game in which the Nats committed six errors. Bluege asked Griffith to put him on the waiver list.

SIX OTHER CLUBS in the American League had a crack at Newsom on waivers before the league-leading Yankees could buy him, and that's where the Newsom luck figured. Nobody wanted him, except the Yankees, apparently.

The fact is that Manager Bucky Harris of the Yankees didn't want him either, and said so, but Harris found himself with Newsom willy-nilly. Unbeknown to Harris, President Larry MacPhail grabbed off Newsom merely to keep him away from the Giants, across the river, who were ready to claim him.

MacPhail was paying the $10,000 waiver price for Newsom to keep him out of the Polo Grounds where the Giants were waging a hot battle for the patronage of New York fans. Joe McCarthy might have talked even MacPhail out of that move, but Newsom's luck was holding out. For the first time in 15 seasons, Joe McCarthy wasn't managing the Yankees.

NEWSOM IS A DANGEROUS guy to underrate, and always has been. When he broke in with the Yankees the other day and gave up three runs in the first inning to the White Sox, the skeptics were in full cry, but the amazing Newsom went on to shut the Sox out with five hits for the rest of the game and make it a nice start for himself.

He joins the Yankees at a time when they have a 10½-game lead, but paradoxically need starting pitchers. That's a nice spot for Bobo, who gets the benefit of that Yankee slugging as well. As he used to say when he was with the Nats, "You're always afraid o give up a run because this club might never get it back."

In one sense, Newsom ought to bring relief to the Yankees. Bucky Harris has been plagued all season with sore-arm complaints of his pitchers. On that score he has nothing to worry about with Newsom, whose durable flipper has been downright amazing through the years. He boasts that "I never had a sore arm in my life," and at this point the Newsom pride wouldn't admit it if he had.

Those St. Louis Blues Again

478 Fans, 20 Solid Socks Rattle Nats, 13-3

By Shirley Povich
Post Reporter

St. Louis, July 14.—The Browns, threatening at one point to score a run for each of the 478 customers in the park, fell short of that goal today and contented themselves with a 13-3 victory over the Nats.

On performance, the Nats were over-paid by their end of the meager gate-receipts which scarcely covered the club's laundry bills in St. Louis.

Early Wynn, Milo Candini and Rookie Scott Cary pitched 20-hit ball, sometimes holding the Browns to songles.

Mostly, though, the Browns were going in for extra-base wallops. At the finish they had seven two-baggers, a pair of triples, and a home run by Walter Judnich.

They conked Wynn for three runs before they could get squared away in the first inning but they were merely warming up for the big push in the third. That was when they blasted Wynn and Candini for six runs.

Southpaw Sam Zoldak was the winning pitcher, and happy about meeting up with the Nats again. They're virtually keeping him in the league and he's making a living off 'em.

Today Zoldak beat Washington for the second time this season, to bring his total of victories for 1947 to two.

Zoldak gave up seven hits to the Nats, and was threatening to outhit 'em personally. Going into the ninth inning they had only five hits, and Zoldak could show four hits off his own bat.

Al Zarilla rapped a two-bagger off the right-field wall for the Browns' first run, and Judnich fetched two more home with a double down the first-base line to set the Browns up in a 3-0 lead. Wynn held 'em to four hits in that inning.

Wynn disposed of the first two men to face him in the third and then the roof fell in. Judnich hit a homer over the right-field roof, former Nat Jake Early doubled against the right-field wall, Peters singled to left, Zoldak singled to left, and Candini walked in to be greeted by a triple by Coleman.

The next thing that happened was a triple by Hitchcock, and the Browns had six more runs and a 9-2 lead.

The Nats made one brief bid to get back in the ball game. That's when they stirred up two runs in the third inning to cut the Browns lead to 3-2 that time.

It was a mighty attack comprised of two bases on balls, a wild pitch, and a single to left by McBride that scored both runners.

Stan Spence, hitless in all three games of the series in St. Louis, has been a liability to the club since his hit broke up the All-Star game a week ago. . . . In his last 28 times at bat, he has made four hits, and has been hitless in his last 14 trips. . . . Gerry Priddy's second homer of the year was a loud swat far into the left-field bleachers in the fourth inning that served only to cut the Browns' lead to 9-3. . . . It was a long time between batting turns for Johnny Sullivan who was last seen as a batter on May 13. . . . He went into pinch hit today in the fourth inning and lasted only one pitch, grounding out to Hitchcock. . . . The Nats moved on to Detroit tonight for a twilight game tomorrow and doubleheaders Wednesday and Thursday. . . . Ray Scarborough is first to face the Tigers.

By Morris Siegel
Post Reporter

Dogged little Smuggy Hursey scored one of the most sensational knockouts in Washington's boxing history last night by flattening Danny Kapilow with one punch at Griffith Stadium.

To the astonishment of a nearly record throng of 16,000 fans (estimated), the squat Washington boy sent his left hook flying to the chin of the New York boy and the fight was over in 41 seconds of the opening round.

World Heavyweight Champion Joe Louis was among the stunned thousands who saw Hursey receive a few negligible jabs from Kapilow, suddenly came out of his characteristic crouch and shot his left hand crashing against Kapilow's jaw.

Down Kapilow went for the count and the fight, a scheduled 10-rounder, was over before the ringsiders had eaten their first hotdogs.

Kapilow fell as if struck by a fistful of flying discs, and Referee Marty Gallagher could have counted 50 instead of the routine 10.

Even His Chair Not Warmed up

It happened in Danny's own corner and the end came so suddenly that Manager Al Weill and the others on Kapilow's side of the ring had barely gotten the stool out of Kapilow's corner before they had to return to the ring to revive their stricken entry.

The kayo marked the only time in years of fighting that Kapilow wasn't on his feet when a contest ended. And he's been in with some murderous punchers, including Rocky Grazanio.

Kapilow, who weighed 149 against 153¾ for Hursey, was on the short end of the 8-5 odds, but there were many among the ball park customers who felt he had the goods to put an end to Hursey's string of victories.

He didn't. Instead, Kapilow became the thirteenth straight Hursey victim and the thirthy fourth in the 41 times Smuggy has gone to the post. The 19-year-old Smug also avenged an eight-round decision this same Kapilow won over him in the same ring two years ago.

Just Lucky, Mumbles Smuggy

In his dressing room, Hursey was the least excited of his crew.

"It wasn't a lucky punch," he mumbled as the water dripped over his dead pan under the showers. "I had been practicing that same punch—a left hook—for three weeks. It was the same punch I knocked Billy Terry down with in the Liberty Gym last Friday.

"Sure, I'll fight him again, but what's the use?"

The knockout didn't surprise Hursey, but the quickness with which hostilities ended did.

Weill and Trainer Charley Goldman stretched their fallen charge out on a rubdown table and appeared to be as stunned as their conked-out fighter.

"It was a lucky punch, that's all, and it happens to the best fighters," Weill said by way of trying to explain what happened. "Remember, that Smuggy did something even Graziano couldn't do."

Weill Says He's Willing

Kapilow, slowly regaining his senses, could say very little. He simply shook his head and muttered something about "Let's go, let's go."

Did he want to fight Hursey again? "Ask Weill," he said. Weill was willing, of course.

As soon as Referee Marty Gallagher had ended his count, Dr. Leon Gordon, Boxing Commission doctor, came into the ring to examine Kapilow as Danny hit his head on the lower rope as he caved in.

But Kapilow appeared to be OK after a brief examination and was taken to his quarters a few minutes later.

Cubs Finally Win One, 5-3; Sain Injured

Boston, July 14 (AP).—The Chicago Cubs broke a nine-game losing streak today by defeating the Braves, 5 to 3, in a ladies' day game before 15,278 that saw Johnny Sain, 10-game winner for the home forces, knocked out in the sixth with an injured pitching hand.

The teams were tied 2-2 in the sixth when Sain was hit in the right hand by a line drive from Andy Pafko's bat. The Boston hurler tried to stay but his control was gone and three Cub runs came in before he was removed.

He was taken to St. Elizabeth's Hospital for x-rays.

The Cubs scored two runs in the second inning when Phil Cavarretta walked and Bill Nicholson smashed his twelfth home run of the year into the right-field jury box.

The Braves scored in the fourth when Frank McCormick doubled and came hone on Hank Camelli's single.

Ward Leads Western Golf Play With 68

Des Moines, July 14 (AP).—Marvin (Bud) Ward, former Army major from Spokane, Wash., laid down a steady barrage of birdies for a four-under-par 68 in the opening qualifying round of the Western Amateur Golf Tournament as most of the shooters found the holly fairways and fast greens of the Wakonda Club course a difficult test today.

Warming up for a shot at his third Western Amateur crown, Ward went out in 37, one over par but settled down on the return trip to birdie five of the last six holes for a 31. The Pacific Coast lad found his putting touch on the back nine. He knocked in a 28-footer for a birdie 2 on the 173-yard fourteenth hole and dunked one from 50 feet for a birdie on the 115-yard seventeenth.

Ted Bishop of Natick, Mass., the 1946 National Amateur Champion and a Walker Cupper, and Robert J. Sweeny, London, England, failed to put in their appearance and were listed as withdrawals.

Robert Cardinal, lanky Stanford University star and Pacific Coast intercollegiate runner-up from San Francisco, found the range for a 2-under-par 70. None of the other 45 early finishers today were able to crash regulation figures.

Defending Champion Frank Stranahan of Toledo, who arrived last night and was a late starter found the course to his taste on the first nine holes and posted a one-under-par 35.

Playing steadily from the first tee, Stranahan parred the first five holes, two putted the 423-yard sixth for a one-over 5, but was in with birdies on the eighth and ninth.

Louis May Have to Settle For Pennyworth or Palooka

By Bus Ham
Post Reporter

Joe Louis was so exasperated yesterday that he was almost ready to fight Humphrey Pennyworth or Joe Palooka.

"Ah may as well turn to the comic strips," he drawled. "There's nobody else to fight."

The way things are shaping up, the heavyweight champion will defend his title only one more time, then retire in the summer or fall of 1948.

"No use trying to fool the public by fighting any of the guys now around," he said somewhat sadly. "That kind of a bout wouldn't draw more than $200,000 anyway.

"About the only chance is for that big Swede, Ollie Tandberg, to come over here and look good. Too bad he beat Joe Baksi. A fight between me and Baksi would have been all right until the Swede beat him."

Joe is 33 years old. He has no intention of continuing to fight beyond "34 to 35."

"I'll ge one more championship fight under my belt," he said. "It'll have to be in June or September of 1948, then I'll hang them up."

An elimination series to determine a logical contender?

"What's the use of that? They all would be a bunch of guys who have beaten each other. Winning in that crowd wouldn't mean a thing."

Who then?

"Well, if this big fellow Tandberg doesn't come through, guess we'll have to get in touch with Ham Fisher and see about Pennyworth or Palooka. That last Pennyworth-Palooka fight sure packed 'em in."

Handicap Won By Spy Song

Chicago, July 14 (AP).—Dixiana stable's temperamental Spy Song ran one of his best races today to easily win the $20,000 added Clang handicap before a crowd of 15,300 at Arlington Park.

Shouldering his 124 pounds easily, and with Jockey Steve Brooks just sitting tight throughout the seven furlongs, Spy Song finished a length in front of Brolite farm's With Pleasure. The latter was top weighted at 126 pounds.

Shadybrook's Merrymarch nosed out William Helis' Rippey for third money.

Overlooked in the betting, Spy Song returned $11.40 and made the goo dtime of 1:25 4/5 over the slow track.

Spy Song went to the front at once and entered the stretch with a two-length lead over With Pleasure. About 100 yards from the finish, Spy Song tossed his head sidewise, but the 4-year-old colt had the race won then.

400 Boys Guests Of Louis at Fight

World Champion Joe Louis took 400 boys (200 white and 200 negro) to the Danny Kapilow-Smuggy Hursey fight at Griffith stadium last night.

The champion's guests were selected by the police from the various boys clubs of the District.

Richmond Has Its Umpire Troubles

Norfolk, Va., July 14 (AP).—Dick Wald, Richmond Colt righthanded pitcher, will draw an indefinite suspension for his part in the disturbance last Thursday night at Tar park, President Richard Carrington of the Piedmont League said today.

Colt Manager Bob Lotshaw, whose return to the dugout after an earlier banishment and subsequent refusal to leave the bench when ordered by Umpire Gerald Vankuren, participated in the mixup, will be fined, Carrington added. Waldt's suspension is based on the report that, when the umpire stopped and peered into the Colt dugout to order Lotshaw off the

Mize Belts 26th, Giants Turn Back Pirates, 5 to 1

New York, July 14 (AP).—Smashing out three homers to boost their total to 116 in 76 games, the hard-hitting New York Giants downed the Pittsburgh Pirates, 5-1 today.

Bill Rigney, filling in at short for the injured Buddy Kerr, started the Giant attack by hitting his thirteenth four-bagger of the season in the first inning off starting and losing pitcher Kirby Higbe.

The Pirates tied the score in the second inning when with two out Wally Westlake reach second on Rigney's error and scored as Manager Billy Herman dropped a double inside the rightfield foul line.

After the Giants broke the tie by scoring onces in the fourth, Sid Gordon and Johnny Mize homered in the sixth and seventh innings, respectively, to sew up the game. Mize's blow, off Reliever Nick Strincevich, was his twenty-sixth of the year.

While the Giants cuffed Higbe and Strincevich for eight hits, Rookie Clint Hartung set the Pirants down on five, walked two and fanned six to post his sixth win as against four setbacks.

Pittsburgh, July 14 (AP).—National Football League owners meet here Sunday with League Commissioner Bert Bell to discuss such sundry topics as a five year schedule and the effects of television on the gate receipts.

A league spokesman said the owners are considering making up the schedules five years in advance in place of the present year-to-year setup. The owners also are considering making an educational film demonstrating the principle football systems.

Bell will meet with a citizens' group in Latrobe, Pa., Saturday to discuss possibilities of building a memorial there commemorating the first professional football game which was played in the western Pennsylvania town in 1895.

At Charles Town.

Dear Folks:

Lawless Miss, the Charles Town hope in the $14,000 Polly Pitcher at Monmouth Park last Saturday, gave a good account of herself, losing by a length and a half. Officials there wouldn't allow Emilo Carrillo to ride and R. J. Martin was in the saddle. Martin, according to the chart, rode a misjudged race. Lawless Miss was a head off the pace at the end of six furlongs run in 1:10 4/5, which is the track record. No wonder she was tiring and swerving at the end of the mile and a sixteenth. Horace Moffett raced Our Debenture here once and the veteran won at 20-1. Today he sold the horse to G. C. Smith. Val Victory, owned by the local Jenkins Stable, is the only four-time winner of the meeting. John Manfuso, vice president of the Horsemen's Protective Benevolent Association, was a visitor today. He has been trying to get the Marlboro meeting transferred to Timonium with the receipts going to the cancer and paralysis funds. So far his efforts have been met with frowns. Fred Kirsch's Club Scotch, supposed to be very sore, awoke with a bang the first time the gelding was saddled by Bernie Bond. See you on the rail . . . BILL.

Austin Rides Mount Home For $38 Price

By Walter Haight
Post Reporter

Charles Town, W. Va., July 14. A. H. Smith's Gallant Doc, far from gallant in 14 previous starts this year, finally found his running legs today and won the Murdock Purse in a photo finish.

The six-year-old hung a head defeat on J. Frederick's Wild Knight, with Fred Kirsch's Toonerville third. Toonerville and Stanley Greene, jr.'s Gambling Andy drew most of the betting money and the latter was up the race track at the end.

Gallant Doc, saddled by Alan T. Clarke, and ridden by Stanley Austin, paid a $38 win mutuel and was clocked in 1:27 for the approximate seven-furlong sprint over a fast track and under sunny skies.

Scores Under Whip

Gambling Andy failed to show speed and Gallant Doc contributed to the defeat of Toonerville by running the eight-year-old into the ground. The two hooked up in a head and head battle at the first turn and, approaching the stretch, Gallant Doc shook off his rival.

Wild Knight, an extreme outsider in the wagering, then moved through on the rail to take a brief lead. However, Austin went to the whip and the Smith gelding came on boldly to take the photo. Toonerville lasted for the third money.

Mrs. Van Leer Black's Epinaire, an invader from Delaware Park, won the fifth race but only after some gymnastics that almost cost the filly the race.

Epinaire Rallied

Alert handling, however, by Jockey Emilo Carrillo saved the day. The filly had the lead approaching the stretch when apparently she decided she had been running long enough and all but stopped to a walk, to the disgust of Carrillo.

One Lee then went to the front but Carrillo whipped Epinaire back into action and she came on to win going away with One Lee second and Valiant Dot third. This winner paid $12.60.

The daily double on the "5 and 1" combination paid $205.20. The chief money came with a victory in the second race by Mrs. M. George's 10-year-old Wilton, ridden by Jockey Jimmy Baird. Benny Leggett had won the first event with Mrs. S. J. Gilman's Selmalad, a $6.80 shot.

Channel Candidate

Hastings, England, July 14 (AP).—Daniel Carpio of Lima, who was a member of Peru's 1936 Olympic team and now lives in Buenos Aires, began a week's training at the Hastings bathing pool today for an attempt to swim the English Channel.

Leemans Rated Colonials' Greatest Athlete

(Editor's Note—This is one of a series of stories on "greatest athletes" who played for colleges in the Southern Conference area.)

By The Associated Press

You have only to ask about George Washington University's greatest athlete of all time, and you immediately get one answer — Alphonse (Tuffy) Leemans.

Leemans

It was in 1933 that Leemans first arrived on the George Washington campus, a transfer student following his freshman year at the University of Oregon.

Leemans didn't win a regular berth on the Colonials' football team that year, but it wasn't long before he carved gridiron history as one of the finest backs in the Nation.

Leemans excelled at running and passing and was better than average as a kicker. In three years Tuffy gained 2382 yards from scrimmage in 490 attempts, completed 61 aerials in 161 pitches and averaged more than 40 yards for his booting efforts.

Despite the handicap of numerous injuries that earned him the title of "Galloping Gauze," Tuffy averaged 4.86 yards each time he ran with the pigskin against such respected football teams as Alabama, Tennessee, Rice, Vanderbilt, Tulsa, Louisiana State and Oklahoma.

Selected by popular vote of Washington and nearby fans, Leemans journeyed to the all-star game of 1936 in Chicago and stole the show from Notre Dame's Bill Shakespeare and Chicago's Jay Berswanger as the collegiate aces rose to tie the professional Detroit Lions, 7-7.

After that, Leemans did his football playing with the New York Giants of the National Professional League, for nine seasons. He was the club's spearhead in two championship drives.

Coach Owens once said of Leemans:

"Tuffy is the best back the Giants ever had, one who mixes brain with brawn, who makes very few mistakes once his hands are on the ball."

In 1941, the New York fans showed their appreciation with a "Tuffy Leemans Day." Leemans was presented with many trophies and cups from groups throughout the country.

Following a short career as a Giant coach, Leemans retired to enter business in Washington. He returned as backfield mentor at his alma mater at the start of the 1946 season, but the death of his business partner forced his retirement from the gridiron.

Today, Tuffy is an active member of the Colonials, Inc., an alumni organization devoted to the promotion of greater athletics at George Washington University. Often, he may be spotted at Colonial workouts.

Though he received National recognition only for his football ability, Leemans turned in a better than average record as a collegiate basketball player.

His greatest cage game probably was in the 1935-1936 season against Long Island University, his 16 points proving insufficient to keep the Colonials from losing the game, however. Tuffy served as court captain of the Colonials. He also played baseball.

The Czechs clinched the European zone title at Zagreb, Yugoslavia, today when Jaroslav Drobny and Bohous Gernik combined to defeat Josep Palada and Drago Mitic of Yugoslavia, 6—3, 6—1, 6—3, in the decisive doubles encounter. Canada will be host to Australia, holder of the huge international trophy from 1939 until last December 29 when it was returned to the United States in the American zone finals here on August 7 to 9.

Worsham In Fast Field In Canadian

Toronto, July 14 (AP).—The field for the $10,000 Canadian open golf championship opening Wednesday at the Toronto Scarboro course reached 170 tonight with the possibility of further additions.

The number of entrants already has outdistanced the 132 at Montreal last year when George Fazio of Los Angeles scored an 18th-hole playoff victory over Dick Mertz of Arkansas City, Kas., but is short of the 201 mark in 1936 at Toronto.

Early arrivals today set out on practice rounds but most of the invading big-name pros from across the border and Bobby Locke, the South African star, are expected to make their first tests of the 6554-yard par 71 course tomorrow.

Fazio will have plenty of trouble defending his title against such talent as Locke, Sammy Enead, Lew Worsham, New United States open champion, Lloyd Mangrum, the 1946 U. S. winner, Lawson Little, Ed Oliver, and a host of others.

This doesn't include a strong Canadian delegation and it may well be that 1947 will be Canada's big year. Last year, Stan Leonard of Vancouver fell one short of making it a three-way tie with Fazio and Metz, both of whom finished the 72-hole title fight with 278.

Ellsworth Vines of Los Angeles, former United States Davis Cup tennis star, and Tony Penna of Cincinnati worked out today. Walter Hagen, jr., Richmond, Va., amateur and son of the United States star of other days, reported a practice round of 71.

Craig Wood of New York, with whom the United States Open title rested during the war years, was a late entrant today.

Altrock Performs At All-Star Game

Nick Altrock, the Clown Prince of baseball, will perform before the Boys Club All-Star game with Brooklyn Friday night at Griffith Stadium.

Tickets for the contest are on sale at the Touchdown Club, Arena, Fairway, Hahn's, the Sports Center, Andy Farkas', and Eastern and Georgetown Branch of the Boys Club.

Prices range from $1 for general admission to $1.50 for box seats. The receipts of the show will go to the Boys Club work fund.

Hodgin Returns To Chisox Squad

Chicago, July 14 (AP).—Ralph Hodgin, veteran outfielder, today was returned to the Chicago White Sox active list may be stationed at third base. Hodgin was accidentally "beaned" by Hal Newhouser of the Tigers in Detroit, April 21.

Injuries have benched the White Sox's two second basemen, Cass Michaels and Don Kolloway, and Manager Ted Lyons plans to use Floyd Baker, regular third sacker, at second with Hodgin on third. The White Sox today optioned Catcher Joe Stephenson to their Waterloo club in the Three Eye League to make room for Hodgin.

2 Cab Drivers Report Thefts At Knife Point

Two District cab-drivers held up at knife-point, gave up their vehicles and $42 in cash Sunday night, they reported to police yesterday. Another knife-point robbery yielded $8.50 from a 21-year-old District girl.

Robert E. Walker of 1930 Capitol ave. ne., who owns and operates a Harlem Cab, said a man and woman hailed him Sunday at 10 p. m. at 14th and H sts. ne. En route to the 4600 block of Washington pl. se., the man held a knife to his throat while the woman took $14 in cash from his pockets.

He was then told to "move over" while the woman held the knife to his throat. At 42nd st. and Southern ave. se., he was forced out and the couple drove off in his 1938 Dodge, he told police.

Two and a half hours later, reported the second cab driver, Alex Masaros of 213 20th st. ne., he picked up a man and woman at 17th st. and Benning rd. ne. at 12:30 a. m. yesterday. The woman thrust a knife to his throat and demanded his cash, Masaros reported. He turned over $28 in cash, a gold wrist watch and a pocket knife, he said.

At Sheriff rd, se., he was told to leave. The couple drove away in the 1940 Diamond Chevrolet cab, the woman in both cases was, in general, similar—dark blue dress and small hat—but the descriptions of the men differed greatly.

On Her Way Home

In a third knife-point holdup Sunday night, Miss Mildred Reid, 21, of 1234 10th st. nw. gave up $8.50 in cash to a man who accosted her at New Jersey ave. and H st. nw. She said she was en route to her home after completing her work at the Williamsburg Restaurant, 30th and Naylor rd. se.

A twisted-arm technique was used in a fourth holdup about 3 p. m. yesterday in the Lincoln Shoe store, 1218 7th st. nw. Alvin Fischer, 17, of Baltimore, Md., acting manager, said a man entered, asking for change for a $5 bill.

As Fischer opened the register, the man "grabbed hold of my left arm and twisted it—then forced me into the basement and locked the door," he told police. A checkup showed $50 in cash missing from the register, he said.

A retired Capital Transit Co. employe, George Taylor, 70, of 4605 Kane pl. ne., told police that his third floor room had been entered Sunday night and $786 in cash taken from a billfold in his trousers, which were folded across a chair.

A game of "banker" resulted in the loss of $60 in cash, Mrs. Rose Wilkerson of 110 13th st. ne., told police. She said her 2-year-old grandson, Bruce Southerland, was playing with a 5-year-old neighbor, Carol Newton, of 116 13th st. ne., about 11:30 a. m., and apparently took a billfold containing the cash from the house for their game.

A short while later, an unidentified boy grabbed the wallet and ran away, Mrs. Wilkerson said the children told her.

Kaiser to Get Mental Test At Gallinger

William L. Kaiser, former Capitol policeman who allegedly fired two shots at Senator Bricker (R., Ohio), was ordered given a mental examination yesterday.

Judge Ellen K. Raedy of Municipal Court declined to allow Kaiser bond and committed him to Gallinger Hospital for 30 days. The examination was requested by Assistant United States Attorney John B. Diamond.

Diamond told the court he would charge Kaiser with assault with intent to kill and carrying a dangerous weapon.

Senator Bricker was not in court.

The shooting Kaiser is accused of took place Saturday in the subway between the Senate Office Building and the Capitol. According to police, Kaiser fired two wild shots at Senator Bricker who jumped aboard the subway car as it left on its run for the Capitol.

Kaiser was quoted by police as saying, "I did it to refresh Senator Bricker's memory." Police learned Kaiser had asked Bricker to help him recoup some financial losses.

Duty-Free Newsprint Measure Introduced

Legislation to continue the duty-free importation of 15-inch newsprint was introduced yesterday by Representative Brown (R., Ohio).

He predicted it would pass both the House and Senate promptly.

Brown said the measure would amend the Tariff Act by fixing the minimum standard newsprint width at 15 inches instead of 16.

Newsprint of less than standard width is subject to an import duty, he said. During the war, when all width requirements were suspended, United States publishers adjust their presses and composing room equipment n order to use 15-inch newsprint rools and thus save paper.

Brown said minimum width for standard paper automatically returned to 16 inches, the prewar figure, on July 1. Since the first of the month, newsprint importers have paid a duty on the 15-inch paper.

Philadelphia, July 14 (AP).—The Securities and Exchange Commission will consider at a hearing July 29 the application of the Detroit Edison Co. to issue and sell 60 million dollars of general and refunding mortgage bonds through competitive bidding.

'Disgrace War, Work for Everlasting Peace,' Begs Father From Bedside of Ailing Veteran

A bedside plea to "disgrace war" marked a father's anxious visit here with his 24-year-old veteran son, gravely ill of a rare blood disease at Walter Reed Hospital.

Reflecting the hurt in the eyes of his boy, Merle, George D. Dieckmann, 52-year-old Nebraska farmer, appealed humbly for united efforts to "disgrace war and work for everlasting peace."

He told, in a letter revealed yesterday, of the "suffering, the agony, the loneliness . . . that are being so patiently endured by the boys so quickly forgotten by the outside world."

The words were set down as the heavy-hearted Mid-Western grainman sat in Ward 38, trying to "conthat are blue and depressed."

sole the best I can some of those

He admitted, unashamedly, the "tears in my eyes and . . . aching heart."

It seems, he went on, "like the mad, rushing crave to make money and more money has kept many people to busy to think and pray . . . for the soldiers and veterans for whom the war is not yet over."

Merle, who served almost two years in the infantry and another year in bed, watched mutely as his father wrote. The elder Dieckmann had traveled 1300 miles to visit with his boy and "see things I never hoped to see."

What he saw and thought and hoped for were put into the letter, addressed to his home town paper in North Bend. It was latter made public by one of the patients.

These boys, he wrote, as he scanned row on row of lonely, sick men, are "still in the midst of the battle."

"They are the forgotten boys fighting a losing battle for life—the greatest gift God has given to the world and mankind."

That peace may be "accomplished" is my "fervent prayer," he concluded.

MERLE DIECKMANN, a Northbend, Nebr., veteran, just 24, who lies gravely ill at Walter Reed suffering from dreaded lymphosarcoma. It was a visit to Merle's bedside that prompted his father, George, 52, a Nebraska farmer, to write a letter pointing to the disgrace of war and pleading for "everlasting peace"

H. L. Satterlee, 83, Found Dead

New York, July 14 (AP).—Herbert L. Satterlee, 83, son-in-law of the late J. P. Morgan and Assistant Secretary of the Navy under President Theodore Roosevelt, was found dead today on the bathroom floor of his apartment in fashionable Beekman pl. with a gunshot wound in his head.

Police said his nude body was found by his butler.

Two notes were found in the apartment, police said, one addressed to the butler, Henry J. Beney, and one to a physician. In a preliminary report, police listed the death as "apparent suicide."

Georgia Central Plan Confirmed

Savannah, Ga., July 14 (AP).—A reorganization plan of the Central of Georgia Railway Co. has been confirmed and all objections overruled in an order signed by U. S. District Judge Frank M. Scarlett.

The order, signed Saturday and filed today with the clerk of District Court, said the court was satisfied "that the plan makes adequate provision for fair and equitable treatment for the interests and claims of those rejecting it."

The court also held that the plan conformed to requirements of the bankruptcy act.

Bank Deposit Clew Found

Alexandria police yesterday turned up their first lead on the month-old mystery of the missing $26,000 bank deposit when they found two fingerprints on part of the loot found Saturday.

Detective Lieut. Russell A. Hawes considered the find highly significant, despit the fact that prints of only two fingers were found on two different checks.

A weather-beaten canvas bag containing $9000 in checks was discovered Saturday on a house roof at 405 Queen st. The bag was identified by the J. C. Penney Co. as the one in which the checks and the still-missing $17,000 in cash was reported placed in the First National Bank's night depository June 19.

Hawes said it would be almost impossible to make identification with only the finger prints found on the bag, but he said that they could be checked against those of any suspects who may be picked up.

Three employes of the Penny store were sent to the bank to make deposit. They said they put the money in the night depository, but next morning the bank had no record of it.

Manslaughter Case Dropped

Charges of manslaughter against Joseph A. Pessagne, engineer of the Baltimore & Ohio Railroad train involved in a double fatality April 17, at Melrose Crossing, Hyattsville, Md., were dismissed yesterday in Hyattsville Police Court.

Trial Magistrate Alan Bowie, dismissed the charges when the State failed to offer witnesses in support of its case. Two men, Frank P. Leitch, 60, of 4812 43d pl. nw. and Ralph R. Difflemyer, 44, of Takoma Park, Md., were killed when their automobile was caught in the crossing gates and struck by the train.

Four Washington youths charged with trespassing as the result of trying out their "souped-up" jalopies Thursday night on the Naval Reserve airstrip at Beltsville, Md., forfeited collateral of $8.50 each. They were Roy O. Nagel, 21, 1819 Quincy st. nw.; S. Otto Naecker, 18, 516 Rittenhouse st. nw.; Charles F. Corsilio, 18, 7133 Georgia ave. nw., and Raymond A. Giovannoni, 20, 520 Rittenhouse st. nw.

The court continued until September 4 the case of Washington Policeman Theodore Beckwith, 46, ing 15-year-old Donald Hammond charged with shooting and wound- of Branchville, Md., on April 18. The continuance was asked by Defense Attorney Walter L. Green and opposed by State's Attorney Hervey Machen, who said he intends to ask for a jury trial if Beckwith does not appear on the new trial date.

Modified Bill On Gun-Toting Is Prepared

A Congressional conference committee agreed yesterday to ask approval in both Houses for a modified bill to fight gun-toting in Washington.

The compromise plan follows the earlier House line, defining gun-toting as a misdemeanor. It also would give police power to search for concealed weapons on probable cause, and without the warrant they now need.

No Gun, No Search

A new section, however, would tell the police they could not look for other evidence of crime if they searched an individual for a weapon and failed to find it.

If a policeman found a weapon, under the compromise plan, he could then make a complete search.

Under the bill, penalties for carrying a concealed weapon without a permit would be left at the present level—a maximum of a year in jail and a $1000 fine.

Senate Passed Cooper Plan

The Senate had adopted the plan of Senator John S. Cooper (R., Ky.) to make gun-toting a felony and boost the penalties. Making it a felony would automatically give police the power to search without a warrant and on probably cause.

Cooper's plan called for both minimum and maximum penalties—"a fine of not less than $500 and not more than $2000, or imprisonment of not less than one year and not more than three years, or both."

Cripps Pledges British, U. S. Trade Decision

Geneva, July 14 (AP).—Sir Stafford Cripps, president of the British Board of Trade, said today that "decision can and will be reached" on difference between the United States and the United Kingdom on the empire trade preferential system.

He told a news conference that he had conferred here with William L. Clayton, United States Undersecretary of State for Economic Affairs.

Now! LIFE INSURANCE EXPERTS PROVE THAT
FORD TRUCKS LAST up to 19.6% LONGER

FOR THE first time in history, scientific methods used by life insurance companies in computing rates have been put to work in figuring out life-expectancy tables for Ford Trucks.

4,967,000 Trucks Studied . . .

Wolfe, Corcoran and Linder, leading New York life insurance actuaries, assembled the records of all trucks of the five sales leaders registered from 1933 through 1941 . . . 4,967,000 trucks in all. Then they prepared truck life-expectancy tables exactly the same way they prepare human life-expectancy tables for life insurance companies.

Ford Trucks On Top!

The result? Ford Trucks Last Longer! Up to 19.6% longer than the other 4 sales leaders! Why is this true? Because Ford Trucks are built stronger. They're built to last longer! That extra life that's put into Ford Trucks comes from Ford experience in building more trucks than any other manufacturer. Ford knows how to build trucks that last longer!

See us today. See the life-expectancy charts. You'll see why it'll pay you to place your order for a Ford . . . the truck that lasts longer!

Ford

Certified Proof

The life-expectancy of a Ford Truck is 13.1% longer than that of truck "B"
3.2% longer than that of truck "C"
7.6% longer than that of truck "D"
19.6% longer than that of truck "E"

OFFICIAL ACTUARIAL CERTIFICATE
Based on the application of sound and accepted actuarial methods to the actual experience as measured by truck registrations, we hereby certify that, in our opinion, the accompanying table fairly presents the relative life-expectancy of the trucks involved.
WOLFE, CORCORAN AND LINDER
Life Insurance Actuaries, New York, N. Y.

What Longer Truck Life Means to You . . .
Why It Pays to Wait for a New Ford Truck!

It stands to reason the longer you use a truck, the less it costs to own. That's why longer-lived Ford Trucks are the top truck value. And, logically, Ford longevity means lower maintenance costs . . . less time in the shop. It means more unused miles when you're ready to trade, and a better trade-in. Yes, any way you look at it, you'll get more truck for your money with a Ford Truck . . . because Ford Trucks last longer!

FORD TRUCKS LAST LONGER!

U. S. Communists Get Orders To Help Merge AFL and CIO

By Lyle C. Wilson
United Press Reporter

Chairman William Z. Foster of the American Communist Party is under orders direct from headquarters to help bring about merger of the American Federation of Labor and the Congress of Industrial Organizations.

Foster got his orders from Jacques Duclos, head of the International Committee for Coordination of Communist Activity. Duclos is a Frenchman. His committee was set up by the Communist Internationale which somewhat ostentatiously went out of business during the war. The Communist Internationale was the world-wide organization for Communist revolution directed from Moscow.

The Duclos committee enjoys all the prerogatives of the Communist Internationale except authority to summon party members to a world Communist congress. With the foregoing in mind, Duclos emerges as the most powerful Communist outside Russia. He gets his instructions direct from the Kremlin's Politburo, which is the committee of Russia's top Communists.

Private dispatches received here from Paris revealed the Duclos-Foster conversations and considerably illuminated a meeting of 26 Communist leaders which took place last spring in Paris. Foster was among those present.

This meeting took place at the office of the central committee of the French Communist Party, 44 Rue le Peletier.

The eager interest of Communists in obtaining merger of the AFL and CIO ties in directly with their program for a third party movement or a pressure to compel the Democratic Party to resume the left wing alliances which flourished under the New Deal-Democratic coalition created by the late Franklin D. Roosevelt.

Duclos' urgent interest in the United States and American Communists is nothing new. It was he who a couple of years ago compelled the American Communists to oust Earl Browder as party chairman.

Farley Offers His Support to Truman in 1948

Portland, Oreg., July 14 (INS).—President Truman tonight was offered the support of genial Jim Farley, former Democratic national chairman, in the 1948 Presidential campaign.

Farley piloted the first two Presidental campaigns of the late President Roosevelt but broke with him in 1940 over the third term issue.

The former Postmaster General and Democratic strategist arrived in Portland today to attend the national Elks convention.

Farley forecast that President Truman will be renominated unanimously and said:

"If I can help him in any way in the campaign I'll do so.

"I have a very high regard for him. He has done exceedingly well in view of the problems that have been pushed at him."

Boston Dancer, 2 Men Held in Estate Looting

Rockand, Me., July 14 (U.P.).—A shapley Boston dancer and two men were held in $15,000 total bail after pleading innocent today to charges of looting the summer estate of a Philadelphia family.

Charged with stealing a van load of furniture from the Camden, Me., home of Judge Curtis Bok of Philadelphia were Mrs. Frances Lennon, 21, a night club entertainer, Robin L. Hazletine, 22, of Boston and Edward Rousseau, 24, of Meriden, Conn.

461,006,285 Chinese

Nanking, July 14 (U.P.).—The Census Bureau of the Interior Ministry announced today that China's population had reached 461,006,285, including 241,485,555 men.

Martial Law

Normal Life Is Suspended In Nathauya

Jerusalem, July 14 (U.P.).—Nathanya was put under martial law tonight to aid the search for two kidnaped British army sergeants, held hostage for three members of the Irgun Zvai Leumi terrorist organization under sentence of death.

Fifteen thousand persons were isolated, government offices were closed, all normal life was suspended and a 23-hour-a-day curfew was imposed. One hour a day was allotted to housewives to buy food.

The kidnaped men, Sergts. Nervin Paice, 19, and Cliff Martin, 21, were seized Saturday.

Mayor Oved Ben Ami of Nathanya appealed earnestly to Gen. Sir Alan Cunningham, high commissioner for Palestine, not to impose martial law.

Ben Ami asserted that local army commanders agreed with him in opposing martial law, but that Cunningham determined on strong action.

Ben Ami said he would not appeal to the United Nation's Palestine Committee, which today heard American-born Dr. J. L. Magnes, president of the Hebrew University, denounce partition of Palestine and advocate instead a bi-national state with political parity for Jews and Arabs.

Dr. Magnes envisaged a state on the order of Switzerland with equal political rights for Arabs and Jews.

Dr. M. Reinder gave facts and figures to support his contention that partition could not work.

MacArthur Sets Time for Return

Tokyo, July 14 (INS).—Gen. Douglas MacArthur declared today that as soon as a peace treaty is signed with Japan he would return to his home in Milwaukee, Wis.

The general revealed his intention following a conference with a group of editors and publishers at his Tokyo headquarters.

Previously, MacArthur said that the peace treaty should be concluded within a year or eighteen months.

The Federal Diary

By Jerry Kluttz

PENALTLY: The House Appropriations Committee is working on a much tougher antideficiency law. It will propose, it's reported, that Federal officials who approve the overspending of regular appropriations be fired and jailed. Also, that all employes in the overspent agencies be placed on payless vacations until the agency budgets are balanced.

In other words, the committee will demand that agencies live within their regular appropriations. Since January, the President has asked Congress to approve about 375 different requests for deficiency appropriations. The committee will ignore many of these requests if they are made next year.

The committee also plans to wipe out or modify the troublesome personnel ceiling law. That act requires the Budget Bureau to tell Federal agencies each three months how many employes they may have.

FPHA: A major reorganization that will wipe out 1000 or so jobs and close many offices is being planned by the Federal Public Housing Authority. Incidentally, the Senate Appropriations Committee has knocked out that House-approved rider to its budget which would force FPHA to fire and downgrade about half of its employes who are paid $4500 and more.

CIVIL SERVICE EXAMS: Social workers at salaries ranging from $3397 to $8179. The jobs are in Veterans Administration offices here and throughout the country. No written test is required . . . Geologists, $4149 to $7102, for openings in the Agriculture and Interior Departments.

Civil Service next week will announce an exam for accountant and auditor jobs in Federal agencies here. The jobs will pay from $3397 to $5905 a year. No written tests will be given. Grades will be based on education, experience, and work samples.

ACCIDENTS: In a move to cut down on accidents, higher standards will be set for operators of Government autos. Also, each applicant will be given a road test. The safety program has been worked by Civil Service and the Interdepartmental Safety Council.

RETIREMENT: The House Rules Committee today will consider the compromise Stevenson retirement bill. Its approval is indicated. Approval means that the House would take up the bill in about a week.

PAY RAISES: The Senate Civil Service Commission today will take up the Flanders-Baldwin bill to raise salaries of top Federal officials. And it will have another good reason why the bill should be approved—yesterday Howard Peterson resigned as Assistant War Secretary because he could no longer afford to work for Uncle Sam. Coming up is the resignation of Jim Landis as chairman of the Civil Aeronautics Board for the very same reason.

GREEK AID: Treasury's Federal Supply will do some of the buying for the Greek-Turkist aid program. However, it has funds for only a few jobs and they will be filled by people who have been furloughed from the agency.

Also, Army's Transportation Corps will have the job of shipping the goods to the two foreign countries and it has recalled some of its laid-off people for that chore.

PEOPLE: Alan Dean has resigned from War's civilian personnel office to join the Budget Bureau . . . W. R. Johnson is back at Customs as deputy in charge of marine and tariff administration . . . Representative Eberharter (D., Pa.) says some of his colleagues in Congress "might very easily" lose their jobs if the Rees Federal worker loyalty bill covered members of Congress. That bill will be up for debate today in the House. . . . Carl H. Monsees of War Assets, has opened his own business consultant firm.

ATOMIC ENERGY: That House-approved rider that would cut salaries of administrative people in this agency was not touched by the Senate Appropriations Committee. A fight will be made to strike it out on the House floor. Several Senators had agreed to knock out the rider during the hearings.

WAR: Heath Onthank, civilian personnel chief, told the Senate Appropriations Committee that future personnel reductions in his department would have to be made mainly among career employes with 10 to 30 years of service because many veterans have super-preference for retention. He then said:

"This situation is likely to be disastrous in maintaining the career know-how for the department's unique technical, industrial and administrative requirements.

"The long-time career people know this. Many of them have already left the service. The morale of the remaining employes, with little job security, is at a new low mark. Efficiency has consequently suffered. No man can work zealously with the dagger of unemployment hanging over his head.

"In addition, many valued career employes, especially in the vital scientific field, are resigning because the promise of job security for a career in the department appears to be only mythical."

Post Denies 'Jimmying' Police Desk During Probe

Managing Editor Tells Senators No Lawless Methods Used by Reporters

Police Superintendent Robert J. Barrett yesterday accused The Washington Post of having "jimmied" open a Detective Bureau desk and of "taking and keeping" records during its expose of hidden crime complaints.

Obviously surprised at the admission that anyone could get records out of the Detective Bureau, Senator Joseph H. Ball (R., Minn.) declared:

"You'd better get some new detectives."

J. R. Wiggins, managing editor of The Post, told the subcommittee:

"The Washington Post did not obtain by lawless methods or by force and violence any police records, and it does not now have in its possession any of the official records of the Metropolitan Police Department.

Later, Barrett was asked if The Post could take a picture of the "jimmied' desk.

"Not a chance," he replied.

"Why?"

"We're working on it," he replied.

Police Admit Post Charges

ment in the first 11 months of the fiscal year ending May 31, 1947 in comparison to 761 such complaints officially acknowledged by the department.

Secret Files Revealed

The letter told of the discovery of more than 300 such complaints in secret files in the Detective Bureau and an additional 300 others recorded in police precinct record books and marked "hold" for the detective sergeants. None of the more than 600 became part of official statistics or went out over the police teletype.

Senator McGrath after a brief explanatory statement called Commissioner Young as the first witness.

Commissioner Young explained that in the split-up of duties among District Commissioners he handled police matters and was responsible for them.

Asked if he was familiar with the "pocketing" practices as exposed by The Post, he said he was "as a former newspaperman."

"But not as a Commissioner," he added. "It's a routine matter."

Police Reports Not Checked

He was interrupted by Senator Ball's comment that it "can scarcely be called routine when police fail to report almost half of the complaints they receive."

Commissioner Young said he received the official police reports but never made an effort to check them.

He said he seldom received complaints of members of the police department against their superiors, adding "only in those cases where we have to try some one" (before the Police Trial Board).

Reverting to the Commissioner's investigation of The Post expose, Senator Ball asked Commissioner Young if he had closed his investigation "after talking to Barrett."

"Yes," replied Commissioner Young.

"And you took him at his word?" he was asked.

"I told him if there was any abuse to stop it; I said if this is being overdone, stop it," replied Young.

Senator McGrath asked the witness if the expose "shocked you as it shocked the consciences of most of our citizens here?" The reply was lost to spectators and the press.

Made No Inquiry

The Commissioner testified, under direct questioning, he did not make any inquiry after the expose on pocketing of robbery complaints to determine whether or not a similar practice was followed with other types of crime complaints.

He said he received no special reports except the "big ones."

"The only thing I know," Commissioner Young said, "is that when we have big ones the chief calls me regularly (to report progress on major crime investigations)."

Questioned as to whether he read Inspector Truscott's order as Chief of Detectives to stop pocketing of crime complaints and Superintendent Barrett's following one "nullifying" Truscott's order, he replied.

"I don't think it nullified it."

Barrett's Order Criticised

"As I read the two orders," said Senator Ball, "Barrett's order leaves the door wide open and takes us back to the old system (of withholding reports)."

The Senator said he thought Barrett's order "places a little too much temptation to both criminals and officers."

Senator McGrath then told Young that one of the purposes of the hearing was to secure appropriations of $25,000 "to bring in the best experts in police work we can hire" to make recommendations to improve police administration here.

Commissioners Guy Mason and Brig. Gen. Gordon R. Young were present and were asked if they cared to make any statements. They declined.

Barrett Takes Stand

Barrett then took the stand and explained the scope and operations of the Metropolitan Police Department. He produced letters from police departments of adjoining communities attesting to cooperation given them by the local force.

Barrett said he had two men "working day and night" checking up on the pocketed complaints and accused The Post of hindering such investigation "by taking and keeping" Police Department records.

Barrett said he did not want to go into the matter "on record" but would like to tell the committee members privately of his conclusions." Senator McGrath said the matter would be taken up at a later, "executive session."

To his report that the records were taken from the Detective Bureau, Senator Ball declared:

"Then you'd better get some new detectives."

No Request for "Rewards"

Barrett said he has never made a demand on The Post for the records and that he was using "other means" to investigate the reported discrepancies between official records and The Post findings.

Later, J. R. Wiggins, managing editor of The Post, took the chair to deny The Post has police department records or that the newspaper ever used "force or violence" to obtain its information. He said the information came "from many sources" and that such sources "are confidential."

Asked if the "pocketing" system extended to crime complaints other than robbery cases, Barrett answered in the affirmative, but added:

"Not as many."

Uncertain on Gambling Reports

These, he said, included reports about young children "assaulted in theaters" and in rape cases. He wasn't certain about gambling reports, declaring there "is some misunderstanding in the statistical bureau on how to handle gambling reports."

The superintendent said the "confidential" files in the Detective Bureau were in existence "since when or shortly before I became chief of detectives in 1941." Before then, he said, "other methods" were used.

He admitted The Post expose had done the Police Department no harm and that the morale of the department is "very good."

Capt. Mark Raspberry, head of Park Police, and Capt. William J. Broderick, chief of the Capitol Police, testified to 100 per cent cooperation between their bodies and the Metropolitan Force.

Transport to Start 50-Stop Test Trip

Baltimore, July 14 (AP).—Glenn L. Martin company officials said today they expect to start their new 2-0-2 transport plane on a 50-stop test trip this week in quest of Government approval for the craft.

The two-engine plane, designed to carry 40 persons at speeds up to 275 miles an hour, will be the first airliner to undertake the accelerated test program now required by the Civil Aeronautics Administration as proof of the airworthiness of any new type.

First trip on the proposed itinerary is Baltimore to Washington.

Police Pistol Match

Baltimore, July 14 (AP).—Officers of Federal, State, and municipal law-enforcement agencies will compete in a pistol match Wednesday on the range of the Sparrows Point police, the Maryland Police Association announced today. The competition also will be open to game wardens, bank guards, and railroad or industrial police departments.

Text of The Post's Report on Its Police Department Inquiry

(This summary of The Washington Post's investigation of the crime-reporting methods of the Metropolitan Police Department was submitted to the Senate Committee on the District of Columbia Monday.)

Following is the text of a letter sent to the Senate Subcommittee investigating law enforcement here, outlining results of The Post's investigation of hidden crime complaints and their significance to Washington residents. It was sent at the subcommittee's request by J. R. Wiggins, managing editor of The Post.

J. George Stewart, Senate Committee on District of Columbia, U. S. Capitol, Washington, D. C., July 12, 1947.

Dear Sir:

In response to your request, The Washington Post tenders herewith a report on its inquiry into the operation of the Metropolitan Police Department of the District of Columbia.

The full account of this investigation is contained in the clippings of news articles and editorials attached to and made a part of this memorandum. For the convenience of the members of the committee, an attempt will be made to summarize this account.

This summary contains the substance of the findings which we believe this inquiry supports; the statement of the methods used in gathering the supporting data; and a declaration as to what The Post believes is the significance and importance of these disclosures.

Substance of the Disclosures

1. The Metropolitan Police Department, in its reports to Congress, to the Commissioners of the District of Columbia, to the Federal Bureau of Investigation, to the Criminal Justice Association and to the public, for many years has misrepresented and distorted official statements of felonies committed.

2. This distortion has been accomplished by methods of recording crime complaints that are contrary to the plain meaning of police regulations, that are inconsistent with the crime complaint recording and reporting method recommended by the Federal Bureau of Investigation and the Committee on Uniform Crime Records of the International Association of Chiefs of Police.

3. These methods have included several deviations from regulations and approved practice including:

(a) Failure to enter complaints on the complaint books of the precinct in which the alleged crime took place. (Police regulations, Chapter XXVI, Section 485, requires each precinct to maintain a "general complaint book in which shall be entered every complaint preferred upon personal knowledge of the circumstances thereof, with the name and residence of the complainant."

(b) Withholding of a complaint (after entry on the complaint book) from the teletype circuit provided to carry reports to the central bureau of the Department, to the statistical bureau, and to other precincts. (Chapter XVI, Section 6, of the police regulations state: "When reports of murders, burglaries, robberies, and other high crimes are made to them, they immediately notify their commanding officer and shall telephone the particulars to the Central Bureau and to the Inspector in charge of the District Bureau.") Note: The teletype took the place of the telephone report after adoption of this regulation.

(c) Maintenance of confidential and secret files of cases not recorded on the official complaint books.

(d) Withholding of such complaints from the official statistics of the statistical bureau with the result that formal reports of the department on crime in the District of Columbia have misrepresented the situation. (Constituting an offense which, under the regulations, is punishable at the discretion of the Police Trial Board by appropriate action up to and including removal of the offending officer.).

4. In the first 11 months of the last fiscal year the official reports of the Police Department acknowledge 761 robberies in the District of Columbia. More than 600 additional robberies were committed, according to complaints of persons who alleged the loss of money or property to criminals through force or violence.

Effect of These Practices

The public interest has been adversely affected by these irregular practices, which have inflicted the following direct injury upon this community and upon other agencies concerned with the crime situation in the District of Columbia:

1. The full resources of the Metropolitan Police Department have not been utilized in the apprehension of suspects and in the solution of crimes. When a crime is properly reported over the prescribed teletype network, the entire police force is made acquainted with the fact that the crime occurred and is informed of the vicinity of the offense and the description of suspects if any. The complaints which were concealed by the Metropolitan Police Department did not receive this attention because full knowledge of the offenses was limited to the precinct in which the crime occurred, to the detective squad in which the secret files were maintained, and to the squad and cruiser car personnel picking up reports by car radio net.

2. The District Committees of Congress, the Commissioners, the Criminal Justice Association and the public, all have been grossly misled by the Metropolitan Police Department,

(a) As to total felonies committed.

(b) As to the efficiency of the police force in terms of the percentage of all crimes cleared.

3. The Federal Bureau of Investigation has been deceived as to the amount of crime committed in the District of Columbia, and there has been introduced into the uniform crime reports which the bureau gathers for the United States, fraudulent and unsupported crime statistics that render incomplete and inaccurate the Nation-wide effort of the FBI to provide agencies of low enforcements and students of crime with reliable information on which to found public policy, provide appropriations and form legislation affecting crime.

4. The ignorance of the prevalence of crime in the District of Columbia has worked a serious injury upon the citizens of this area in two ways:

(a) It has fostered a dangerously complacent attitude toward law enforcement and kept the community in ignorance of the seriousness of an ever present threat to life and property. But for this complacence and ignorance there might have been more energetic enforcement of the law, more adequate provision of funds; more personnel for detection and enforcement.

(b) It has mislead residents as to the security or lack of security in their own neighborhoods, encouraging citizens to take risks that might have been avoided if full information as to the hazards had been known.

Some Other Consequences of Such Practices

The unlawful concealment of crime complaints tends to have other serious results. The extent to which these results have developed in the District of Columbia has not been fully determined by The Washington Post and probably cannot be determined by any organization or person other than a duly constituted body possessing full power to gain access to records and accept formal testimony.

One likely result of such emphasis on minimizing the number of complaints and such effort made to conceal them is the infection of police personnel with a peculiar psychological attitude toward complainants. If it becomes an important purpose of police to keep down the number of complaints, it is inevitable that complainants will be received with skepticism and even hostility. If it is looked upon as a mark of reproach, instead of an evidence of zeal, when a policeman records, transmits, files and reports law violations, a necessary enthusiasm for making known all infractions of the law will not prevail. How far such a psychology has infected the Metropolitan Police Department only fullest inquiry could disclose.

(See the attached exhibit for a case reported by Eric Sevareid of the Columbia Broadcasting System.)

Some cases uncovered in this inquiry suggest that persons temporarily in Washington, persons without especial influence, or persons themselves in violation of laws, have been unable to obtain the respectful attention to their complaints that is the right of all citizens. (It is to be noted in this connection that reports sometimes are false; but the redress for false complaints is legal action against the complainant and not illegal suppression of the complaint).

Another risk of concealment of this sort is that it is an invitation to the corruption of police personnel. It is not alleged here that this has taken place. Only a properly constituted body is likely to ascertain this. It is self-evident, however, that it is the first interest of criminals to conceal from society knowledge that a crime has been committed. In a police department where it is possible for individual officers to withhold from public records, public scrutiny or official reports the very knowledge that there has been a crime, every officer possessing the opportunity to effect such suppression is exposed to the gravest temptation. In a police department where criminals are occasionally provided this security gratuitously there is always the risk that they may seek to obtain it by the offer of pecuniary reward.

Serves No Public Good

This memorandum has noted some of the ill effects of an improper system of crime reporting. Nothing in this inquiry so far has suggested to The Washington Post any public good flowing from these policies.

It has been argued that some of the complaints withheld have been phony complaints. The procedures laid down by the FBI in its manual of police records and other documents provides for the recording of complaints and the subsequent correction by reporting clearance of phony cases.

It has been alleged that some complaints should be concealed to protect complainants whose good name might be blackened by public knowledge of the offense. In no instance would this purpose require withholding from the statistical bureau the number of complaints. In no instances would it justify concealing from other agencies of law enforcement or the Police Department the knowledge that a crime was committed. In only the rarest cases would it warrant concealment at all.

It has been contended that the withholding of complaints aids in apprehension of criminals in some cases. This can be accomplished without withholding the fact that a crime has been committed from statistical reports. It can be accomplished without secreting information from the police force itself. (In the case of the stoplight robberies recently cited as a case justifying secrecy, there is a difference of opinion within the police force, some of the members of which feel they might have broken up this practice more speedily if they had known of the crime—knowledge of which was restricted to the detective force.)

Methods of Inquiry

It was started by information from many sources, suggesting irregularity in the recording and reporting of crime complaints. The initial information furnished to The Washington Post was provided by persons known only to the investigators, not all of whom are known to anyone person engaged in the investigation.

This initial information was confirmed by a preliminary investigation of certain precinct stations which disclosed instantly that:

1. Substantial numbers of crimes entered on complaint books were being marked "hold" by orders of detective squad members and thereby kept off the teletype circuit that is the main source of crime intelligence and the sole source of police statistics.

2. That some crimes committed in precincts were not entered on complaint books at all.

With this finding as a start, a wider inquiry was then commenced and the following steps taken:

1. All precinct records were examined simultaneously in the thirteen precincts. A check was made of all robbery complaints in the first 11 months of fiscal year just ended and a list was made of all such complaints marked "hold."

2. Access was gained to a secret file in the robbery squad containing case cards with notations on selected complaints. This complete file was carefully photostated.

3. Precinct records, and the secret file cards were arranged alphabetically and painstakingly checked for any correlation or duplication.

4. Individual cases were further checked at the statistical bureau and by interview with complainants.

5. The data thus obtained was carefully collated. The figures were obtained on actual robbery complaints and comparisons was then available with officially reported complaints and the discrepency noted instantly appeared.

6. The documentary evidence thus obtained was checked and rechecked against the oral evidence of a widening number of witnesses privy to the affairs of the department in one way or another.

7. As a final precaution, Robert Barrett (then Chief of the Detective Bureau in which the secret files of concealed cases were maintained and now Chief of Police) was invited to scrutinize the first account of the concealed complaints. He declined to do so. Then the Acting Chief of Police, Inspector Thomas, was invited to examine the report and consented to hear it read to him over the telephone. He expressed the opinion that the inquiry should be directed to Mr. Barrett; voiced the belief there was no intent to misrepresent; and asserted his own ignorance of the concealed files.

8. The findings of the inquiry, in which more than twenty reporters participated actively and in which other editors assisted in many ways, were then made public.

9. Diligent inquiry and investigation has failed to disclose:

(a) Why these illegal practices have been followed.

(b) Who directed that the regulations be disregarded.

(c) At whose instructions the members of the detective bureau continued to disregard the regulations.

(d) How many robbery complaints have been suppressed during fiscal years prior to that ending July 1947.

(e) How many felonies in all categories have been wrongfully concealed.

These and other facts connected with this plain disregard of regulations and of sound police practice seem a proper field of inquiry for competent public agencies outside the police department.

Sincerely,

(Signed)

Police Force At Capital Defended by Senate Aide

Sergeant-At-Arms Denies Inefficiency Charges Following Shooting at Bricker

Senate Sergeant-at Arms Edward F. McGinnis yesterday took public issue with an editorial in yesterday's Post that the Capitol Police force "is not worthy of the name."

He branded as "if not completely untrue, certainly exaggerated" the editorial comment that the force "has been built up with a minimum regard for the applicant's qualifications and full emphasis upon taking care of so-and-so."

McGinnis, who is also chairman of the Capitol Police Board, read his statements into the record of a Senate subcommittee probing need for a full-scale probe of Washington police administration.

"Best refutation" of the editorial, he said, was that every Senator was informed that force appointees "must measure up to certain physical requirements."

Senator J. Howard McGrath (D., R. I.), chairman of the subcommittee, interrupted to say he never received such a notice, adding:

"You mean every Republican Senator."

McGinnis praised the force chief, Capt. William J. Broderick, as "a strict disciplinarian" who has "succeeded in putting together an efficient and capable force consisting of young men, many of whom served in World War II."

He pointed out that but 30 of the present force of 135 men are over 50 years of age.

He termed 'absolutely correct" the editorial comment that "The Captol needs a police system of high competence and responsibility."

The sergeant at arms added, however, that the force "should be sufficiently large to properly guard the members of Congress and Government property entrusted to its care."

The editorial was prompted by the shooting attempt on Senator Bricker and action of the Capitol police in its wage.

D. C. Heads Want Budget Reshuffled

Washington's Commissioners are slated today to ask the Senate to re-shuffle $900,000 in the House-approved District budget for this fiscal year.

The Commissioners will be the first witnesses on the city budget in hearings starting at 10 a.m. at the Capitol before the Senate District Appropriations subcommittee. The hearing will be in room 82B of the Capitol.

Subcommittee Chairman Henry C. Dworshak (R., Idaho) said earlier he hoped to limit the hearings to items about which there is some controversy, in an effort to send the bill to the Senate by the end of the week.

Officials indicated the Commissioners may ask Dworshak's group to trim back House-approved school construction in order to restore major items which the House dropped from the city appropriation bill.

Items Under Discussion

Among them are:

$ $400,000 fund for a new Industrial Home School Building at Laurel, Md. Its present site borders the Naval Observatory.

A $170,000 Health Department appropriation to build an apartment house for medical officers at the District's tuberculosis hospital at Glen Dale, Md.

An $11,800 cut in Public Utilities Commission funds which would wipe out the office of people's counsel, now held by John O'Dea.

Other smaller amounts in line with new legislation, including money for a paid parole board member, extra money for collecting and assessing proposed new taxes, and about $10,000 to finance the Metropolitan Police Band.

Iron-clad Revenue Ceiling

As cleared by the House, the appropriation bill is up against an iron-clad revenue ceiling. It would take up all the revenue in sight, and all but about $600,000 of the city's official savings account—the fund invested during the war for postwar construction.

With an eye on the following year, when there would be almost no savings left to tap, the Commissioners are expected to renew arguments for cutting down the school construction plan sponsored in the House by District Appropriations Chairman Walt Horan (R., Wash.).

Horan took the lead in boosting the school building program from $2,123,000 earlier cleared by the Commissioners to the $4,719,830 approved by the House. The larger fund would be used for a major start at eliminating part-time classes now in effort for some 7000 pupils in 20 schools.

Married Man, Engaged in School Work, Always Has Some Girl Student Crazy About Him; This Embarrasses His Wife and He Calls Her Jealous

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: I have written you several times, but destroyed the previous letters after reading them. However, I do need help—someone to talk to—and my own people are over a thousand miles away.

I have been married more than 10 years to a man 12 years my senior. We have two lovely children, twin boys 8 years of age. I love this man very much and at times he pretends to love me and the children.

His work brings him in contact with high school girls and each school year he has a "girl friend" among them, who gets crazy about him and since he is in his forties he feels flattered and makes a lot over her. These girls also correspond with him during the summer months.

Wife Doesn't Want Divorce

IT WOULD seem that after eight years of this, I would consider the source and get used to it, but I can't seem to. It has brought me considerable embarrassment at times. If I talk to my husband about it, he merely turns it off by saying I'm just jealous, which perhaps I am.

I am a homebody and maintain a wonderful home for my children. Also I try to lend a hand in community affairs, by taking part in all church activities and doing some club and Scout work. Since I am from a broken home, I will do all in my power to avert divorce. Please advise me. R. B.

Wife Has Cause To Feel Ashamed

DEAR R. B.: Occasionally one encounters married male teachers whose personal ethics are as shabby, and whose natures are as puerile as your husband's,—male teachers who exploit their professional role in relation to teen-age girls to kindle a fresh new flirtation periodically as a love-offering to their own vanity, thus insidiously corrupting the adolescent mind in callous disregard of lasting repercussions on the victim.

Any right minded, devoted helpmeet would be ashamed of her husband's weak dishonorable performance of this stripe, and deeply concerned to talk him out of it,—without an iota of jealousy figuring in her disturbed reactions.

She would be profoundly chagrined and solicitous for reasons that issue from moral sense, reasons that square with Christ's relentless verdict on those who demoralize the thoughts of youth. See Luke 17:1,2—"It is impossible but that offenses will come; but woe unto him through whom they come! It were better for him that a millstone be hanged about his neck, and he cast into the sea, than that he should offend one of these little ones."

Man's Behavoir Isn't Innocent

SO MUCH for your husband's glib stock evasive retort that you're just jealous when you venture objection to his amoral enticement of young girls' idolatry. I'm sure we are agreed that he isn't seeking or having affairs in the accepted sense. Nevertheless his solicitation and encouragement of fantasy-liaisons with girls is by no means an innocent pastime.

In these flirtations initiated by him, the play is upon forbidden love, and this ideology implanted in the feeling-drives of susceptible youth by a current spellbinder without scruples, tends to promote an unconscious drift toward moral callousness and loss of clean integrity as regards self-giving. As said before, the full force of the damage done may not emerge until much later.

For advice: Why don't you canvass the problem with your pastor? Perhaps a confidential word-to-the-wise, from him to your husband, might start a change for the better. It seems high time that some disinterested adult, properly accredited to speak up, called his attention to the intangibly unsavory aspects of his Don Juan shadowplay, and admonished him to repent and behave, for the sake of his family and the procession of school girls whose paths cross his. M. H.

New Styles Are Viewed By Editors

NEW YORK, July 14 (U.P.).—More than 100 fashion editors came to the big town today for a gander at the most radically different clothes the American woman has worn in many a decade.

And the editors, here for the ninth National Press Week of the New York Dress Institute, will have plenty to tell the folks back home.

Here's a sample: For the first time since Joan Crawford displayed what broad shoulders can do for a gal's figure, clothes have little or no padding. Hoods and capes are attached to everything but nightgowns and probably will invade the boudoir before the season's over.

Milliners are passing off huge puffed up cushions for hats and insisting they be worn with the ear-covering spaniel hair-dos of the 20's. On evening wear racks, gowns of wool and quilted raincoat-cloth hang side by side with those of lame and heavy brocade. And if all the designers pooled the sequins, paillettes, gold braid, jet and bugle beads they've used on fall clothes they'd have enough ballast for the Queen Mary.

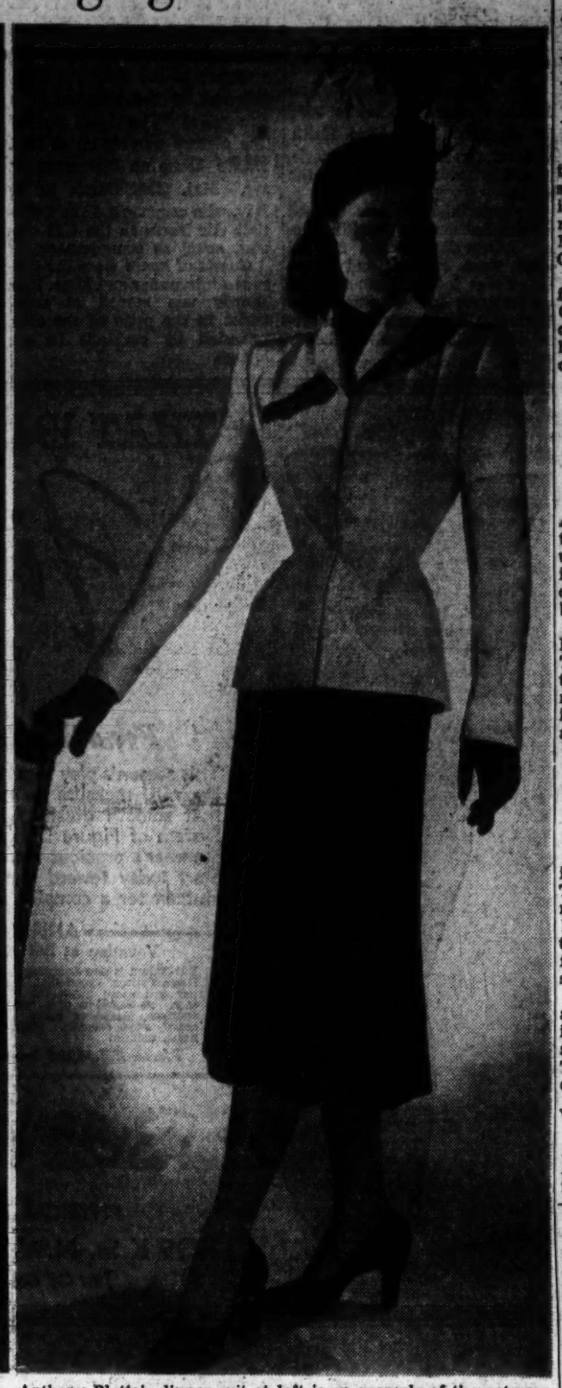
In the midst of all this clothing confusion there is one designer—Maurice Rentner—who knows how to use a fad or leave it alone. The average woman cannot afford his clothes, but she'll buy a better wardrobe if she follows his example of restraint.

Anthony Blotta likes beads in his collection. He mates a cuff-edged cocktail jacket of red and gray hand-woven Persian silk, latticed in jet, with a full skirt of gunmetal velveteen. The jacket is also available in silver-toned satin, laced in jet.

For the adolescent in temperament if not in years there's the Claire McCardell collection of somewhat impractical winter play-clothes. Miss McCardell, who designs for the elongated ballerina type, has completely dispensed with shoulder padding.

Here are a few tidbits from her collection. A black corduroy lumber jacket closed with tiny gold hooks and eyes is worn with a gold satin necktie. Doff the jacket and there's a strapless dress of black corduroy beneath.

Glimpses of Fashion's Changing Silhouette



A NEW fashion picture is making its appearance this week in New York, where the Nation's press is getting an advance glimpse of the clothes which will soon be appearing in local shops.

Yesterday, fashion writers visited the showrooms of such American designers as Claire McCardell, Kiviette, Anthony Blotta and Maurice Rentner. They noted an over-all change in the silhouette as we have known it for the past several years. The square-shouldered, angular figure with flat hips and slim skirt has given place to the softer, sloping shoulder, well-defined rounded hip and longer, fuller skirt.

Anthony Blotta's dinner suit at left is an example of the extreme interpretation. It incorporates the unpadded shoulder, small waistline greatly accentuated by flared hipline, full, gathered skirt ending near the ankle. Jacket is of handwoven Persian silk in light red and gray stripes, latticed with jet embroidery. Skirt is gunmetal velveteen.

Maurice Rentner is considerably more restrained, retains a toned-down version of the padded-shoulder and slim skirt silhouette in his collection. He offers such costumes as the cocktail suit at right. The white woolen coat has a splash of jet beads across the shoulder-line to give width. New contour of the jacket may be noted in nipped-in waistline and flared edge. The skirt is approximately 12 inches from the floor.—PEGGY PRESTON.

Dark Colors Bright News In Cottons

Style experts are agreeing that the monotone cotton dress is this season's standby. Women are showing a marked preference for the new dark shades, according to Marian Corey in an article in McCall's magazine.

Reporting on other fashion news for summer and early fall, Miss Corey tells about tricky necklines, cap sleeves, the big bow and the big tuck, and the long and short of tunics:

"Dark colors are news this year. Especially a wonderful deep green in chambray, and a dark beige. Two top pastels are chartreuse and gray. It's a big gray year.

"Black cotton for young girls? And in summer, too? Yes, and they love it. They like it pointed up with eyelit edging ruffles, as is one dress, a wasp-waister, incidentally, which you pull in tight by a back sash.

"The big bow is with us again. It is never long out of fashion. The big-bow fad and also the big-tuck fashion. Grace one of those nice dresses that make up well in almost anything, look well on almost anyone.

"The simplest and easiest of tunics is just a straight piece front and back pleated and allowed to float free at the sides. Wide, open, and cool neckline, running off to a leftish line.

"A suit dress worth waiting for is one with the frill on the jacket. The kind of thing with which you may or may not wear a blouse. For summer think of it in shantung. For fall, consider soft black faille. The skirt is slender and simple, to show off the top.

"The deep armhole is the thing about another dress. It makes it important at the top. The pointed scallops do something for that also. The skirt has box pleats for a change."

Waxed Leather Cleaner

Leather or leatherette seats of breakfast furniture will stay clean longer if occasionally waxed.

Tots May Have Nylon Toggery

Nylon holds forth tremendous possibilities for children's clothes, P. D. Atwood of DuPont's nylon division told members of the Infants' and Children's Wear Buyers' Association at their recent forum in New York.

Mr. Atwood pointed out the potential values of nylon's basic properties for such diverse items as rugged snowsuits, party dresses of crush-resistant velvet and undergarments of stretch-resistant tricot jersey.

Important among the practical advantages is nylon's ability to undergo, during finishing, a moist-heat treatment which sets the size and shape of knitted or woven fabrics. Shrinking and sagging can be greatly minimized. Crush resistance of velvet results from this treatment and from the inherent elasticity of the yarn, Mr. Atwood explained. Thermo-setting also eliminates the need of ironing tricot or satin underwear, he said, and gives neckties wrinkle-resistance.

Gaston Can Make Your Lashes Talk and in Any Language

By Ruby Juster

New York, July 14 (INS).—Mr. Gaston is a man who goes about his business without batting an eyelash.

But when he's finished with a job, some fair damsel has a beautiful set of eyelashes to flutter as she pleases.

Beyond a door labeled "Gaston Hairstylist" and underneath "Eyelashes, Fingernails" in a building on Madison ave., he engages in the unusual occupation of applying false lashes to ladies with apathetic winks.

"I think eyes are the more attractive part of a woman," said Mr. Gaston, who is certainly qualified to make such a broad statement. He has peered into the eyes, professionally, of thousands of women in the past nine years.

"And lashes make the eyes very expressive. Long and thick lashes are beautiful, but they are very rare." So Gaston picks up where nature dropped her easel.

About 10 years ago Gaston Merenda set aside his own easel, and, from painting beautiful women on paper, he turned to painting women beautifully.

In Naples he was a commercial artist, until he decided to come to America. "I thought it would be more practical to be a hair stylist." Hair styling led to experimental eyelashing. "But it was not very successful over there," he said.

"European women are ashamed of such things. They would never tell other women they are wearing false eyelashes. In this country they brag about it to all their friends . . . except the men, of course."

Gaston and his assistants can do a rebuild job in 45 minutes to an hour. It is not just a matter of taking a handful of lashes and plastering them on.

Gaston uses the back of his hand for a palette. Each hair is dipped in a special glue and put in place with a tweezer. An average job uses about 500 curls of human hair, each one dipped and glued.

Confucius Say: Politicians Also Friends

Chinese Solons Feted at Embassy

By Genevieve Reynolds

CHINESE and American lawmakers swapped views . . . Former United States Ambassador to China, Gen. Patrick J. Hurley, and Senator Dennis Chavez of New Mexico buried the political hatchet in a Spanish embrace. It all happened at the gala cocktail party yesterday when the Chinese Ambassador, Dr. Wellington Koo, entertained in honor of the Chinese Legislative Yuan Mission, now in Washington on a visit.

Affable Dr. S. Y. Wu, secretary general of the Yuan, heads the mission, which is composed of Dr. C. C. Chang, chairman of the foreign relations committee of the Legislative Yuan and who was chiefly responsible for drafting the new Chinese Company Law and the Banking Laws; Dr. Robert Sheng, dean of the Comparative Law School of Soochow University; Dr. Yui Ming, young diplomat and adviser to the mission, and Ko Yin-yue, secretary.

Plans Extended Tour

The mission already has visited Honolulu, Seattle, San Francisco, Victoria and Vancouver, B. C. Dr. Wu says that the extended tour will cover major cities in the United States, Canada, England, Australia and South America.

Earlier this week, Dr. Wu, who is one of the Chinese law makers responsible for drawing up the new liberal Constitution which is scheduled to go into effect on December 25, met Speaker of the House Joseph Martin and Chairman of the House Foreign Affairs Committee, Charles Eaton. Yesterday's party gave him and other members of the mission an opportunity to chat with numerous congressional leaders.

Among those exchanging views with the Chinese lawmakers were Representative Mike Mansfield, Delegate Joseph Farrington, Senator Chavez, Leslie Biffle, Representative Walter Judd, Gen. Frank McCoy, United States representative on the Far Eastern Commission; Nelson Johnson, former United States Ambassador to China, and Dr. Y. C. Koo, director of the International Monetary Fund.

Then there were the Indian Minister, B. R. Sen; Senator H. Alexander Smith of New Jersey; Arthur R. Ringwalt, chief of the State Department's Division of Chinese Affairs; Edward E. Rice, assistant chief of the division, and James Penfield, deputy director of the Far Eastern Division.

Vincent for Minister?

John Carter Vincent, head of the State Department's Far Eastern Division, and the Minister Counselor of the Soviet Embassy, Semen K. Tsarapkin, were glimpsed in a huddle. Incidentally, as they talked, rumors circulated among the guests that Vincent soon will be named United States Minister to Switzerland. Vincent would neither deny nor confirm the report.

General Peter Pee, new Chinese Military Attache who arrived in town recenty, served as aide to General Hurley. Unaware of the hot, political fight between Senator Chavez and General Hurley when the two contended for the Senatorial seat from New Mexico last year, he unwittingly brought the two together. Upshot of the meeting, the Senator and the General embraced for the first time since the mud-slinging campaign. General Hurley, General Pee and Senator Chavez have a luncheon date tomorrow.

Except for a few wives of the Chinese Embassy staff and a trio of newspaper women, the fete was a stag affair. Mme. Koo, chatelaine of the Embassy, is at present in New York.

Senatorial Immunity

Life in Subway Gives One Time For Bon Mots

By Mary Van Rensselaer Thayer

"LISTEN! Don't you know there's a rule against shooting Senators? Take that gun and get out of here," the Senate subway operator peevishly ordered Senator Bricker's would-be assailant. After uttering the season's niftiest bon mot, he calmly went back to work. Presumably, these nights all 96 Senators are sleeping sweetly, wrapped in the security of a new-found law!

Louise Macy Hopkins, widow of Harry Hopkins, seldom gets to Washington. Pink-cheeked "Louie," who lived in the White House with the Franklin D. Roosevelts, has a job with Manhattan's luxury emporium, Bergdorf Goodman. Fancily known as a "clothes coordinator," she assembles frocks and accessories for hurried customers. She gets on fine with the salesgirl, Mrs. Hopkins says, because she takes no commission, just straight salary. Diana, Harry Hopkins' teen-age daughter, lives with her stepmother. A great favorite of Mrs. Roosevelt, Diana has turned out "pretty" rather than intellectual. Right now she's summering with Louie's sister, "Min," the wife of handsome Nicholas Ludington. In the autumn Harper's will publish the Hopkins' papers. A sure-fire best seller, they'll be a welcome bolster to Louise Hopkins' rather tenuous income.

Mrs. Lewis Douglas writes friends it's no cinch being an Ambassador's wife in London. The Douglases turned down the Georgian palace Barbara Hutton presented to our Government because it needs a staff of 20. Though well off by most standards, the Douglases simply haven't that much folding money. Right now they are squeaking along with one permanent maid and calling in caterers when they entertain.

A Mademoiselle in a Million

FROM placid Geneva comes the news that John Winant, jr., son of our former Ambassador to Britain, is marrying Mlle. Janine Perret tomorrow. Young Winant, who was shot down over Germany and remained a prisoner 18 months, is a sober guy and a toothsome matrimonial catch. Though his Lincolnesque father, Gil Winant, plays up simplicity to the hilt, both he and his wife possess magnificent bank accounts. The former Ambassador, who was three times Governor of New Hampshire, made a pile in gypsum while Mrs. Winant inherited a generous slice of the Pyne millions. The bride-to-be, incidentally, is the daughter of a Montreux attorney.

Another interesting bridegroom is Cartoonist Bill Mauldin, creator of Willie and Joe. By marrying Natalie Sarah Evans he acquired a grandma-in-law as amazing as any comic strip character. The new Mrs. Mauldin's grandmother is Mabel Dodge Evans Luhan, the Buffalo heiress who sheltered and impresarioed exotic author D. H. Lawrence. Mabel ended up, when old enough to know better, by marrying Tony Luhan, a Taos Indian brave. Mabel's effervescence has been somewhat stilled by passing time, but on rare occasions Tony still emerges from his white squaw's ranch to enliven Gotham's more cultured salons with drum thumpings and conversation carried on in grunts.

Two weeks ago 17-year-old John Gunther, jr., died. Brilliant only son of the author of all the "Inside" books, he had been desperately ill of a brain tumor this past year. Yet the plucky kid, his head swathed in bandages, graduated from Deerfield Academy scarcely a month before his death. John, sr.'s new book, "Inside America," is an overwhelming success, and though broken-hearted he is starting work almost immediately on another. Within a few weeks he'll be back in Washington to gather material for an "Inside" devoted purely to our political scene.

Competition for Emily

NEXT to advice to the lovelorn, etiquette is just about the most popular subject in this hit-or-miss era. For decades, straight-backed Emily Price Post has reigned queen of table manners and such abstruse, biologically inclined problems as, "Shall I ask him in?" But now Park Avenue's Mrs. Post is about to be challenged by a comprehensive tome sponsored by Vogue magazine.

Though anonymous, the opus is really being authored and pulled together by super-slim Millicent Hammond Fenwick. Millicent is a daughter of Ogden Hammond, our former Ambassador to Spain, and a sister of Ogden, jr., who created a furor by suing the State Department after his dismissal from the diplomatic service.

Millicent has been given the summer off from her duties on Vogue's staff to unravel the myriad complexities of ladylike behaviour. Her former husband, outsize Hugh Fenwick, who once peddled airplanes by the score, drops into Washington from time to time to give the local belles a whirl.

Dyers Entertain for Two Naval Couples

A COCKTAIL party was given yesterday afternoon by Capt. and Mrs. Robert Dyer at their home in honor of two departing naval couples — Rear Admiral Carlos Saravia, retiring Naval Attache of the Argentine Embassy, and Senora de Saravia, and Rear Admiral and Mrs. Carey Jones. The Saravias are sailing for the Argentine within the next 10 days, and Admiral and Mrs. Jones are leaving for Great Lakes, Ill., where the admiral will become commandant of the Ninth Naval District.

Among the guests were the Argentine Ambassador and Senora de Ivanissevich, Rear Admiral and Mrs. John W. Roper, Rear Admiral and Mrs. Marshall R. Greer, Brig. Gen. and Mrs. Richard Cutts, the Spanish Charge d'Affaires and Senora de Baraibar, the Naval Attache of the Chilean Embassy and Senora de Recart and the Naval Attache of Brazil and Senora de Medeiros.

Patience Pays

The main trouble with home painters is they are so anxious to get their work done they are apt to get the second coat of paint on the article before the first coat has thoroughly dried out and this always results in unsatisfactory work. Be sure the paint is absolutely dry before applying that second coat.

Ask Anne — Your Questions on Homemaking

Is there any way of painting window shades? Mine are in excellent condition, but dingy looking. They have been washed several times. E. M.

Canvas paint recommended for painting window shades is for sale in a number of Washington stores.

Will you tell me how to build up a good wax foundation on furniture? What should be done after the furniture is washed and the wax applied? S. S.

Waxed surfaces should be rubbed often to build up the desired luster. In applying wax, use it sparingly and let it stand for about 15 minutes before rubbing. Either liquid or paste wax can be used on furniture, but do not use self-polishing wax. Rub with a clean, soft flannel cloth until the surface is lustrous and the beauty of the grain is brought out. Be sure to rub with the grain of the wood. It's necessary to apply wax only two or three times a year if you use plenty of elbow grease in between times.

The walls in one of our rooms have been painted three times over the wallpaper. The paint used was a flat wall paint with an oil base. We wish to remove the paper and wonder if you can suggest an easier method than scraping. B. D.

Scraping will undoubtedly be necessary in this case and it's going to be a tough job. It might be helpful to rub the wall with rough sandpaper, then apply one of the penetrating solutions sold for use in removing wallpaper. Of course, there may be some places where the paper was not stuck tightly and, stiffened by the paint, may be pulled off in large pieces.

How can I remove paint that has hardened on a Navy blue wool sweater? I tried rubbing the spot with turpentine, but it did not help much. E. P.

A hardened paint stain is often impossible to remove. However, here are a few suggestions: Try soaking the spot in pure turpentine, or in a liquid of equal parts ammonia water and turpentine. Then rinse several times in fresh turpentine, and wash in soapy water. Or work lard or vaseline well into the paint spot and let it remain several days. Then sponge well with cleaning fluid.

Perspiration made a necktie fade on one of my white broadcloth shirts. How can I remove the stain? The shirt has not been laundered since it was stained. J. C. C.

First soak the stains in cold or lukewarm water, for 10 to 12 hours if necessary. Wash in heavy soapsuds, then dry in the sun. If the stain remains, apply one of the hydrosulphite bleaches sold at drug stores as color removers. Follow the directions on the package.

I have a new console model air-conditioning unit which has a beautifully finished dark walnut cabinet. I left a large handbag on top of the cabinet overnight and next morning, the handbag was stuck to it. After considerable difficulty, I removed the handbag. The finish of the cabinet now has a dull, slightly rough spot where the bag was stuck. The grain of the leather appears to be imbedded there. How can I restore the glossy finish?

Since the cabinets of most air-conditioning units are metal, I assume that yours is of this material painted a dark walnut. First, I'd suggest washing the spot with warm water and soap to see if you can loosen any of the bits of leather. A good commercial paint cleaner with be helpful and so might scrubbing the spot lightly with mild scouring powder or whiting to reduce the roughness. After you've done all you can to smooth over the spot, wax the cabinet with either liquid or paste wax.

Can you tell me where in Washington I can get a pair of cuticle scissors sharpened? H. L. W.

There is a barber and beauty supply company on 12th st. near F that will get your cuticle scissors shartened for you. They are sent out of town for sharpening and it takes from two to three weeks.

Can you tell me about "pounce" or black sand used in old fashioned desk sets in place of blotting paper? Where can I purchase some? L. A.

The word "pounce" a (corruption of "pumice")) was originally applied to powdered gum sandarach or cuttlefish bone used to absorb the excess of ink on manuscript. In a more general way, the term pounce was used for the finely ground black said used for drying ink. So far, I haven't been able to locate any in Washington except in an exhibit at the National Museum. However, almost any kind of finely sifted sand can be (and was) used in "pounce boxes" in old fashioned desk sets.

I am flying to Colorado this month with my 10-month-old baby and the only lightweight, noncrushable suit I have is made of black taffeta in a crinkly weave. Would this be unseasonable or inappropriate? H. E. P.

The style of the suit has a good deal to do with its appropriateness for travel. However, taffeta is generally considered quite dressy, and I believe a plain, tailored one-piece dress would be more suitable. You can carry a lightweight coat if necessary.

PETUNIA!

To conserve an umbrella

Right, Petunia! Silk dries out if it never gets wet. During dry spells, it's wise to take silk umbrellas out of the closet and wet them under the shower.

Market Memo

By Lucie Beaux

YELLOW transparent apples are here . . . early offerings from the Virginia orchards . . . wonderful for apple pies. Nice peaches on the market . . . as well as red raspberries, and cherries (Bings and Lamberts from the West Coast).

Squash steps up into the plentiful vegetable list this week. Four kinds seen on the Warshington market . . . round "patty pans" . . . dark green acorns . . . striped Zucchini . . . and yellow squash (the kind that had crooked necks until plant scientists straightened them to make shipping easier). Other plentiful vegetables now are beets and carrots . . . cabbage, celery and lettuce . . . tomatoes, potatoes and peppers. . . .

Hock and butt ends of ham . . . what's left after the big center slices are cut out . . . are a good buy now. Cottage cheese is abundant . . . fine in salads or main dishes to alternate for meat.

Citrus Yield Up 27 Pct.

World production of citrus fruit for 1946-47 is 27 per cent larger than the annual average during the years just before the war.

Child Must Know the Why Of Punishment

By Myrtle Meyer Eldred

THE MOST effective method for punishing children for their deliberate offenses is to deny them privileges or to isolate them from their parents, sisters and brothers or friends.

The "privilege" may be a story to which they are devoted, a visit to friends, a movie each week, a radio serial they enjoy. To deprive them of it is meaningful. The isolation should be immediate but not long-lasting. Punishment that goes on too long loses its effectiveness. The child feels revengeful instead of repentant. Isolation is a natural punishment, for if a child is guilty of unsocial behavior then he should lose the privilege of being in society. His immediate society is his family and friends.

Make Things Clear

IF THE child makes mistakes and breaks some cherished object, tears his clothes, gets muddy, spills water, eats too many sweets, won't eat his dinner, doesn't want to take a bath, loafs on his jobs, dawdles while he dresses, he doesn't particularly need punishment. He needs an explanation. He needs some incentives to "get going." He needs a lot of ignoring of irreparable mistakes of which he isn't personally to blame. We all make mistakes and no one whacks us for them. Give the child a break, too.

In fact spanking may be the easiest thing a parent does because it relieves her own tensions. It may not be the effective punishment because of that. It is immediate and over with, and the child feels relieved of all guilt because he has been punished and has accepted his punishment. He's paid the bill. If he wants to repeat his behavior and pay the same penalty, who can stop him?

Futile Punishment

CHILDREN get used to spankings and feel rather proud that they can stand them. That isn't the idea in punishment. It is to help the child see that his conduct has been wrong and that he is to improve it. He'll get a chance to think that over calmly while he sits alone in his room. He'll wonder if it is worth the price, if the deprivations really deprive him of pleasures he enjoys.

Meanwhile, he will not be boiling with resentment or matching temper with temper with a mother who acts mean because she feels mean toward him. The less heated the punishment the easier it is to administer and the better its long-time result.

New Window Boxes

Be sure to whitewash the new window boxes on the inside before putting in the dirt. It will prevent the box from rotting and also prove a great preventive against small insects.

Buy the Right Mop

When buying a new dry mop, shake it and see if the strings show individually and do not mat together. A good quality mop will have strings that practically stand alone.

Cochairmen Chosen by School Group

Edmund D. Campbell, Arlington attorney and former chairman of the County Board, and Dr. Oscar R. LeBeau, chairman of the Citizens Committee for School Improvement, have been named cochairmen of the Arlington School Board Nominating Conference.

The conference was organized recently as an unofficial "civic movement" to sponsor a nominating convention for prospective Arlington School Board candidates next month. Other officers of the conference are M. Riggs McCormick, first vice president; Curtis E. Tuthill, second vice president; Mrs. Martha Ann Miller, third vice president; Mrs. Virginia Thatcher, secretary, and Julian D. Simpson, treasurer.

County organizations represented in the conference include the Arlington Civiv Federation, the Citizens Committee for School Improvement, the Better Government eLague, the Arlington League of Women Voters and the Organized Women Voters. All of the groups supported the campaign for an elected school board.

Arlington residents who wish to suggest candidates for election to the school board are requested to submit their names to the nominating unit no later than August 1.

Expert Hired For Survey of Hospital Costs

Dr. J. R. Clemmons of New York City will conduct the impending survey of Alexandria Hospital in an attempt to resolve the hospital-city controversy over rates to be paid for indigent patients.

Announcement of his selection was made yesterday by the five-man committee set up three weeks ago under the mediation plan offered by the Council of Social Agencies.

Clemmons, administrator of the Roosevelt Hospital in New York, will start his survey of the needs and facilities of the hospital on July 22.

The hospital has asked the city for a straight $30,000 grant and an $8.81 per diem rate for welware patients. The city has offered $7 a day and no grant. The immediate purpose of the survey is to gather information to help arrive at a fair rate.

Rev. O. V. T. Chamberlain, moderator of the committee, said the survey will not be limited to this immediate emergency but will "cover all phases of the hospital's operations and its adequacy to serve this community and its surrounding areas."

Results of the survey will be made public probably around September 1.

According to the plan submitted by th Council and accepted by both the city and the hosuital, the committee's report will not be binding on either side. But the hospital has agreed to continue under the old rate of $5 a day until the survey is completed.

Reserve Bank Sees Steadier Employment

The employment situation in the Fifth Federal Reserve District has stabilized, the Federal Reserve Bank of Richmond reports in its monthly review. There have been moderate curtailments in numerous places and a few plants have found it necessary to shut down temporarily. Such changes have occurred mainly among small concerns and thus far few workers have been affected adversely, the bank says.

Despite high building costs, building permits are showing surprising strength. After adjustment for seasonal variation, permits in the District in May were 8 per cent higher than in April and 22 per cent higher than in May, 1946.

Reports are current that some wholesalers and retailers are again purchasing supplies equivalent to their sales, the bank says. It recalls that stores generally had adopted a policy last spring of reducing inventories by purchasing considerably less than was being sold.

"It is interesting to note that some stores have resumed purchases equivalent to their rate of sales, and it indicates a strengthening factor in manufacturing output and employment," the bank comments.

Late Selling Pressure Cuts Stock Gains

New York, July 14 (AP).—In one of the fastest sessions of the past two months the stock market industrial average today touched another top since last August, although late selling reduced the majority of extreme gains running to two or more points.

Inflationary psychology, based mainly on the recent coal wage boost, again received the principal credit for short covering and investment demand. The almost uninterrupted climb through eight weeks, however, inspired considerable liquidation from customers with good profits who felt that a sizable technical correction was long overdue.

The forenoon push on large volume was led by rails which were buoyed by hopes for lifted freight and passenger rates. Oils, steels, motors and assorted specials then joined the parade. Offerings in the final hour stemmed the rise and put a smattering of pivotals in the minus column.

Better performers, a number in the "new high" division, included McGraw Electric, up 2 at 42½, in an extra dividend; Amerada Petroleum 2 at 89, Union Pacific 1½ at 139, U. S. Rubber 1⅝ at 52⅛, American Smelting ⅞ at 61⅛ and International Harvester at 95.

Maryland Today Will Decide 3-Way Race for House Seat

Baltimore, July 14 (AP).—A three-way battle to determine the successor of Thomas D'Alesandro, who resigned his Maryland Third Congressional District seat in the House of Representatives to become Mayor of Baltimore last May, will be decided at the polls tomorrow.

Candidates for the congressional seat are:

Magistrate Edward A. Garmatz, Democratic nominee who has the blessings of Mayor D'Alesandro and the party's State Central Committee;

City Councilman Simon P. Jarosinski, also a Democrat, but campaigning under independent colors in expressed opposition to Garmatz, whom he has described as D'Alesandro's "dictated" candidate;

Edwin S. Panetti, Republican aspirant who has received no little amount of comfort from the Democratic intraparty squabble.

Although Garmatz lays claim to the support of CIO and AFL labor leaders, Jarosinski has indicated that he expects the backing of union rank-and-file members.

However, Mayor D'Alesandro last week sent to President Truman a letter in which he predicted an overwhelming victory for Garmatz.

Nationally, the election will be closely watched by supporters of labor. Philip Murray, national president of the CIO, has indicated that his union's backing of Garmatz will provide an opportunity for a test case on a provision of the recently enacted Taft-Hartley labor bill that he said curtails union expenditures on behalf of candidates for public office.

Garmatz has been indorsed in the current issue of the C. I. O. News.

GOP Candidate Panetti is basing his hopes for election on the possibility that the breach in the Democratic Party will be wide enough for him to slip through. Like Jarisinski, he claims some support of union members, but has said Garmatz is "welcome to" the backing of "the CIO and the CIO Political Action Committee."

3 Youths Admit Firing on Negro Boy Scout Camp

Charleston, S. C., July 14 (U.P.).—Three white youths confessed today to shooting up a Negro Boy Scout camp near here in a Sunday "prank" that left three terrified campers slightly wounded from volley after volley of shotgun fire.

Charleston police announced the arrest of Hollis K. Chandler, 20; John Murray, 19, and George Matthew Pierce, 20. Officers said they had admitted the shooting but said they did it "just as a prank."

The Negroes were sleeping in a tent at Camp Pinckney near Charleston when the white youths swooped down on the camp, yelling and shooting, police were told.

The Charleston Boy Scout Council scheduled a special meeting to discuss the matter.

In Glen Burnie

Man Shoots 3 to Death, Then Himself

Snowdentown, Md., July 14 (AP).—A 30-year-old man shot three people to death, wounded another man, then killed himself last night, 2½ miles south of Glen Burnie, Anne Arundel County police reported.

After shooting the first of his four victims in an argument, the killer, Elijah Queen, barricaded himself in his house. Police were sent to the scene to fight it out. But the man turned the shotgun on himself before they arrived.

Police Chief John H. Sauers identified the dead as Queen, Levi Harris, who lived in Queen's house; Viola Queen and Alice Miles, neighbors. Wesley Hammond, wounded in the head, was reported in "fair" condition at South Baltimore General Hospital.

Harris was found on the ground outside the house, shot in the head, with a butcher knife beside him.

The other victims, Sauers said, evidently were attracted to the scene by the sound of the shooting, and while standing outside the house were shot by Queen from the bedroom window.

A resident of the community summoned Sergt. R. Y. Flannery and Patrolman John Praley about 9:15 p. m., and they sent for Sauers, two more policemen, and a truck from the Glen Burnie fire department to floodlight the house. Police fired a tear-gas bomb through the bedroom window, kicked in a door, and found Queen lying dead on the floor.

Richmond Boy Drowns

Newport News, Va., July 14 (AP). A 16-year-old Richmond schoolboy, Herman B. Rudolph, was drowned Sunday while swimming at Yorktown off the beach of the Colonial National Park. Police were still dragging the river for his body today.

Va.'s Profits On Liquor Rise Sharply

Richmond, Va., July 14 (AP).—Virginia's ABC profits during the first three months of 1947 soared 31.8 per cent over the comparable period of 1946, with net sales of nearly $22,600,000, an audit of the Alcoholic Beverage Control board showed today.

In a report to Governor Tuck, State Auditor J. Gordon Bennett disclosed net sales from January 1 through March 31 of $22,591,000—an increase of $4,388,391 over sales during the first quarter of last year. The State's net profit on these sales, Gordon reported, amounted to $4,450,703 as compared with $3,374,950 in the comparable period of 1946.

The auditor's report made it plain that out-of-State purchasers are contributing heavily to the total sales. Citizens of North Carolina, Tennessee, and other neighboring States, unable to buy in Virginia stores last year, now are free to do so with the abolition of rationing.

Out-of-State purchasers were credited with contributing to an amazing boost in sales at Abingdon (population 3158) where total sales for the first three months of 1947 reached $617,249. Over the same period last year, sales at Abingdon were $273,878. Biggest total sales were in Richmond's 10 stores which handled $3,432,000 in purchases.

Alexandria's two stores had net sales of $645,500 compared with $426,800 for the January-March period of 1946.

Md. Man Killed In Triple Accident; 8 Children Escape

Halethorpe, Md., July 14 (AP).—A man was killed, his elderly sister hurt critically, and eight children escaped injury today in a triple motor vehicle crash at a Washington-Baltimore boulevard intersection.

Halethorpe police identified the man killed as Marion O. Wolford, 71, of Lansdowne, Md. His sister, Miss Agnes Wolford, was taken to St. Agnes' Hospital, Baltimore, for treatment of possible multiple fractures and internal injuries.

Police said the Wolfords were driving west on Silver Spring rd. The second automobile involved was bound east on the same road and a truck was northbound on the Washington blvd.

Lanny R. Riley, 39, of Baltimore, and his seven children were riding in the second automobile. All were unhurt as were the truck driver, Roy M. Todd, 29, of Readsville, Ga., and an unidentified child riding in the truck, police said.

Md. U. President Seeks Change in Science Measure

By The Associated Press

Dr. H. C. Byrd, president of the University of Maryland, has asked Representative Hugh A. Meade (D., Md.) to attempt to change a House bill creating a national science foundation so that the University and other public institutions would be eligible for funds.

Dr. Byrd, in a letter to Meade, pointed out that the bill passed by the Senate provides for distributing on a geographic basis a specific portion of the money allotted.

He said he understood the bill introduced by the House Interstate Commerce Committee had no such provision. Byrd said that this proviso had been "fought in the Senate by those very few private universities that consider that all national research should be centralized in a few big institutions."

Police Question Suspect in Death Of Md. Silkweaver

Hagerstown, Md., July 14 (AP).—Police today questioned Walter Sprankle, 47, in an effort to find out how Frederick Earl Andrews, 41, a silkweaver, had been beaten to death with the leg of hickory coffee table.

Andrews died early Sunday at Washington County Hospital, two hours after his body was found, covered with blood, on the floor of a Hagerstown carpenter shop.

Dr. Robert Wells, county medical examiner, said Andrews had received 11 skull fractures.

City Boards' Officials Hit Central Control

By Edward Ryan
Post Reporter

School, welfare, and recreation officials lined up in a Capitol hearing yesterday to oppose transferring control over their work to the main District Government.

Central theme of their testimony was that, with or without home rule, Washington can get be tter service in the three fields through the present separate citizen's boards.

The officials testified at a hearing of a House District home rule subcommittee.

Partisan Politics Cited

For the schools, Dr. Robert A. Maurer, vice president of the Board of Education, presented a statement for Mrs. Henry Grattan Doyle president. It said in part:

"The public wants the constant interpretation of education by a group of citizens, and would not be satisfied with a single administrator."

The present Board of Education now has full control over the schools, except for clearing its annual budget through the District Commissioners.

Dr. Maurer and Mrs. Doyle both emphasized that one main purpose of setting up a separate board was to keep partisan politics out of school administration. That has been done, they said.

Representative Charles B. Deane (D., N. C.), presiding at the hearing, said the home rule subcommittee "is not thinking of any political move that would lessen the efficiency of any part of city administration."

Welfare Officials Renews Oppos

On welfare, Edgar Morris, chairman, and Fred S. Kogod, member of the Board of Public Welfare, renewed earlier opposition to the bill that would put the Commissioners in full charge of yelfare, leaving their board as an advisory group.

The bill, approved by the House District Committee, is slated for House action today.

The transfer of control, said Kogod, would mean that the community will lose "a great service." He and Morris agreed that only a citizens' board could give the personal attention to human problems needed in welfare administration.

Recreation Board Chairman Harry S. Wender said that even if Washington were governed by a locally elected city council he would still object to abolishing the present separate recreation board.

Citizens' Board Assured

"A city council will have enough to do if it takes over the present work of the Commissioners and whatever legislative functions Congress may give it," he said.

He said an independent citizens' board is needed to give successful recreation services. He said an advisory board would be "better than nothing" but he warned that there is a "genuine feeling of frustration" for the citizen who serves in such a group. "All the advice in the world is without value unless it is accepted," he observed.

Wender also urged that Congress adopt legislation, if that is needed, to make the Interior Department turn over to the Recreation Board the golf courses, swimming pools, and other recreation facilities it controls here. He said he hoped the Interior Department would do it without legislation.

1900 Tenants Offered 3-Step Raise to 15%

Tenants in the 1900 apartment units of Colonial Village and Arlington Village in Arlington yesterday received offers of voluntary leases at higher rentals as allowed by the Housing and Rent Act of 1947.

While not asking at this time for the maximum 15 per cent rental increase allowed by the law, Gustave Ring, owner, has offered leases with three step-rate 5 per cent maximum in the period from July 1, 1948, through December 31, 1948.

The offer, which is good only up to August 1, follows a rent rise described by tenants as amounting to about 6 per cent, for one-bedroom apartments, which went into effect on June 1. The increase was authorized by the area rent control director.

Ring, who said the rentals at the two projects run from about $43 for one-bedroom units to $77 for the three-bedroom apartments at present, explained that the offered leases would "provide the first 5 per cent increase as of August 1, 1947."

If the rental in the last six-month period, through December 31, 1948, should not be "competitive" with other apartments in the area, the management may consider a possible reduction, Ring declared.

Meanwhile, I. Chance Buchanan, rent control director for the suburban Virginia area, said he was studying the rent rise of up to 17 per cent asked by Jesse Johnson of tenants in the 216-unit Parkglen Apartments on Columbia Pike in Arlington.

Magistrate Appointed

Leonardtown, Md., July 14.—Heber McWilliams, sr., has been appointed committing magistrate of Calvert County by Gov. William Preston Lane.

Cooperatives Praised for Service Record

Orkney Springs, Va., July 14 (AP).—Lending institutions as a whole "cannot produce a written record of service" to equal that of cooperatives, E. Paul Crider, chairman of the board of the Farm Credit Administration of Baltimore, told directors from seven production credit associations today at the opening session of a three-day conference here.

"In a day of prosperity," Crider said, "critics have found a few little defects in cooperatives so they can criticize. I suspect that these criticisms arise from some selfish objectives now or in the immediate future."

Crider then outlined briefly the basis for a successful cooperative for the 50 PCA directors attending the conference, who represent associations from counties in Virginia, West Virginia, and Maryland. Nearly 3000 farmers are served by the seven PCA organizations represented at the meeting.

M. O. Wilson, president of the Production Credit Association of Baltimore, opened today's convention session with an address pointing out objectives and accomplishments of the cooperative system during the last 14 years. Solomon L. Koke of Frederick, Md., led discussions this afternoon on member ownership of the associations. Crider's address closed the program.

On tomorrow's program are addresses by D. W. Burruss of Winchester and Dr. Harry Love of Virginia Tech.

Virginia Veterans Of Spanish War Open Encampment

Roanoke, Va., July 14 (AP).—A business session this morning opened the thirty-eighth annual encampment of the Virginia Department, United Spanish War Veterans, at Hotel Roanoke.

Approximately 250 veterans and members of the women's auxiliary are expected to attend the two-day convention.

Reports were heard from committees this morning. Tomorrow morning, officers will be elected.

Roanoke Mayor Richard T. Edwards delivered the address of welcome today, and Clyde George of Portsmouth, department commander, responded. George is presiding over the department meetings, while Mrs. Myrtle Wymer of Staunton, auxiliary president, is presiding over the women's session.

Hospital Worker Waiting for Trial

Staunton, Va., July 14 (AP).—James William Wilhelm, former Western State Hospital attendant, is in Staunton Jail today facing a misdemeanor charge arising from the death of an elderly patient on April 19.

Wilhelm was arrested in Buena Vista Friday after a two-months' search. He will be tried Wednesday in Civil and Police Justice Court on charges involving the alleged mistreatment of the patient.

A warrant was sworn out for Wilhelm's arrest in May at the request of the State Hospital Board, several weeks after the 65-year-old attendant was discharged following the death of Daniel Struder.

Georgia Sheriff Kills Man in Gun Battle

Georgetown, Ga., July 14 (AP).—Sheriff H. F. Herrington, 64, said today he had killed a 65-year-old Negro Saturday night in a gun battle with a group of Negroes who sought to prevent the arrest of one of their race on a felony warrant. The sheriff was wounded slightly.

Harrington said he killed Ball Smith when the latter cursed him, brandished a revolver and declared he would not permit the arrest of his son, T. D. Smith, 17.

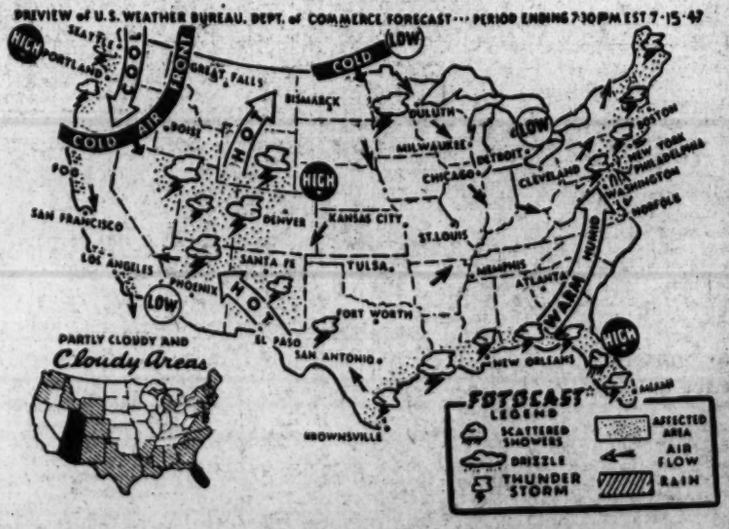
National Weather Summary

Copyr., 1947, Edw. L. A. Warner



National 24-hour forecast summary: Residents of most parts of the Nation will roll up their sleeves and suffer hot, sultry weather for the coming 24 hours. Weather experts point out afternoon temperatures will be 100 degrees or more in Montana and the Southwest Desert Region. Maximum readings will be in the upper 80s from Maine to Pennsylvania and the Upper Lakes Region. The remainder of the area east of the Rockies will be in the 90s.

By way of contrast, it will be cool and comfortable in the Pacific coastal States, thanks to cool northerly breezes pushing down from western Canada.

Heavy, swelling thunderheads followed by afternoon and evening thundershowers are indicated from Maine to Virginia, along the Gulf Coast and from western Texas through the Rockies, also along the Washington-Oregon coastline. (Affected areas picture where storms will occur in the next 24 hours.)

Clear to partly cloudy skies will offer mostly sunny weather to the Nation except Arizona, Utah and southern Florida which will be overcast. (See inset map.)

Fog and low clouds will blanket much of the California coastline. (See fotocast.)

Weather Bureau forecasters point out hot, sticky weather is caused by a continued flow of warm, humid southerly winds. This uncomfortable weather will continue as long as a high pressure cell extends from the southern Atlantic to Bermuda. (Amateur forecasters can advise their friends it will be cooler when this "high" moves off the fotocast.)

Highest temperatures this afternoon will range from 108 at Phoenix to a cool 64 at Oakland, Calif. Forecast maximum readings include Kansas City and Tulsa 96; Atlanta and St. Louis 95; Nashville 93; Chicago 90; Philadelphia 89; Boston, Hartford, Detroit, Cleveland and Pittsburgh 88; New York 87; Milwaukee and Buffalo 85; Albany 84 and Duluth 76.

Men of Oldest Parish Meet At Breakfast

Men of the King George Parish —"mother" Episcopal parish of Washington—held their first annual communion and breakfast yesterday.

The Rev. Robert F. Henry, parish rector, celebrated the communion in the parish church of St. Barnabas' at Oxon Hill, Md. He presided at the breakfast afterward. Men attended from St. Barnabas' and St. John's, Broad Creek, both churches of the King George Parish.

The Rev. Henry challenged the men to pool their efforts toward organizing a men's club this fall. Carlton Fyles was breakfast chairman. One of the oldest Episcopal parishes in America, King George Parish was designated as the original Washington Parish in 1692 by the Maryland Legislature. The Episcopal Church here was then under the Church of England. St. Paul's Episcopal Church, Rock Creek Parish, organized in 1712, and St. John's Church, Georgetown, are "daughter" parishes of King George. St. Paul's is known as the "mother" parish of the District of Columbia.

CIO Food, Tobacco Union to Submit No Issues to NLRB

Philadelphia, July 13 (AP).—The national policy conference of the CIO-Food, Tobacco, Agricultural and Allied Workers Union today announced the union "will submit no issues" to the new National Labor Relations Board set up under the Taft-Hartley Act.

In a statement the policy committee said the "new National Labor Relations Board set up under the Taft-Hartley Act has been designed as an instrument of the employers against the interests of the workers, and because our members cannot hope for any solution of their problems of wages and living standards through the new board, the FTA will submit no issues to the board."

The FTA with a membership of 102,000 said the union will deal directly with employers in all issues of collective bargaining and the adjustment of grievances and disputes.

Newsprint Cut Held Curtailing Freedom of Press

London, July 13 (AP).—The new cut in newsprint ordered by the Chancellor of the Exchequer, Hugh Dalton, carries a grave threat to the freedom of the press, Britain's national Sunday newspapers charged editorially in unison today.

They pointed out the effect will be to reduce the size of the daily newspapers again to four pages—they now print six pages three times weekly—and the Sunday newspapers will drop from eight to six pages. The cut is expected to go into effect July 21.

Dalton told the Commons a reduction of 96,000 tons of newsprint was necessary to save dollars. He estimated the yearly saving at between four million and eight million dollars.

"No press is free which has no space to say what it wants and which lies at the mercy of ministers who have powers to control its size whenever they think it worth while to do so," said the Observer.

Jap Scientist Claims Isolation Of Cancer Virus

Tokyo, July 13 (INS).—A Japanese scientist claimed today that he has isolated a "cancer virus."

Dr. Ryojun Kinoshita said his experiments may accelerate the search for a complete cancer cure.

The Japanese scientist said he had discovered the virus for the first time in mammals. He said his research may prove that cancer is not hereditary but is transmissable.

Doctor Kinoshita said that if a method of suppressing multiplacation of the tiny cancer virus is found, cancer will be "controllable."

British-U. S. Unity Needed, Gen. Lee Says

Rome, July 13 (AP).—Lieut. Gen. John C. H. Lee, acting Supreme Allied Commander in the Mediterranean theater, said in a lay sermon at St. Paul's Episcopal Church here today that British-American unity was essential for a common defense against "anything the ungodly may launch against us."

To avert catastrophe, Lee said, it is "obvious that, either we must convince them that their way is wrong or eventually face the full impact of their world-wide program of domination."

Tear Gas Subdues War Sword Wielder

Boston, July 13 (U.P.).—Brandishing a Japanese war sword, 60-year-old Stanley Blinstraub wounded his wife today and then held off a score of policemen for 20 minutes until subdued by a tear gas barrage.

Police, called by frightened neighbors, arrived to find Mrs. Blindstraub bleeding from a body wound and her husband barricaded in a bedroom. Mrs. Blinstraub was hospitalized, but attaches said her condition was not serious.

Pilot and Friend Die Attracting Girls

Pendleton, Oreg., July 13 (U.P.).—A youthful pilot and his companion were killed here today when their chattered plane went out of control while they were buzzing the house of their two girl friends.

They were identified as Lester Ray Murray, 20, pilot, and Lawrence Earl Thompson, 17, both from Orinofo, Idaho.

Science Is Wonderful But It Needs a Little Help

This communication comes from a man you all know, but who asks that he remain anonymous:

"The common practice of attempting to talk over the phone without talking into it makes me see red.

"When one member to a conversation talks firmly and distinctly into the mouthpiece, the person at the other end hears clearly. He accordingly concludes that the connection is fine, and there is no need for him to do anything but reply—to the wall, to his vest buttons, to the ceiling, in fact to any place except the mouthpiece.

"I admit that it's a pity that modern science is so undeveloped that it is necessary to direct one's voice to a specific spot on the apparatus in order to be heard.

But since this is so, is it really asking too much to expect people to use the device in approximately the manner in which it was intended?

"My experience suggests that the worst sinners in this respect are secretaries, switchboard operators, women, and men. Everybody, in fact, except me.

"Can't you do something about it?"

Give me a ring some day, and we'll talk it over—if you can hear me.

MEMO TO HOLLYWOOD

She'd like to have them make a picture from Damon Runyon's "Tobias the Terrible."

My own dealings with Hollywood are limited to shelling out my money at the box office at infrequent intervals, Estelle—but if Tobias is the character I think he is, I'm anxious to second the motion.

Isn't Tobias the mild-mannered country boy who comes to New York and accidentally earns a reputation as a 12-gun man?

STREET SCENE

Karl S. Dixon of the Hay Adams House, spotted this one for us on a recent taxi ride downtown from the Hill.

As his cab stopped for a light, another car pulled up alongside. Inside were a tourist and his family, and topside (under a cover of canvas) most of the family possessions.

The stranger rolled down his window and called over to the hacker:

"Straight down the Avenue," replied the driver.

When the light changed and the two cars separated, the hacker turned to his fare and grinned:

"I've been hacking for 15 years, and I've heard lots of strange requests from visitors. But that's the first time I ever heard the Executive Mansion called 'livin' quarters'."

Incidentally, the guides around the White House tell me that the most frequent mistake made by tourists is to refer to Mr. Truman's livin' quarters as "The Capitol."

IS IT CRICKET TO PICKET A PICKET?

Alan F. Blair of 4705 29th st. South, Arlington, Va., writes that during my vacation he witnessed an unusual sight on Nebraska ave. near Ward Circle.

The contractor who is tearing down the Wave barracks out there appeared to be having some labor trouble, and pickets began to parade before the site, carrying the usual "Unfair" signs.

"Did you ever before hear of a picket picketing a picket?" asks Al.

Yes, it happens that I did. Back in Ohio several years ago, a picket appeared before a butcher shop.

After sizzling for a few days, the proprietor of the shop also got himself a sign, and appeared carrying this banner:

"Who is this guy? He never worked in my store."

HERE is a pleasant little game that will give you a message every day. It is a numerical puzzle designed to spell out your fortune. Count the letters in your first name. If the number of letters is 6 or more, subtract 4. If the number is less than 6, add 3. The result is your key number. Start at the upper left-hand corner of the rectangle and check every one of your key numbers, left to right. Then read the message the letters under the checked figures give you.

The bidding:

Opening lead: J ♣.

West opened the jack of clubs and East won with the king and shifted to a heart, which South won with the ace, the ten falling from West. Declarer ruffed a club on the board and laid down the diamond king, discovering the 5—0 split. Now it looked as though West had two trump tricks, but South saw a way to reduce his trump losers to one. If he could strip West's hand of everything but three diamonds without running into a ruff, he could throw him in the lead by forcing him to trump, and receive a favorable return up to his diamond ace-ten.

Declarer cashed the spade ace, ruffed his last club on the board, laid down the diamond queen and played the king and queen of spades. He played a heart to the queen, and on the lead of his last heart West was end-played. Having only three diamonds left, he was forced to ruff and then lead from his jack-nine into South's ace-ten.

At no trump declarer wins four spades, four hearts and three diamonds. With the favorable 3—3 spade split, North can take twelve tricks at spades. He takes two club ruffs in North, three top spades on straight leads, four hearts and the three high diamonds.

Marriage bond

The marriage bond is more than just . . . A ticket for a meal . . . It is supposed to represent . . . a 50-50 deal . . . It is a partnership of love . . . That centers in the heart . . . And constantly requires each . . . To play an equal part . . . It contemplates a deep respect . . . And willingness to share . . . The tears and troubles either one . . . Is called upon to bear . . . The marriage bond is meant to be . . . An everlasting tie . . . Eternal as the silver stars . . . That decorate the sky . . . It is a miracle to match . . . The glory of the sun . . . By which a promise is pronounced . . . And two become as one.
